4-H awards presented at first Warden's dinner

Twenty-one 4-H members attended the first Warden's 4-H Award Dinner, held last week at an area restaurant.

Each year the award winners are recognized in a special way, previous years involving bus trips. It was suggested to have this dinner as an annual event.

Doug Tipper, agricultural representative, proposed the dinner be called the Warden's 4-H Award Dinner. William McCrea, Warden of Hastings County, accepted.

A slide presentation by Mrs. Kate Ann Follwell, Home Economist, Hastings County, on 4-H activities in the past year, followed the dinner. Margaret Wilson, United Kingdom delegate for Junior Farmers, from Glasgow, showed slides on her home country, farming and Junior Farmer activities.

Two area men killed in three-car mishap

Two area men were killed in a three-car accident on Highway 62 about a mile and a half north of Highway 7.

Dead is William Gordon, 43, of 26 Queen Victoria St., Madoc, and Roy McAdam, 71, of Eldorado.

Three people were injured.

Michael Brian McIntosh, 21, of East Moira Street, Belleville, received a broken leg and possible neck and back injuries and is in Belleville General Hospital. A hitch-hiker, he was a passenger in the McAdam automobile.

Anthony Gordon, 11, son of William Gordon, was a passenger in his father's car, and received cuts to his face which required a few stitches. He was not hospitalized.

Gislinden Hoehn, 38, who was a passenger in a third vehicle, driven by her husband, Kurt, 39, of 7302 Vennor Dr., Mississauga, received bruises to both her right arm and right leg.

Police report the McAdam and Gordon vehicles were in a head-on collision, the McAdam vehicle northbound and the Gordon auto southbound. The Hoehn vehicle, following McAdam, slammed right into the two other cars.

An autopsy released by Dr. W. F. Bates at Belleville Hospital reported that it appears Mr. Gordon had suffered a heart attack prior to the accident, while Mr. McAdam died of internal injuries.

Damage was estimated at $3,700 - $2,000 to the Gordon vehicle, $1,500 to the McAdam car and $200 to the Hoehn car.

Master conservation plan presented to council

A special meeting of the Madoc village council was called Wednesday, July 23 to discuss the master plan for the Whytock Conservation Area here. The plan was completed by the firm of Totten, Sims and Hubicki.

Reeve T. C. Barton, deputy reeve Clayton Smith and councillors Watson and Deline, authority chairman Guy Hughes and authority vice chairman Harold Thompson were in attendance. The master plan was presented and explained by Dushan Hawcelt and Nancy Bogart, consultants for Totten Sims and Hubicki.

The proposed plan shows a camping area on the west side of the property with access from St. Lawrence St. A picnic area and playground that includes a tennis court, swimming area and ball diamonds is proposed for the east side, with access via Queen Victoria St. Walking trails and additional planting of trees are to separate the various activity sites throughout the whole property. A concession centre is to be built near the entrance at Queen Victoria St. and other attractions, such as horticultural displays, a farm animal zoo at the Blue Barn, a look-out tower and an amphitheatre were also suggested. It was emphasized by the consultants that this development would be phased over several years.

The question of the possible sale of the Whytock house and several building lots on Whytock St. was also discussed without a decision being reached.

On motion of Deline-Smith, it was resolved that the council approve in principle the master plan for the development of the Whytock Conservation area as presented to council and the members of the authority.

The clerk was instructed at this meeting to inquire of Marmora, Tweed and Stirling regarding their charges for water and sewer connections and if such connections are mandatory in these municipalities.

The resolution with regard urban renewal standards is to be circulated to all councillors prior to the next meeting.

Former students plan high school reunion

A group of former Madoc high school students has established a committee to bring back memories of the good old days in the form of a reunion.

The committee includes Mel Caverly, Kel Kincaid and Ken West, of Madoc, Jack Kincaid, of Hagersville, and Allan Ross, of Brantford, and Earle Elliott, of Belleville.

They have set aside Saturday, September 27 for the first annual Madoc high school reunion, to be held in conjunction with the Madoc Fall Fair.

Everyone who attended Madoc high school up to and including 1940 are invited. There will be a registration tent on the fair grounds where there will be an opportunity to visit with former schoolmates and relive the good old days.

A special reception will follow at the Madoc Kiwanis Centre.

Letters are being sent out to all those with whom the committee has contact, but as they do not wish to miss anyone, they would appreciate all those concerned to spread the word to their friends.

Cyclist struck by mirror on van along Highway 7

A Quebec cyclist driving his bicycle east along Highway 7 near the Lake O' Lakes Restaurant, east of Tweed, was struck in the head by a protruding mirror last Friday.

Douglas Neal, 18, of 36 Murney St., Belleville, was driving a Weston's panel van bread truck past the cyclist when the mirror struck him on the back of the head.

Barry Thomerson, 18, of Beaconsfield, Quebec, was taken to Belleville General Hospital where he was said to be quite incoherent, but later, was "coming around."

Damage to the truck mirror was estimated at $20 and damage to the bicycle was said "minor".

NDP optimistic as provincial vote nears

Attendance said big break-through

Less than 50 people showed up at the Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc last week to acclaim Bob Thompson, a student minister with the United Church of Canada, as the NDP CANDIDATE FOR THE NEW Hastings-Peterborough riding in the provincial general election expected this fall.

But while the turnout might seem small by Conservative or Liberal standards, the numbers (considering the hot night and the fact that we're in the peak of the holiday season) was considered a big break-through.

Guest speaker George Samis, MPP Stormont, who won the seat in a provincial by-election, said he remembered the days when the NDP had trouble even getting a candidate, or an executive, let alone have a turnout of close to 50 people at a nominating convention.

He noted that NDP strength was growing throughout Eastern Ontario, as well as the rest of the province, as residents begin to realize that if they want change, and want it now, they are going to have to change the government.

Referring to his own riding of Stormont, Mr. Samis said that when the NDP first ran a candidate in a provincial election in the riding, in 1963, it received 300 votes. Four years later, in '67, it received 2,300. And four years later, in 1971, it received 6,300. Come the by-election, and the retirement of a Tory cabinet minister, the NDP took 10,000 votes and won the riding for the NDP.

"Yet our riding, just like this one, was full of people who 'Always voted Conservative.'"

Referring to the recent election in Ottawa, where the mayor ran as the Conservative candidate, Mr. Samis noted that the mayor would be the man to beat in the traditionally Tory riding. But two to three weeks before the vote, it was realized that the Tories were going to come a poor third, and that the race was between the Liberals and the NDP.

"The riding overlaps John Turner's federal riding, and when the Liberals realized they had a chance of winning it, threw the Turner machine into the battle."

"As it was, the Liberal candidate won by only 230 votes over the NDP - just one vote per poll - in a riding they said we could never win."

He said the Tories won't be easy to beat they're smart and they'll have a lot of money - some $5 million to spend.

But, he contended, the people have lost faith in the Davis government - some because they feel Davis is arrogant, some because they feel that after 30-some years it is time for a change, and some because they feel the Tories have too big a majority.

He said the Tories are consistently blaming Ottawa for everything - setting up the federal Liberals as the bogey men, and then encouraging people to shoot them down.

"Davis has Bob Nixon (Ontario Liberal Leader) on the ropes and knows it."

He said while the Tories were playing Santa Claus, by fixing up roads and cutting the sales tax by two percent, the big corporations were getting a tax holiday for two years.

He said people are looking at the NDP was a serious alternative today because of the fact that three provinces now have NDP governments, and one of them has just been re-elected.

The NDP, when it forms a government in Ontario, will push housing (130,000 basic units per year as a minimum), will make mortgage money available to low wage earners at 6 to 9 per cent interest; will establish land banks to ensure the availability of land 10 years from now; will protect prime farm lands from further commercial, industrial or residential development; will introduce lower rate automobile insurance; will establish a dental care plan (for free treatment for children under 12 years of age), and will give retirement pensions at the age of 60, instead of the present 65.

Social Credit hopeful says people enthused

Hastings-Peterborough Social Credit candidate Nancy Arnold made her first tour of the entire riding since her nomination, last week.

Mrs. Arnold was in Tweed, Stirling, Madoc and Marmora July 22, spending the day visiting local business people and key supporters in each village.

The candidate travelled with her husband and five children, in a rented van which served as a mobile office. She spent two days each in Deseronto and Bancroft.

"Our people are enthusiastic about our chances," she reported after the tour. "In one village I found other parties were selling membership cards to 14 year olds in a frustrated attempt to make their support statistics look better."

Everywhere people were upset with the unneeded restrictions being imposed on small business people by the Davis gang, she commented. "Ontario has had its fling with socialism and is ready to return to the competitive free enterprise philosophy of Social Credit," she claimed.

Part of her job during the one week tour was to line up local delegates to the Ontario annual convention at the Black Hawk Motor Hotel in Belleville September 13.

She explained that the full election platform will be revealed and debated by delegates at the convention.

Party leader Sid Hamelin will make his second visit to the area, when he attends the convention. He attended the nomination meeting at Shannonville where Mrs. Arnold was nominated April 19.

The Sacred candidate predicted that the annual convention will take place in the middle of an election campaign. For nearly a year Social Credit has been predicting an October 1975 election. "Now some of the parties which are slower to catch on, and the press, are coming to think we were right at least about the timing of the election," she comments.

Mrs. Arnold said the failure of Bill Davis' education theories will still be a prominent theme of her campaign, although she says some of the problems she complained about in her April 19 nomination speech have already been cleared up.

The "abortion referral service" she said in April was teaching 12 year olds in some public schools has withdrawn its "service" following publicity over her remarks, and at least one of the "filthy books" she complained of has been withdrawn from a compulsory reading list by the Board of Education, she claimed.

"Excited about possibilities" of NDP gov't

Bob Thompson, hailed as the NDP candidate for the riding of Hastings-Peterborough at the association's nomination meeting in Madoc last week, says he is "excited about the possibility of an NDP government in Ontario, and an NDP member from Hastings-Peterborough."

"The Tories are out of touch with the people of this province, and the local member, Clarke Rollins, is out of touch with the problems of the man on the street."

"They treat the symptoms of the problems, but never the root cause of the problems."

He said he was looking forward to the campaign, and meeting the people, and unlike the Tories, would be stressing the issues.

"The Conservatives," he said, "have been told to love everybody, but to avoid the issues, in this campaign."

"Well, we're not going to avoid them. The people have a right to know."

He said the first public function of the campaign, for the NDP, would be in Coe Hill Saturday, August 9, when a meet-the-candidate night will feature dancing and refreshments.

Rollins clan celebrate 50th anniversary

The Rollins clan celebrated their 50th anniversary of reunions at the Tweed Memorial Park Sunday, July 27, with 285 registering.

The morning's events began with a worship service based on the family's forefathers and their faith which helped them withstand the hardships of settling in a new country. The service was under the supervision of Bernard Hollinger. Boyd Moorcroft sang Amazing Grace during the service.

At noon dinner was served, followed by the opening of the business meeting by Joe Rollins, who welcomed everyone and thanked all those who had helped him arrange the day's events.

The minutes of the 1925 reunion were read by the secretary. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Lily Hubble. The minutes of the 1974 reunion were then read by Marjorie Rollins and were approved. A committee of five people was set up to be in charge of the memorial fund.

An impromptu program, consisting of three little girls as baton twirlers, Eileen, Peggy and Sharon McCormick, began the entertainment, followed by a poem written by Mrs. Betty Workman and read by Don Runnals.

Prizes were awarded to the person who had a 50th birthday closest to the reunion date, won by Kay Dickens. Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Rollins won the prize for being married 49 years. Doris Rollins won the prize for having the number 50 on the licence plate of her car. The newest married couple was Mr. and Mrs. Bob Kitcher. The youngest girl was Lisa Rollins; the youngest boy was Andrew Treverton; the oldest lady was Frances Harrison; the oldest man was Winnifield Harrison. A special prize was given to Will Rollins, who is 95 years old and has only missed two reunions since 1925.

The lady coming the farthest was Mrs. Orla Bell, of Victoria, B.C. The man coming the farthest was Norman Larsons, of Williams Lake, B.C. Other guests to come, some for the first time, were from Newfoundland, Windsor, Carp, Ottawa, Sudbury, Peterborough, Lakefield, Deep River, Kingston, St. Thomas, Oshawa, Stittsville, Hamilton and the remainder from Hastings County.

A portrait was taken of those who were at the 1925 reunion, showing 35 present at that time.

Games for the children followed and prizes were given to all.

The reunion was closed by the president, Joe Rollins, of Thomasburg, Ont.

54-year veteran opens conference

Rev. W. R. Schamehorn, veteran of 54 years service to the church, opened the annual conference of the Central Canada District of the Wesleyan Church by emphasising the faithfulness of God to him during these years.

Two days of business sessions were chaired by Dr. J. D. Abbott, General Superintendent of Marion, Indiana, assisted by Dr. J. S. A. Spearman, of Belleville, District Superintendent. These were interspersed by devotional periods led by several pastors.

The body was honored by visitors in the persons of Rev. D. Sharpe, of Perth, fraternal delegate from the Free Methodist Church, Dr. Robert Luckey and Dr. Mel Young, of Houghton College, Michael Roorbach, development director of Houghton Academy, and Dr. Ken Gooden, director of the Wesleyan Seminary Foundation at Asbury Seminary, Wilmore, Kentucky.

Services were held each evening. Dr. Abbott addressed the body concerning the progress of the denomination as a whole during the past year and suggested seven anchor points for the church. A new radio effort is being inaugurated "The Wesleyan Hour". Wesleyan Youth are planning to take the gospel of Christ to the Olympics in Montreal.

Reports of the church college and schools were presented by representatives from Houghton College, Houghton Academy, Asbury Seminary and also by two newly-appointed assistant pastors, Doug Spearman, of Ottawa, formerly of Belleville, and Thurland Brown, of Winchester, who are recent graduates of Bethany School, Sussex, N.B.

A retirement dinner was held in honor of eight men whose service totalled 320 years.

The highlight of the conference was the Sunday morning service when two young men were ordained to the Christian ministry. Rev. Lawrence Mack, pastor of the Madoc church, and Rev. Lawrence Sullivan, pastor at Powassan.

Music was provided by Rev. and Mrs. Larry Mack, of Madoc.

While renovating the back part of his house a Madoc Township man, Casey Veerman, found a number of old coins.

The coins, dating back as far as 1852, were all together in one envelope, which Mr. Veerman found on a ledge on a door frame.

There are one-cent coins from Nova Scotia and P.E.I. dated 1864 and a penny from Newfoundland dated 1873 as well as an 1864 one-cent piece from New Brunswick. Other coins contained in the envelope were pennies and half-pennies.

The coins were all in good condition and are expected to be of considerable value.

Doctor consistent guest at Pitts Landing area

As a follow-up to last week's article on the Pitts Landing Cottage and Tenting area, it is interesting to note that one of the most consistent summer guests was the late Dr. Harry Schuhr.

Before his death in May 1974, Dr. Schuhr, of Buffalo, N.Y., had spent his summer vacations at the Cottle Cottage (named after a former bank manager) for over 40 years. He was one of the first guests to take meals at the Pitts house.

In memory of James Pitts' father, on one of his visits, Dr. Schuhr renamed the Cottle Cottage, Arthur Cottage, the name by which it has been known since.

Retirement - disilluioning experience for many Retirement. The word conjures up visions of endless hours of happy freedom. Why, then is it such a disillusioning experience for so many people?

The natural tendency is to look forward to devoting unlimited time to travel, hobbies, grandchildren, sports and entertainment. All of which are enjoyable. But when one actually comes to fill day after day in these ways, life can soon pall. Fulfillment is not achieved so easily.

What's missing, according to the psychologists and human relations consultants, is involvement in interests outside one's self. Taking part in community affairs, charities, church work or worthy fund raising projects offers such opportunities. Can you teach English to a new Canadian? Offer volunteer service to some social agency or hospital? Take a part-time job? There are many other ways by which you can make a worthwhile contribution.

As for hobbies, they can be wonderfully rewarding outlets for one's interests and energies. They can even prove to be the basis of a profitable second career. But to get the most out of any hobby, start taking it up in earlier years. Later, you'll have the necessary skill to allow you to get infinitely more fun and satisfaction out of your efforts. Especially if it's the kind of hobby you can share with others.

Above all, leisure years are brightened by friendships, both old and new, and by maintaining a lively interest in the fascinating world around us. Given reasonably good health, you may well find that the November-December years are the best of your life.

Look out, Joe Wheels - you're driving on borrowed time

Why should Joe Wheels, driving a roaring sports car or motorbike, be allowed to bombard the ears of a peace-loving public? Right now, he's within his rights. But he's operating on borrowed time.

New federal-provincial anti-noise laws are now in effect, or soon will be, as environmental ministries crack down on the vroom-vroom offenders. In fact, all gasoline-powered vehicles will be primary targets of general noise control measures. These will aim both to hush mechanical equipment (particularly those super-loud "mufflers") and curtail show-off driving habits.

How can such laws be enforced? One plan is to set up a portable meter, like an aural radar trap, to record sound levels. Noise-makers who exceed legal limits will be summoned.

However, don't expect that such steps will suddenly bring idyllic quiet throughout the land. To be practical, noise control must be enforced by stages. For while all new motors are due to conform to legal specifications, older motors can't be quieted without costly modifications. Nevertheless, relief from irritating traffic noise is in sight. Meantime, what can be done NOW to reduce its main causes?

Drivers can be encouraged to avoid jack-rabbit starts. And, wherever sound-testing centres are available, drivers can have their vehicles rated and take corrective measures where indicated. Finally, manufacturers of cars and accessories should stop catering to the young drag-racing, Indianapolis-style driver who causes accidents, wastes fuel and shatters eardrums.

This year the Kiwanis Club as usual is sponsoring a fish contest for the largest Maskinonge, Pickerel and Bass caught in Moira Lake during the 1960 fishing season. George Fox is leading the contest with a 30-pound maskinonge. George also landed a 17½ pounder a week earlier. On Wednesday evening, August 3rd, 1960, Linda Fox, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Fox, while fishing with her father, caught a 16½ pound lunge. In the Pickerel division, Ron Labarge of Owen Sound is leading with a 7 lb., 15 ounce beauty. He also caught a 7-pound, 4 oz. Pickerel, while Mrs. Ken Cooke of Brooklin landed one weighing 6 lbs., 15 oz. Bruce Janiak, of Brecksville, Ohio, has credit for the largest Bass, with one weighing 3 lbs., 11 oz.

Several thousand people were present at the highly successful opening of the Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area near Thomasburg on Monday afternoon, August 1st, 1960. Excellent weather graced the occasion, which saw the latest development of the Moira River Conservation Authority duly and truly opened by the Honorable W. M. Nickle, Minister of Planning and Development for Ontario. Assisted by Mrs. Vanderwater, Mr. Nickle then unveiled the plaque which recognized Colonel Vanderwater's achievement in conservation work.

The speaker at the Kiwanis dinner last Friday was Kenneth E. Mara, Doctor of Chiropractic, Toronto. Dr. Mara, who is program director at the Moira Lake Y.M.C.A. Camp, spoke on the benefits received from camps such as the one here. He was introduced by Ken Holmes and thanked for his interesting talk by Ken West.

An inspector of purebred livestock, who has been travelling considerable, has mentioned to many that crops seem extra good in Cooper community and best all-around field of corn he has seen is on the farm of Will Rollins of Cooper. Much preparation must have been given the field to bring such a fine growth.

Gordon Pigden is now leading in the Kiwanis Fish contest for the largest Maskinonge caught in Moira Lake, with one which weighed 18 pounds, 14 ounces. This is the third lunge for Gordon this summer, with the second largest weighing 11¾ pounds.

Bernard McNally of Marmora was the holder of the lucky ticket that won the Lorie watch at the Street Carnival last week. The tickets were sold to raise money for the Madoc Junior Ball Club.

A very pleasant reunion of the members of the Sager family was held at the Old Homestead, now the home of Mr. Fred Sager, on August 5th, 1928. The original intention was to have had a picnic in the fine old wood, but owing to the rainy weather, this had to be abandoned. However, over fifty relatives were present and enjoyed a fine banquet provided by the different members, after which ice cream and fruits were served. The homestead has been in possession of the Sager family for three generations.

Mr. Harry McDonald landed a twenty-four pound maskelunge between the bridges at Moira Lake on Monday, August 6th, 1928.

A tourist from the sunny south came into Deseronto on Monday, August 6th, 1928, with a full equipment of winter clothes. He also had an assortment of sleds, snowshoes, etc. His chief anxiety was to know how it was that "Canadaw" was without snow and ice at this time of the year. He said he was sure that by the time he reached Quebec he would find use for his winter apparel and have a lesson in snowshoeing. ...Ha, Ha, Ha.

Parliament Hill

No Tory 'Moses' is in sight!

By Peter Ward

OTTAWA — (SF) — From now until Parliament resumes again in fall, the country is going to be criss-crossed with progressive Conservative politicians, as a legion of candidates and potential candidates try to drum up support for the coming leadership race.

Not too long ago in the House of Commons, Prime Minister Trudeau made a crack about the poor Tories, who couldn't find anyone half as good as Stanfield. I don't know anyone in the media on Parliament Hill who doesn't like and respect Bob Stanfield. We'll miss him extremely when he goes — and so will the party.

Trudeau was right, though, when he said there would be difficulty finding a man half as good as Stanfield. I don't know anyone in the media on Parliament Hill who doesn't like and respect Bob Stanfield. We'll miss him extremely when he goes — and so will the party.

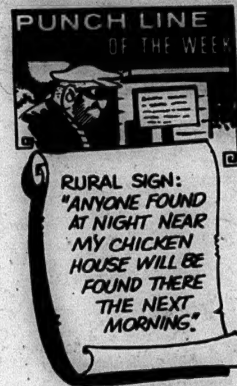

When Stanfield was named leader in 1967, the Tories were electing a Prime Minister, not a gut fighter politician. The election victory which the Tories were sure would come, faded from their grip in the wave of Trudeauism, and Stanfield himself proved to be not enough of a politician to force an earlier election when he had the chance, while ministers of the Pearson government were stamping on each other's fingers in the leadership race.

Now the Tory party is again seeking a man who can lead them to formation of a government, and I suspect they'll be hunting for a man or woman who can out-Trudeau the PM. That would be a dreadful mistake.

The Tories need a man hardened in the fires of politics, with iron determination to follow his principles, capable of giving the country something to believe in.

Right now I don't see such a candidate in the lists — one who can lead the Tories out of the wilderness of opposition. There is just a possibility that as the legion of hopeful candidates stamps the country late this summer and in fall, such a leader may emerge, and if that happens we may once again have a working Parliament with strong opposition.

Constructive use of leisure can improve your health

by David Woods

Whether you pronounce it to rhyme with pleasure or seizure, leisure is extremely important to your health and well-being.

Like its pronunciation, leisure itself is a matter of individual choice. But there's more to it than just slumping in front of the television set with a bottle of beer.

Ideally, leisure should be a change of pace. It should be an opportunity to recharge the batteries; a change to break up the routine. And leisure should be both relaxing and stimulating. But it doesn't have to be extreme; taking a break need be neither a 10 countries in 10 days whirlwind tour of Europe, nor a lotion-daubed, lotus eating lie-in on a beach without moving a limb.

The secret is to make constructive use of leisure time on a regular basis.

After all, most of us need to let off steam . . . to get rid of the pressures of modern living. Trying to do that by using liquor or tranquilizers is a short-term — and not very healthy — solution.

A far more effective approach is to get wrapped up in some activity that's both relaxing and enjoyable — preferably something that contrasts with your work life. For example, the highly competitive executive might be better off painting or sailing than engaging in a sport — golf, say, or tennis — where he becomes furious and uptight if he doesn't win. Similarly, a clerical worker might derive greater satisfaction and benefit from leisure activities requiring leadership skills.

In any event, the point is that many people become so involved in their work that they never get around to its rewards . . . to enjoying the leisure they've earned.

This may be due, in some measure, to a sort of lingering puritanism — the idea that rest is rust. But even for work addicts — in fact, especially for such people — leisure is vital therapy.

A change of scene, new learning experiences, regular vacations, sports and hobbies and reading, or all of these can refresh and invigorate. They can help us back into the normal daily routine with a new outlook, a new spirit.

The dictionary defines leisure as having one's time free from the demands of work or duty. You owe it to yourself to make a healthy investment in that freedom.

The professor's car wasn't damaged after he banged into another at a crossroads. The stranger's car was crushed. "Call me up and tell me how much the repairs cost. I'll pay the bill," he told the distraught motorist. "What's your number?" "It's in the phone book," said the professor. "Well, what's your name?" "Oh, it's in the phone book, too!"

Our long, hot summer!

By BILL SMILEY

SUMMER in the country. Sitting here writing a column in Grandad's office, a pair of shorts, and nothing else, I would have to work very hard at it to be anything but peaceful, and I'm not about to.

Back home, my lawn is burning to a crisp, my roses are dying for lack of water, my cat, with any luck, has left for good, and some junkie has probably broken into the house and stolen the color TV. I don't care.

Out there somewhere, people are hurtling along hot asphalt in the heat, cursing the obstreperous kids in the back seat, and wishing they'd never started this stupid trip.

Elsewhere, guys and dolls all over the world are hustling and sweating and trying to impress each other, and pursuing the ever-dwindling buck with manic intensity of purpose.

Everywhere, politicians are cooking up new clouts for the next session, or thinking up new ways of saying: "Maybe yes, and maybe no, and maybe maybe."

Somewhere, Arabs are killing Jews, and Jews are killing Arabs, and Christians, in time-honored custom, are killing other Christians.

Somebody is winning $30,000 in the Something-Or-Other-Open with a 24 foot putt, and somebody else is losing it by missing a four foot putt.

People are earnestly taking virtually useless summer courses which will fit them for practically nothing.

Unexpected and unwelcome visitors are piling in on "old friends." The visitors unload two surly kids, one ill-mannered dog, and announce heartily: "Can't stay morena coupla days. Thought about gettin' a motel room, but knew you'd be hurt 'I we didden stay 'thyou." (Sound of old friends' eyes rolling.)

My son is in Paraguay, South America, swimming a piranha-infested river, or slouching through the jungle, kicking poisonous snakes out of the way, or lying in a native hut, wracked with by malaria.

My only daughter is trapped in a box on the ninth floor of an apartment building, in the heat, with an 18-month hell-on-wheels boy clutching her sawed-off jeans, and a little sister in the oven, ready to join him just about on his second birthday and oh, dear, isn't it awful.

Imagine having two babies in two years in these times. (Sound of Gran, gnashing teeth.)

And about all of these things, all the hurly and the burly, all the muss and the fuss, all the higgles and piggles, all of the ever-lasting human struggle to prove that God's in His heaven and all's wrong with the world, or the opposite, I don't care.

I just don't give a diddley-dam. Why not? Because, at this time and in this place, I have irrefutable proof that He is in His heaven, and there ain't nobody who could improve on the world just as it is, right now.

It's a cool-hot perfect Canadian day. Hot sun, cool breeze. Whatever your thermometer says, it's about 83 Fahrenheit here.

I raise my head from the typewriter, and roses lean toward me, a big, matronly maple ruffles her bustles in the breeze, like a lady caught in a body-rub parlor.

On the top rail of the fence, 10 feet away, two retarded robins are singing, and making, overtures. A denuded lilac bush is whispering: "Yes, but wait 'til next year."

Along the back fence, the hollyhocks stand, not row on row, but in little groups, muttering together, tossing their heads in the breeze, and looking down their long, cool shoulders at the upstart blue delphiniums, which bear a gleam of miscegenation in their eyes.

Just beyond them is a field of uncut, late, late hay, bowing and tossing and rippling like a blonde teenager who has just discovered she just might be a beautiful woman.

Raise the eyes but one more degree, and there, framed in green foliage, is the deep-blue beauty of the two-mile-wide bay, with the high, rolling shoreline on the other side, and the cottages so tiny that you can't see the squalling, grunting, sweaty humans in and around them.

Ah, but it's lovely. And peaceful. And lonely. Not lonesome, but the good kind of lonely, when you don't want another human being, even a loved one, to spoil the mood.

Maybe that's it. My Loved One is away down the gravel road, exchanging hysterical tales about their children with an old school friend.

Grandad, an incorrigible 83-year-old, is out belting around his 40-mile mail route.

This morning, I saw a hawk. When I was little, the chickens, who were all psyched up, would scuttle, the kids would all scream with delight: "A hawk! A hawk!" and the farmer would run in for his shotgun.

Nobody even noticed this guy. He looked like a skinny, ancient kite, peering down for the dead body of a Roman legionnaire, perhaps. No chickens. No legionnaires (I haven't paid my dues). It was kind of sad.

Down in the Bay, there is a big rainbow trout just waiting to show me some tricks. Yesterday, I saw two partridge flush just outside Grandad's "office" window. Tomorrow I'll see three deer standing up by the fence, looking curious.

Tomorrow I'll care about the world again, and all the bad things and good things happening in it.

But right now, at this time, in this place, I don't care. God may be out to lunch, as I frequently suspect. But whoever is filling in for Him at this moment is doing one helluva job, if you'll pardon the expression.

Samantha READS YOUR STARS

ARIES (3/21-4/19): At beginning of week, you could feel like a stick of dynamite with the fuse lit. Please don't let it go off. It would have very nasty results. Love prospects look excellent if you don't try to rush them. Later, communications on the upbeat with opportunities galore.

TAURUS (4/20-5/20): Being generous in your feelings toward others will prevent you from holding a grudge this week. Speculation may be on your mind — approach with care and good sense. Happy message from a loved one closes your week.

GEMINI (5/21-6/20): Art, beauty and practicality may merge this week for you. Think about a dash of color to brighten something mundane in your home. Midweek sees a burst of energy heading your way, bringing valuable contacts with friends. Cupid could have trouble with his aim, so look for a few ouches.

MOONCHILD (6/21-7/22): A fine beginning to your week. Looks like money coming in, possibly a lot. Then, choose words carefully to avoid misunderstanding. Don't be too fussy. There may be a secret developing in your love life. Week ends with a balancing act, and you're on stage.

LEO (7/23-8/22): A possible problem at home is easily solved if you use wisdom and discernment. There's only one word to describe midweek: fantastic. Love life especially could receive these beautiful rays. Later, work builds your resources.

VIRGO (8/23-9/22): You work so hard to keep your strong emotions under control that you sometimes don't appear to have any. This and being over-critical can drown romance. Take heed, for you may have to deal with these this week.

Several dollops of sunshine brighten your week, and a glowing close arrives.

LIBRA (9/23-10/23): Finances and resources spotlighted as week begins. A helpful friend may be able to give insight into a relationship that has you in a dither. Self-doubt may be raging within; a waterfall of self-confidence comes to wash it away. Duty calls as week ends.

SCORPIO (10/24-11/22): Activity and some changes start your week. Any cloud on your horizon will have a silver lining. Seek it out. Money and friends won't mix now; a gloopy mess would result. Cautious advance aids week to a sipity close.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21): Stand firm this week, Sag. If you're wishy-washy, an opinionated type will get the best of you. Make sure your arguments are grounded in logic to win this one. Luck and love shower you with well-being. A brick wall may be around the curve at week's end.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/19): Activity with a questionable friend may start your week. A bit of good fortune may benefit your home. You can be very persuasive now, so if there's anyone you want to work on, do it. Dash of moonbeams finishes week.

AQUARIUS (1/20-2/18): Week opens with a surprise, whether pleasant or unpleasant is a toss-up. You may find it important to change a few ideas concerning others. Close examination is necessary. A surge of romance picks up end of week.

PISCES (2/19-3/20): Week starts with harmony. Then, opportunity in disguise. Can you see through the mask to the promise it holds? A picky female may wait to burst your bubble. Post guards. Week comes to a mystifying close.

Is it true that Ted Knight of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" is prepping a nightclub act? L. Rosen, Brooklyn, N.Y.

The "toughest reporter on television" already debuted in Las Vegas and in spite of his pleasant personality, bombed. However, Ted has cut a single record, "Hi, Guys", and it should be available at record stores soon.

Will ex-Beatle Paul McCartney ever be in my part of the country on tour? G. Thomas, Toledo, O.

Paul is planning an October tour with Wings and will also be recording with that group for Capitol. They will play either Toledo or Detroit for fans in your area. Meanwhile, another ex-B, George Harrison, is producing a new record of himself in the "My Sweet Lord" vein.

"Tommy" came and went in my town and no one here seems to know for sure who played the role of the acid queen in the picture. I say it was Gladys Knight. Right? T. Murray, Conroe, Tex.

Wrong. It was Tina Turner, of Ike and Tina Turner fame and she says: "I believe the part has given my career a shot in the arm. I think Ike and I are going to be working a lot more." She's probably right because the Hilton Hotel in Las Vegas recently renewed the Turner contract at more money.

Will Raymond Burr be returning to TV with a series now that his health is better? J. Cassidy, New Iberia, La.

Burr does not want to do another series at this time but he will co-host (with an as yet unsigned British star) "The Inventing of America," a two-hour Bicentennial special to be seen in the fall over NBC-TV.

I understand that Sen. Eugene McCarthy vetoed the idea of T-shirts with his name on them. If so why — as it seems a great gimmick? J. Potts, Waco, Tex.

It was the Senator's election committee that objected to the shirts saying it was "an invasion of privacy." However, Houston attorney Richard Hill claims since McCarthy has announced his candidacy, "It's a matter of free enterprise. True, I'm supporting the Senator, but my main purpose is to make money on the deal and 'McCarthy '76' T-shirts will be on the market nationwide soon."

Italian movie not for campaign?

A select cluster of press and politicians gathered in a studio for wine and cheese plus a cosy private showing of a full-color 28-minute film on the exploits of Premier Davis and company during his 14-day visit to Italy last September.

Reports filtering out of that event indicate the film, in both English and Italian versions, is no masterpiece, but no doubt will be useful in the upcoming provincial election.

Along with that film, the viewer receives a 12-page brochure containing 32 pictures—order your eight by 10 black and whites for $1.75 each, folks—which show the Premier in a fashion designed to please even the most discriminating Italian voter.

There he is chatting with dignitaries in Rome, it says in English and Italian; There are children in Termini Imerese waving Canadian flags;

There he is planting a maple tree; visiting the Canadian war cemetery in Agira, Sicily; sitting under a tree, coat off; tie undone on the way to Taormina; being hoisted on the shoulders of happy townspeople of Pisticci; at a private audience (two pictures) with Pope Paul VI; wearing an Alpine hat in Treviso (a regular guy, that); on a gondola ride in Venice; and, at last, on the airplane returning home from what everyone agrees "has been a hectic, but wonderful tour...one long to be remembered."

Funny thing about that brochure. It was produced by Pat Bone, wife of Peter Bone, who, in addition to selling cigarettes, is president of the Italian Chamber of Commerce of Toronto. To get prints you send your money to Leslie Advertising Ltd. in Don Mills. It is, therefore, a private publication, paid for by the Conservative party, not the government. Why then, one might ask, does it have a large trillium on the back cover? Surely it wasn't meant to look like an official government publication?

No, no, says one Clare Westcott, executive assistant to Davis. Nothing political in this at all. The brochure is to be used simply as a guide for those people watching the film. For heaven's sake, if Premier Davis wanted to use the film and brochure for political reasons it would have been produced months ago.

After all, says Westcott, the election is expected soon. How many people can see the film between now and then? There aren't even any extra prints made up, not yet anyway.

One could point out rather unkindly that 28 minutes—down from four hours—is an interesting length for a film. Perfect for service clubs, but even more so for cable television. It even has Canadian content and all that.

But that would be political, wouldn't it? And everybody knows there can be nothing political about a premier of a province making the international stage. After all, with Italians making up such a large percentage of the voters—oops, the general public—what's wrong with the Premier visiting their homeland?

And what's wrong with the government of this province footing the bill for Mrs. Davis and seven or eight others (including Westcott) to go along? The Premier's business is, after all, government business, especially since Davis himself has said publicly the trip wasn't political.

For the most part, the Davis cabinet have avoided 'embarrassing questions'

By Don Fredericks

One of the difficulties a government runs into when it attempts to make the traditionally secretive cabinet meeting open to the public is that the public may ask embarrassing questions.

For the most part, Premier Davis and his gang have avoided that sort of thing in their series of travelling cabinet meetings throughout the province.

Not that it really matters, mind you, these meetings as described by Premier Bill being the only non-political cabinet meetings in the history of the universe.

Rather than politics being involved, not to mention press exposure in areas outside Toronto, these meetings are, according to the Premier, democracy in action, bringing government to the people or whatever collection of superlatives one of his public relations writers can come up with next.

For the most part they've been well attended by the public, as was the one in Peterborough, last week, but they've largely dealt with local items such as bridges and recreation centres, things which can be easily dealt with or not dealt with without attracting much provincial attention.

But along came K.E. Ramsden, 63, general manager of the local Simpsons-Sears store, a retailer for 40 years and an outspoken advocate of uniform store closing hours across the province.

Now there's an issue that people get upset about.

What to do? The province has been wrestling with that one for years. They've even issued a green paper on it, held public hearings across Ontario and still nothing.

Well now, Ramsden played a very nasty trick on the politicians—he actually collected a series of their past promises on the subject and asked them why they hadn't come through.

He pointed out that over the years there have been a series of promises or statements that legislation would be forthcoming soon, or within a month, or more specifically by the fall of 1973, by February 1974, not later than May 1974, and certainly by last October 24.

He even remembered that Premier Davis himself at a meeting November 4, 1974, in Orillia had told Alderman Tom Parrish that the government would deal with the store hours question on the basis of what is logical and politically acceptable and added "I think our studies and deliberations are almost finished." Tut, tut.

Ramsden believes that longer store hours contribute to a breakdown in the family life by taking people away from their families night and day to work and create many administrative difficulties for police and fire protection and generally lead to poorer service.

He sees it as a serious drawback for young people thinking of making a career in the retailing business and said it will result in a lower and lower standard of employee and lead to what he called "an American style, 24-hour-a-day mania."

Premier Davis admitted it's a controversial subject all right and when Ramsden was finished he thanked him for his brief and passed it along to Solicitor-General George Kerr to reply.

After thanking the Premier sarcastically, Kerr pointed out that it is indeed a complicated problem. He says most people in Ontario want some restrictions on big retailers on Sundays and statutory holidays, but added that Sunday is a big day in many tourist areas and there are many married women and students who are thankful for an opportunity to pick up a few dollars working evenings in stores.

Kerr said uniform store hours would affect a lot of people's jobs and shopping habits (he didn't mention votes) but he thinks that perhaps we should save Sunday as what he called pause day.

He hinted he may make a statement soon which might suggest a compromise solution—such as provincially-imposed Sunday and statutory holiday restrictions while leaving the store closing hours for the other days in the hands of municipal government.

The fact is, as Ramsden said, Kerr and several other provincial officials have gone through all that before. As far as anything new, Kerr said "all I can say is right now we're trying to arrive at a final answer."

Perhaps five years from now when Ramsden is back again he can include that quote among his litany of unfulfilled political promises. After all, that's what democracy is all about, isn't it?

One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Such as: It's like looking for a needle in a haystack.

Did you ever try to find a needle in a haystack? To be more specific, when was the last time you saw a haystack? I mean the old-fashioned, piled up haystack, not the piles of baled hay on farms today.

Few young people have but these old-fashioned methods have a way of coming back to haunt progressive farmers. Experiments in the last decade may see the disappearance of the now-conventional hay balers. No matter how easy implement manufacturers make it, haying is a long, tough, back-breaking, finger-blistering chore.

Bales of hay can weigh between 30 and 70 pounds. By the end of the first day of haying, they seem to weigh twice as much. A number of systems to improve the lot of the farmer during the haying season have been tried but manual handling, even with bale throwers, has not been eliminated.

In addition, farmers have been confronted with a severe shortage of reliable farm labor and increased costs for the labor they have been able to get.

Although tainted with a brush that colors them averse to change, many farmers have been looking at highly mechanized, one-man systems for harvesting and handling hay.

The ideal system has not yet been devised but implement manufacturers are coming close and one of these systems uses — you guessed it — the old-fashioned stacking system. One of the fore-runners in the experiments has been the McKee Bros. Ltd. firm right in the heart of southwestern Ontario.

This new system utilizes a forage harvester — shredder, cutter or blower — and a stack-forming unit. The stacker is simply a large forage wagon into which the hay is compressed. The formed stacks can be unloaded and even reloaded for removal to where the stock is located.

McKees have perfected the system to the point where the company has expanded four or five times in recent years. Although the idea has not been accepted to any great degree in Ontario yet, record sales have been chalked up in the plains states across the border.

One of the biggest drawbacks to acceptance in Ontario is the cost. Depending on the system, the farmer must spend between $7,000 and $20,000 for equipment. Unless that farmer can get a great deal of custom work, he'll be a long time baling himself out, if you'll pardon the pun. Farms in the states are usually larger than those in Ontario.

However, with the increased costs of feed grain and a greater emphasis on forage crops, the stacking system will catch on here in a few years.

Another system being tried is called the macrobale in which large, circular bales are made. These bales weigh between one and 3,000 pounds and, naturally, have to be handled by machines with a front-end loader or a bale handler or a bale carrier. Big problem, though, is storage. The handsome, much-used bank barns of Ontario do not lend themselves to this method because a large, single-storey space is needed.

Any method is an improvement over handling bales. And the bales are certainly an improvement over the older methods. I remember helping out on my uncle's farm years ago during the summer. A buckrake was used to move the loose hay to the horse-drawn wagon. The nets were put down on the wagon every foot. At the barn, the hay was gathered in the nets and carried along the track into the mow.

The nets were opened with a trip rope and the loose hay dropped. Operating this trip rope was important. The old farm dog followed the youngsters all over the place. Unfortunately, he always followed us into the barn. At least a half-a-dozen times, the old fool got himself snarled in the trip rope and the hay was dropped in inappropriate places.

Usually, right on uncle's head.

He finally kicked us out of the barn until each load was cleared.

Like I say, any method that can be so easily foiled by a couple of kids and a stupid farm dog is easily improved.

Investigate mulching way to better plants

Gardeners should investigate mulching as a way to produce better plants through the hot, dry summer — especially gardeners who are planning a vacation in July or August.

R.F. Gomme, horticulturist with the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, says: "A mulch can include almost any material which is applied to the soil surface and acts as a barrier to prevent weed growth, but retains moisture and helps to stabilize soil temperature." The mulch should permit the rain to seep through, yet be thick enough to smother weeds. Its depth will depend on the height of the plants, but a depth of 2 or 3 inches will be acceptable in most gardens.

Peat moss, straw, sawdust, grass clippings, cocoa beans and wood chips are popular mulching materials. These organic mulches are inexpensive and easy to work with. Black plastic sheeting or bark chips are more expensive and should be used on special garden beds.

Mr. Gomme recommends that the soil be shallow cultivated and well saturated before the mulch is applied. Spread it evenly, and make sure that it's packed closely to the base of the plants. After the growing season has finished, the mulch can be plowed or dug into the ground to improve the soil for next year's garden.

Potato, Asparagus beetles nuisance

Potato and asparagus beetles are a nuisance to home gardeners, but can be easily controlled, says Professor M.K. Sears, Department of Environmental Biology, Ontario Agricultural College.

The larvae of the potato beetle — properly known as the Colorado potato beetle — feed on the leaves of the plant, causing stunted growth and damage to the tubers. The larva is quite distinctive in appearance — red, with an arched back, highlighted by two vertical rows of black spots.

"Since there are two generations of this insect each year, damage may be continuous all season and no one specific time is best for control," Professor Sears says. "My advice to gardeners is to watch for the beetles and, if the larvae are present, just pick them off."

Grey hair more of setback than long hair

Is society prejudiced towards older people? Generally, people in our society see grey hair as more of a setback to a person than long hair.

Do we spend too much money to cover up age and aging than we do to care for the aged? Think of the money spent on cosmetics, wigs, facelifts and hair dye when it could be put to good use by helping out senior citizens.

What does it mean to be old? How do they maintain their dignity? One thinks that really matters in old age is to have a sense of significance. To feel that you're needed and worth something is what really matters to elderly people.

Working on my Opportunities For Youth history project has brought me into contact with many citizens living in the twilight of their lives.

The problems of our elderly citizens are many. I have learned this summer that being old does neither take away the wisdom of the aged nor cancel the meaning of the major relationships built up over the years, but rather that age deepens the importance of those relationships.

The relating of their wisdom enables us to benefit from the experiences of those who have lived longer than we have.

Each of us should look at how the elderly people are living in our community. If they are typical of the elderly population in the rest of Canada, a very high percentage of them are living on a monthly income of between $180-260 if they are single and $341-481 if they are married.

It can be pretty grim financially, particularly for single people and especially if they own their own home.

About 77 per cent of couples over 65 and 65 per cent of singles 65 and over own their own home. Studies have indicated that many of these people are anxious to stay in their own place, but are having trouble keeping it up. This could mean snow shovelling, cutting the grass, changing the storm windows, keeping the house clean or getting repairs done on the roof or for plumbing. Sometimes the problem is money, sometimes it's finding a person who will help even when there is money available.

Then there are the people who live in a rented room and have little contact with the rest of the world. Are their high, increasing rents taking too much of their set pension income? What do they have left for food, clothing, transportation, recreation or even a gift for their grandchildren? Those who have been able to get into senior citizen homes built by the provincial and federal governments pay rent geared to income for a bachelor or one-bedroom apartment.

What sort of problems do the people in these homes face? Now that their housing problem has been solved, what difficulties do they have in getting out to shop? Will they have convenient transportation? Do they ever get away on a holiday? In some places, summer camps are set up for the elderly but these are usually few and far between.

Listed below are five advantages to old age, but each one has a problem attached to it.

The first is to disengage from work and take life easy. It is accepted after many years of productive living and working that there may be a time when society says to us, "You are valuable as you are. You've done your bit. You are now free to do the things you weren't able to do when so many and so much depended on you."

All too many people believe that a person is valuable only if he is productive. Old people are all too often looked at as useless.

The second advantage is the chance they have now for self-discovery. After years of being on a treadmill of working or supporting and caring for a family, old age provides an opportunity to grow in understanding. Old age involves the problem of what to do with privacy.

The elderly face the problem of fulfilling their spare time and avoiding boredom. Reading, music, art, nature, a quiet, non-opportunistic conversation, the chance to notice people, to enjoy each moment of passing life to the fullest extent are some of the activities pursued by the elderly. Some would welcome the opportunity to be back in the classroom.

The third advantage is the freedom to do the things they wish to do. Old age frees people in that they can say what they feel, do what they feel and be themselves. No longer are they on the shaky ladder trying to achieve success. They are there. That is why many get involved in causes that matter to them. Senior power is a growing reality in this country as older persons are free to choose where they will their energies and concerns to work.

The fourth advantage is the freedom to enjoy friendship. They have the freedom and the time to savor a friendship, to really enjoy it, to distill its meaning and not to have it hurry by as many of us must do again and again. That must be a kind of opportunity and joy.

The number one want on older people is love and companionship. The most important thing we can do for older persons is to visit them, write them, or phone them. Show them that we have not forgotten them.

The final advantage is the wisdom to live each moment of each day to its fullest, realizing that time is very precious.

The number of people in Canada over 65 is about 1.8 million. It is estimated that by 1990 there will be close to three million. Something must be done to make our public and private agencies more aware of what the elderly need. The elderly can be the most effective group to do this but they need help, our help.

The elderly citizens in our society need all the care and consideration that we can give them. They might need someone to organize a group of boy scouts, girl guides or high school volunteers to help with odd jobs once a month. They might need a driver to take someone to a doctor. Maybe someone needs a companion to be with a few hours a day. There is no end to the kind of "family substitute" a volunteer can be to the elderly.

One may have lots of time and money to give or very little of either, but the important thing is to start somewhere in helping the elderly citizens of our community cope with the problems that face them.

Try these three questions:

1 - As you look forward to old age, which of the following dreams excites you:

- a. to travel
- b. to write or paint
- c. to pursue your hobby
- d. to see the grandchildren
- e. to work until the day you die
- f. to just enjoy doing nothing
- g. to pursue your education
- h. to start a second vocation

2 - As you look forward to old age, which of the following things concerns you:

- a. money - not having enough on which to exist

b. health - a long and painful illness

c. loneliness - loss of spouse, family and friends

d. uselessness - feeling not needed by anyone or anything

3 - In your old age, rank 1, 2 or 3 in the order of priority the sources of comfort and joy:

- a feeling of making a contribution to mankind

- the recognition from others of your accomplishments

- the memory of a full and good life

- the anticipation of a larger and fuller life yet to come

- the children, family and friends.

Along with the awards, Mr. Wilson gave a short summary of what was involved in the contest.

allegations

Ontario Solicitor-General George Kerr portrayed federal Labor Minister John Munro as a man making false allegations "during a time of great stress."

He made the charge in a letter to Munro dated July 15 in which Kerr documented offers of co-operation he had given to Munro in the past regarding investigations of the violence-ridden Seafarers' International Union.

He noted Munro had written a letter June 26 to Ontario Attorney-General John Clement claiming the Ontario Conservative government had been deliberately withholding information on the SIU probes in order to "put me on the skewer."

"This allegation that some type of personal vendetta is being directed at Mr. Munro hardly merits a reply," said Kerr.

He released a copy of his reply to Munro in which Ontario's deputy solicitor-general noted as far back as December 10, 1974, that the results of 225 interviews conducted for Ontario authorities by police were offered to the RCMP.

In his latest charge, Munro claimed that it was not until January and February that "you sent your officials to take up this offer of ours which we had made so promptly."

Munro has been on the hot seat in the SIU situation since NDP Legislature member Morton Shulman charged police had wiretapped a telephone conversation in which Munro was offered $500 for his election campaign last year by SIU President Roman Gralewicz.

The money was sent to Munro but he sent it back last September, two months after the July 8 election.

Munro has refused repeated demands by the Conservatives in the Commons to appoint an inquiry into charges of beatings and intimidation surrounding DIU activities.

Munro's senior officials who came to Toronto in January and February could have had all the information they wanted from OPP and Toronto police, Kerr said. He had issued instructions to make it all available, he added.

Concluded Kerr to Munro: "It may be there has been some confusion at the federal level between your ministry and the George Samis, NDP member of the Ontario Legislature for Stormont, came up with a sure fire way to win the Village of Madoc for the NDP in the next provincial election.

Addressing the nominating convention of the new Hastings-Peterborough Provincial NDP Association, Mr. Samis said the key to an NDP victory in the village would be a door to door blitz of the community right after the meeting.

"If everyone here went door-to-door throughout the whole village, right after tonight's meeting, at about 10:30 p.m., and worked right through the night getting everybody out of bed, we would win."

"All we would have to say, when the people came to the door, would be 'Good morning. I'm Joe Smith, campaigning on behalf of your Progressive Conservative candidate, Clarke Rollins.'"

Toronto man killed, three hurt in H'way 7 accident

A Toronto man was killed Sunday afternoon and three other persons are in serious condition following a two-car collision on Highway 7, one mile east of the CPR crossing at Minnesota Minerals. Police said Thomas Hammell, 27, was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident.

Injured in the accident were Charles Carter, 22, of Toronto, in whose car Hammell was a passenger; Maureen Good, 21, of Kingston, driver of the second car; and Victoria Thomas, of Napanee, 20, passenger in the Good car.

All three were taken by ambulance to Campbellford Memorial Hospital. Carter was later transferred to St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto where he was listed in serious condition.

Police said the Carter vehicle had been eastbound when its wheels dropped off onto the shoulder. The car veered across the highway broadside where it collided head-on with the second car in the west lane.

Police estimated damage to Carter's car, a 1975 Corvette, at $6,000, and a further $4,000 to the Good car. Both vehicles were considered totally destroyed in the accident.

Family get together marks Colden's 50th anniversary

A family get together on July 2 marked the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Colden of 104 Forsyth Street, Marmora, who would ordinarily have celebrated on Tuesday of this week.

Because of Mrs. Colden's heart condition their family decided that celebrations should be kept to a family dinner while son Gary and his family of Sudbury were in the area on holidays.

Edward Colden and Aletha Martin were married August 5, 1925, in St. Paul's Church, Roslin, by Rev. H. Pettem. They lived in Roslin for three years, then moved to Rawdon Township where they farmed for 43 years. They have been residents of Marmora Village of the past two years.

It was during their years of farming that Mr. Colden studied the habits of wolves in order to protect his flock of sheep. He became something of an authority on the subject and when he retired was asked by the Ministry of Natural Resources to act as an animal control officer over 32 townships in Eastern Ontario.

Mr. Colden acted as truant officer for the local school board and is still called in on cases by Rawdon Township to give his advice on stock evaluation cases. He served a number of years as the township's representative on the Lower Trent Conservation Authority and for the past six years has been a member of Hastings County Land Division committee.

Aletha Colden laughingly credits the Women's Institute of Roslin with teaching her to cook. She said she and a friend drove three miles in a horse and buggy to attend the cooking lessons in the early days of her marriage.

Now she enjoys the activities of the Senior Citizens Association in Marmora and her work with the A.C.W. of St. Paul's Church where they are members.

They have one daughter, Joy, Mrs. Roy Finch of Bonarlaw and three sons, Ted of Bancroft, Carman of Marmora Township and Gary of Sudbury. There are 12 grandchildren.

Protest year round resort

Reeve Ritchie Wells, Deputy-Reeve John Wilkes and Councillor Ted Bonter of Marmora and Lakes Township Council have accepted an invitation from the Shawano property owners in Lake Township to attend a meeting on Sunday, at 8 p.m., to discuss the formation of a Cottagers Association.

The cottagers are fighting plans by Charlotte Properties Ltd. to develop the area as a year-round tourist resort.

Cottagers' assoc. meets

HAVELOCK—The first annual meeting of the Twin Sisters Lake Association was held Saturday, with 50 cottagers present at the home of Ron Pomeroy and Bazel Barr.

Charles Young began the meeting, acting as chairman.

A letter from John McCarty was read in which he explained the legal reasons for suggested "application for incorporation" and "bylaws" which were included in the letter. Mr. Young then explained that the intern committee has examined these proposed documents and is prepared to recommend the "incorporation" route for the organization.

Advantages for incorporation were discussed, the application was read and agreed to with such minor changes as boundaries.

Charles Young was elected president of the organization; Henry McFarland as vice-president; and as directors John McGregor, Ken Beckett, Dr. D. McAteer, Charlie O'Neil and Ron Pomeroy. Ron Wilburt is acting as auditor.

Also discussed was a bylaw asking for a membership fee of $5 and an initiation fee of $5 a year.

Also discussed at the meeting were how many votes a person owning two pieces of land would get; limiting the motor and boat sizes on the lakes; preparation of a map showing all lots, their owners and approaching rural roads; a central refuse pick-up in the area; a request to the Prince Edward and Hastings county Health Unit for proper inspection of the lakes; the designing of an official seal for the organization; and the cutting of brush along the side of roads down to the lakes.

Charles Young reported that John McGrath, a Marmora councillor, had his home destroyed by fire and a $25 cheque was given in the name of the Twin Sisters Lake Cottage-Owners Association at the benefit party.

Further appointments of officers included Joan Young as secretary and Mr. McGregor as treasurer.

The next meeting will be held the Labor Day weekend at 10 a.m.

The association had approached the Marmora and Lake townships council at an earlier meeting to ask the council to rescind a motion to allow rezoning that would allow a tent and trailer park on Twin Sisters Lake.

The cottagers said there were 19 cottages on each lake and that the area has reached its full capacity. They also felt the transients would not protect the environment of the lake and the surrounding area.

Mrs. Eva Post

Well-known senior citizen mishap victim

One of this area's best known senior citizens, Mrs. Eva Christina Post of 77 Forsyth St., Marmora, died at Belleville General Hospital last Friday evening after being struck by a car on Highway 7 in front of the Reim Tavern. She was in her 82nd year.

Mrs. Post and a friend, Mrs. Gladys Leonard, had parked their car on the north side of the highway and were walking across the highway to attend a reception in hour of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Harris' 25th wedding anniversary when Mrs. Post was struck by a car going east. The driver of the car was Douglas Matthews, 48, of Oshawa. No charges have been laid in connection with the fatal accident.

Funeral service was conducted at St. Andrew's United Church Tuesday at 2 p.m., with Rev. J. M. D. McLeod of Rednersville, formerly of Marmora, officiating.

Interment was in Zion Cemetery. Pallbearers were her six grandsons: Calvin, Harold, Glen, Lloyd and Dale Acorn and Douglas Sheridan.

Daughter of the late John Vansickle and the late former Annie Foster, Mrs. Post was born and educated in Dummer Township. She and her late husband Edmund farmed in Marmora Township before moving to Marmora Village in 1946.

Mrs. Post took a very active part in her church and a number of organizations.

She was a member and organist at Zion Church in Marmora Township; a member of the U.C. W. of Zion and St. Andrew's Church; president of the Marmora Senior Citizens Association for the past seven years and recently president of Zone 18, Federation of Senior Citizens Association; a member of the Marmora Women's Institute; Past Mistress of L.O.B.A. 600 in Marmora and the Crystal Chapter in Havelock; member of the Rebecca Lodge in Madoc; head of the Juvenile Lodge in Marmora; and a member of the Happy Gang of St. Andrew's Church.

Memorial services were conducted by L.O.B.A. 600 and the Rebecca Lodge Monday evening at the Howen Funeral Home.

Deseronto wins gov't aid for water

A new water treatment and distribution system will relieve serious water quality and water supply problems for the town of Deseronto, Environment Minister William G. Newman and Clarke T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings, has announced.

The system is being developed in three stages at an estimated cost of $1.5 million. An Environment Ontario subsidy for 66.5 per cent of the capital cost will pay close to $1 million of this amount. A low lift pumping station and offshore intake into the Bay of Quinte have been under construction since January and are expected to be completed this summer.

The next stage, just under way, involves extending and improving existing water distribution systems. The new systems will meet modern requirements, improve service and provide better fire-fighting capability.

A 650,000 gallon-per-day water treatment plant will replace existing treatment facilities in the town. Tenders for the new plant are expected to be called in September, 1975.

Environment Ontario officials said today that the completion of these works will provide better quality water to the residents of Deseronto, and the extended capacity of the new system will serve future growth and development to meet the town's needs for the next 20 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Wickens and children of Breslau spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. John Wickens.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert McTaggart and Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Holland attended the Martin picnic in Belleville.

Papal Blessing among anniversary highlights

"It was a very warm day just like this," Charles Lajoie, of R. R. 2, Marmora, said recalling their wedding day as he and his wife Hilda celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday, August 3, at a reception in Sacred Heart Church Hall.

The celebration began with their family attending 9:30 a.m. mass at the church.

Rev. T. G. Scanlon, their pastor, presented them with a Papal Blessing from Pope Paul.

A dinner prepared by members of the C.W.L. preceded the reception.

Among the many friends who called to congratulate the happy couple were Hastings MP Jack Ellis and Mrs. Ellis, Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins and Mrs. Rollins and a number of local civic officials. Many lovely gifts, telegrams and cards were received.

Mr. and Mrs. Lajoie were married at St. John the Evangelist Church in Flint. The former Hilda Dion was born and grew up there with brothers Charles and Joseph and a sister Kathleen, now Mrs. Louis Douquette.

One of a family of six, Charles Lajoie left his home in Actinolite at the age of 19 to go to Niagara Falls, N.Y., where he worked as a grinder for the Carborundum Company.

They both remember their first meeting when they were 17 and 16. Charles was working for the county road department and was sent by his boss to have Hilda's mother sew a patch on a tent. Mrs. Lajoie remembers that she and a girl friend who were staying with her at the time were "quite taken" by the young man. The young couple met again on one of his visits home from the U.S. a few years later and were married in six months.

Mr. Lajoie was anxious to go into farming so they purchased a farm in Marmora Township but because the place was rented until the next Spring, the bride and groom returned to Niagara Falls for eight months.

They have pictures of their farm home when they first took possession of it and as it is now. The outlines of the large brick home have been softened with trees, bushes and flower gardens, all testifying to the loving care and hard work the Lajoies have given their home.

Hilda Lajoie ruefully admits the house with its high ceilings is getting to be a bit of a problem for her to keep clean. They said the house was built about 100 years ago at a time when wood was very plentiful and cheap for the door facings are a foot wide.

Six daughters and one son were born to the Lajoies. Albert has taken over operation of the farm now, leaving his parents more time to enjoy their retirement. Their daughters are Marion (Mrs. Stan Packard of Douro), Rita (Mrs. Frank McCarthy of Peterborough), Marjorie (Mrs. Jim Brownson of Marmora Township), Theresa (Mrs. Mark Thompson of Cobourg), Frances (Mrs. Gerry Garrison of Belleville) and Anne (Mrs. Doug Brownson of Bonarlaw.) Mr. and Mrs. Lajoie have 34 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

During the years he was farming, Mr. Lajoie served as president of the Silver Leaf Cheese Company, one of the several cheese factories in Marmora Township at that time.

He took a very active part in community affairs through the years: he has served as a director, president and auditor of the Marmora Agricultural Society, been a member of the Deloro School Board and later the Separate School Board for a number of years and last November was elected to the Marmora and Lakes Township Council, a position he finds very interesting and challenging.

Mrs. Lajoie also has many interests. She is a very active director and member of the C.W.L. of her church and of the Marmora Agricultural Society. She is an annual exhibitor at the marmora Fall Fair and has taken many prizes with her flowers.

"It has settled many an argument" she says of the diaries she has kept since 1930. Even with a busy household to run and seven children to raise, Mrs. Lajoie faithfully recorded events that took place, weather, farm details, etc., through the years. She said her grandchildren love to read her accounts and it is quite often used by her family and even neighbours to settle some date or question that arises.

Hilda Lajoie loves to travel and has been to both coasts. She hopes to see much more of Canada in the next few years. Mr. Lajoie enjoys travelling too but feels he should be at home to give son Albert a hand with the work. Their dairy operation and two or three beef raising farms are the only viable farms left in that area.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Lajoie enjoy the activities of the Marmora Senior Citizens and are regular attenders at card parties during the winter months.

Mrs. Lajoie received their guests Sunday afternoon wearing a pretty floor length turquoise crimplene dress adorned with a corsage of yellow roses.

The three-tier wedding cake which was the focal point of the attractively arranged tea table was made by their daughter Marjorie and decorated by Mrs. Irene Clemens. The cake was flanked by bowls of gold and yellow flowers and gold candles while baskets of red gladioli on the stage formed a pretty background.

Later the family gathered at Mr. and Mrs. Lajoie's home for a smorgasbord concluding a happy and busy day.

Pills or injections?

BY DR. JAMES G. PRICE

Q. I've read that the pills some people take aren't as good for controlling diabetes as shots of insulin, and that people who take these pills are likely to have heart attacks. Is this true?

A. The final answer isn't in on this matter and there are experts in the field with varying opinions. If you are a diabetic taking one of the oral hypoglycemic preparations, I'd advise you to discuss your fears with your physician.

Q. What is meant by the term "biofeedback" and how is it used?

A. If we assume that all of our body functions such as blood pressure, pulse rate, respiratory rate, etc. are controlled by the brain, we can see that certain types of brain activity might influence these functions. The amount and type of brain activity going on at any time can be measured by the electroencephalograph (EEG) which measures brain activity in much the same way that the electrocardiograph measures the electrical activity of the heart. Certain types of brain waves have been found to be associated with variations in the pulse or blood pressure, and some people, by watching the EEG can control the brain waves and hence the rate of their pulse or the level of their blood pressure. Practice will allow them to do this without the need to watch the EEG.

Q. Is it true that the American Medical Association restricts the number of openings in medical schools so that there won't be much competition for patients by doctors?

A. No, this certainly isn't true. The A.M.A. has worked with others to increase the number of graduating doctors each year from about 9,000 in 1965 to almost 15,000 today. The staggering cost of starting a new medical school or of significantly expanding existing schools is probably the single most important limiting factor. The real problem isn't in the total number of physicians but in the distribution of them among the various specialties. There is no doubt that there is a need for a higher percentage of our nation's medical personnel to be functioning in the primary care field.

Tomato preserving

Most home gardeners are thinking red these days. Communist infiltration? No, it's tomato season, and their thoughts are directed at preserving their favorite fruit for eating later.

Tomato preserving takes many forms.

If you're in the market for something a bit different, try drying tomatoes. You need flat trays, preferably with perforations on the bottom; plastic to protect from insects and a warm, sunny day. Plus, of course, a supply of tomatoes.

Blanch these in hot water, then peel and quarter. Remove seeds and press gently to get the water out. Arrange slices in a single layer. You can use glass sheets, old cookie tins or plastic trays and perforate your own for air circulation. Put outdoors -- a screened-in porch that gets partial sun is ideal -- and cover with plastic. Use toothpicks in the corners of trays to keep plastic off tomatoes. Air circulation and warmth go to work, and the tomatoes are ready when they're slightly brittle.

Keep flakes in plastic bags or airtight containers and use in soups, stews and casseroles. They can be reconstituted by soaking in water. Might as well put Mother Nature to work for you.

Some growers report good luck in salting tomatoes away in coarse ice cream salt. They use wooden barrels or tubs, and the heavy salt, sold in grocery stores for ice cream freezers. Layer salt in first, then peeled and quartered fruit. Cover each layer with salt, and repeat until tub is filled. Devotees say tomatoes remain firm and fresh, and need only to be rinsed under running water to brighten fall and winter meals.

The best way to cool a house for comfort is not only to lower the temperature, but to reduce the amount of water vapor in the air. The less humidity, the easier for perspiration to evaporate and evaporation is a cooling process.

Seek local participation in Local Initiatives Program

A $150 million Local Initiatives Program will spearhead the federal program against unemployment this fall. Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras has announced. Last year's budget was $96 million.

This year, projects will start operating around the beginning of November, one month earlier than before. In exceptional cases, a project may be permitted to begin during October.

The primary objective of LIP is to reduce unemployment by inviting Canadians to submit proposals for community projects that will provide jobs. To be eligible, projects must: Create new jobs; provide a worthwhile facility or service to the community without duplicating existing ones; have the support of the community; have a maximum budget of $100,000 ($150,000 for municipal projects); employ only the unemployed; not support leisure activities solely for the sponsor's benefit; not have as its primary purpose the improvement of an individual's property. Last year in Tyendinaga, The Community Association lease-purchased a former school for use as a community centre. LIP funds were used to improve the facilities and plan social, sporting and cultural programs for all ages. A Concerned Citizens' Group, in Coe Hill, worked with the principal and staff of the local school to assist slow learners. In addition to remedial teaching, instruction was also given in crafts. As a result of the initial

As a result of the initial push given through LIP funding, the participants are hoping to establish a full time day nursery with provincial assistance. These are but two of a number of worthwhile projects funded in Eastern Ontario last year.

Applications are available at all Canada Manpower Centres and must be submitted by September 12. There are CMC's in both Belleville and Napanee. In Belleville, the CMC is located at 133 Dundas St., East. An office is also open in Bancroft every other Wednesday, located in St. John's Church Parish Hall on Flint Street.

A public forum is being held at Centennial School, Palmer Road, Belleville on Monday, August 11 at 8 p.m. All aspects of the Local Initiatives Program will be discussed by Barbara Heller, LIP project officer for the area, a LIP sub-regional supervisor and James Fraser, supervisor of operations, Belleville Canada Manpower Centre. The moderator will be Pamela Allan of Cableview 4.

Questions from the audience will be welcomed and it is hoped that anyone interested in LIP will make a point to attend.

Last year, there was a dearth of applications in Madoc, Marmora, Tweed and Stirling. LIP personnel are hoping that, with additional publicity and funding this year, Hastings County residents will be encouraged to find out more about the program and send in their applications.

Plant Manager,
Cavan, Ontario.

Maple Leaf Mills is pleased to announce the appointment of Grant Morrow, Plant Manager of the new Maple Leaf Mills' Cavan Feed Plant, scheduled for completion in the fall of 1975.

Four area residents injured

Four area residents were injured when the car in which they were riding went out of control, hit a culvert and flipped over.

Two ambulances were despatched to the scene and all four were taken to Belleville General Hospital.

The car, reports Constable Norman Papi, was valued at about $3,000, and was a complete writeoff.

Injured were James Moore, 22, of Actinolite, with deep lacerations to his arm and back. James Martin, 26, of 16 James St., Tweed, multiple lacerations.

James Vilneff, 18, of Lewis St., Tweed, lacerations to the hand and forehead.

Edward (Allan) Kehoe, R. R. 3, Tweed, 23, lacerations to the face and arm.

Mr. Martin, report police, was the driver of the vehicle.

Three injured, $1,700 damage

Three people were injured, and property damage totalled $1,700, in a two-vehicle accident at the intersection of St. Lawrence St., Madoc, and County Road 12 last Friday.

Involved were a 1966 Pontiac driven by William Derry, 44, of Madoc, who was eastbound, and a Ford driven by Robert Martin, 25, of 7 Bridge St., W., Bancroft. Damage was estimated at $800 to the Derry auto and at $900 to the Martin vehicle.

Mr. Derry was treated at the Madoc Medical Centre.

Mr. Martin, and a passenger, Marilyn Fuller, 22, also of 7 Bridge St., W., Bancroft, were also treated at the centre.

Police check into 14 accidents

Madoc Provincial Police last week reported a total of 14 accidents, with nine charges laid in connection with the collisions. Damages amounted to $14,740 with three fatalities and 15 persons injured.

Nine reports of theft were investigated; two break, enter and thefts were reported; there were three reports of wilful damage in the area; two disturbances were investigated; there was one complaint of assault.

Area 4-H members honored at dinner

Several area 4-H Club members attended the first Warden's Award Dinner at Mother's Restaurant, near Tweed, last week.

The event was held in honor of 4-H Homemaking Club members receiving country honors in 1974, and the 4-H Agricultural Club members receiving Club Proficiency Awards for 1974.

Each year these award winners are recognized in a special way; previous years involved bus trips, but it was suggested to have the dinner as an annual event.

Doug Tipper, agricultural representative, suggested the dinner be called the Warden's 4-H Award Dinner, and Hastings County Warden Wm. McCrea accepted.

A slide presentation by Mrs. Kae Ann Follwell, home economist, Hastings County, on 4-H activities in the past year, followed the dinner.

Miss Margaret Wilson, United Kingdom delegate for Junior Farmers, from Glasgow, Scotland, showed slides on her home country, farming and Junior Farmer activities.

Winners included Judy Blackburn, Joyce Brownson, Darlene Ferguson, Kathryn Pigden, Sharon Wood, Peter Neal, Gail Bowker, Gary Robinson and Beverley Stein of the Madoc area, Beverley Brooks of the Marmora area, Coll. eenLott, Janice Way, Jill Harrison, Leslie Martin and Katrina Tummon of the Tweed area and Cheryl McCaskie, Arlene Mackey and Winnie Smith of the North Hastings area.

Stirling area winners were Donna Elliott, Marlene Foshay, Joanne Hearn, Wendy Hearn, Linda Hoard, Sharon Lanigan, Linda Rainie, Mary Ellen Thompson and Michael Kerby.

Tamworth man suffers injuries

A 20-year-old Tamworth man was injured when the motorcycle on which he was a passenger went out of control on the Centre Line Road, five miles north of Marmora, last Thursday.

James Bridel was admitted to Belleville General Hospital with back injuries.

The driver of the vehicle, Barry Eden, 16, of Erinsville, was treated and released.

The two were northbound, when Eden failed to negotiate a curve, and the cycle travelled a ways in the ditch, hit a wire fence and threw the occupants off.

There was $20 damage to the fence and $300 damage to the cycle.

IN MEMORIAM

BOOTH - In loving memory of a dear husband who passed away August 8, 1974. He little thought when leaving home, He would no more return, That he in death so soon would sleep, And leave us here to mourn. We do not know what pain he bore, We did not see him die; We only know he passed away, And never said goodbye. Lovingly remembered by wife Margaret and family.

BOOTH - In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Alexander Booth, who passed away August 8, 1974. He had a nature you could not help loving, And a heart that was purer than gold, And to those who knew him and loved him, His memory will never grow old. Sadly missed and always remembered by Pat and Ralph Booth and grandchildren.

SOPHA - In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Francis Ivan Sopha, who passed away August 12, 1974. We watched you suffer, We watched you sigh, But all we could do, Was just stand by. When the time came, You suffered too, For you never deserved, What you went through. Sadly missed and always remembered by Madge and family.

Reid-McMurray reunion held at Gunter Lake

The annual Reid-McMurray reunion was held again this year at Gunter Lake in Mount Zion Camp on Sunday, July 20th. There were 51 present and all enjoyed a pot luck dinner. It was a warm and cloudy afternoon.

Myrtle and Les McMurray were in charge of the races and games, which all enjoyed. It rained for the remainder of the afternoon, but everyone enjoyed a good visit. The passing of Frank Slater was announced with regret.

Everyone sat down to a picnic lunch before starting for home and a most enjoyable day was had by all.

The evening started with a chicken barbecue, followed by a judging class.

At various intervals throughout the program the Gad Guys Orchestra entertained. Chairman for the evening was Douglas Detlor, who welcomed everyone. Gerald Nelson, Area Fieldman, was on hand to discuss the judging and to bring greetings. Hastings County Dairy Princess, Miss Diane Jarrell, gave a brief talk on milk.

Among other speakers were Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P. Hastings, Jack Ellis, M.P., Mayor Robin Jeffrey of Belleville and a young lass from Scotland, who is on tour of Ontario for the summer. Margaret Wilson lives near Glasgow on a dairy farm. Her family owns a 120-acre farm, rents 60 acres and milks approximately 45 head of cattle. Her father is also a cattle auctioneer. In a brief interview with Miss Wilson, she commented on the comparison of arming in the British Isles with that in Ontario. In the British Isles, farms are much closer together, the cities are smaller, more like our villages, basically farming methods are the same as in Ontario. However, she feels that farming is more intensive in the British Isles because of smaller acreage. Margaret noted that the harvesting of crops in much later than here, due to the type of weather they have, consequently making a longer growing season. She found people here in Ontario very friendly and she has found the food different here, as there is a lot of carry-out, but, she commented, meals vary wherever you go.

Harold Detlor and his wife were presented with redwood aluminum lawn chairs on behalf of the Hastings County Holstein Club and Douglas Detlor also expressed his thanks to the younger members of the Detlor families for all their help.

For And About Teenagers

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: I have a problem. My problem is I go out with my friends to have fun but I don't have fun. My friends do but I don't. I try and talk to people but I don't have the courage to talk. Especially to girls. I would like to talk to girls but I don't know what to talk about. Also, when I'm in a crowd I try and talk but it seems like they're not interested. So I'm kind of embarrassed around people. What do you think I should do?

OUR REPLY: If you can really get that you're not having fun—and get into that—pretty soon you'll be having fun. The key is to accept what's really going on and let it be there. Until you do that it won't disappear. Don't assume too much as far as your friends are concerned. They may be going through something similar to your situation but are just better at faking it. Talk about whatever you want to talk about—even to girls! Share and communicate with those people who make you feel most comfortable. And things are not the way they seem—they're the way they are.

GRAVEN IMAGES

They that make graven images are all of them vanity; and their delectable things shall not profit; and they are their own witnesses; they see not, nor know; that they may be ashamed.

Who hath formed a god, or molten a graven image that is profitable for nothing?

Behold, all his fellows shall be ashamed and the workmen, they are of men; let them all be gathered together; let them stand up; yet they shall fear, and they shall be ashamed together.

Ross Baker to contest election as independent

A near life long Conservative has decided to contest the upcoming provincial election as an independent candidate in the Frontenac-Addington Riding.

Ross Baker, 37, a bachelor born and raised on a fourth generation Baker farm near Arden announced his candidacy today.

"I was a federal Conservative until the party kicked out John Diefenbaker, and was a provincial Tory until the Davis government brought in its dictatorial policies.

"I tried on four occasions to win the Liberal nomination for the riding, and on two occasions went to the final ballot, but missed out each time.

"I have concluded that there is good and bad policies in all parties, and have decided to run as an independent in order to have the opportunity to vote for all the policies I feel would be in the best interests of the people of Frontenac-Addington, while being free to vote against those policies which I feel would be harmful to this area.

"I'll be announcing my platform shortly." A graduate from the University of Western Ontario, Mr. Baker is a tourist operator in the Arden area. He sells lots, and rents cottages and tent and trailer campsites, as well as operating stores.

At one time he ran a herd of 99 beef cattle.

He is presently developing a ski hill. The Frontenac-Addington fight now shapes up to be a four-way race, with Dr. Bill Nuttal expected to seek re-election as a Conservative. Liberal and NDP candidates are already nominated.

Hit, run accident brings charge

A Madoc area man has been charged following the death of a 16-year-old Quebec youth on Highway 62, close to a mile north of the Ridge Road, over the weekend.

Dead is Robert Shultz, of 27-16th Street, Roxboro, Quebec, who was found by a passing motorist.

He was bicycling along Highway 62 when he was struck by a car which failed to remain at the scene of the mishap.

Harry John Young, 42, of R. R. 1, Madoc, later phoned to turn himself in. He said he hadn't realized the boy was dead until he heard it on the news.

The youth's parents, who have a cottage in the area, were away at the time - the father in Europe and the mother in Montreal. Both arrived home Tuesday and said they would bury their son in this area because they expect to become permanent residents of the district.

The youth, employed in the area for the summer, was pronounced dead at the scene by coroner Dr. H. G. Parkin of Marmora.

Mr. Young was driving a 1964 Dodge at the time of the mishap.

The damage was confined to a headlight and the windshield, and was estimated at $175. The bicycle was a writeoff.

He died of a fractured skull and lacerations of the brain.

Constable Don Creelman was the investigating officer, and noted with appreciation the help local residents, and the ambulance people, gave the OPP at the scene.

Madoc woman in fair condition Belleville hospital

A Madoc woman is in fair condition in Belleville General Hospital following an accident on St. Lawrence St., Madoc, around 1 a.m., Tuesday.

Susan Maye Armstrong, 25, of Marmora St., was west bound in a 1965 Ford, when the vehicle went out of its lane and crashed into an unattended 1971 van owned by Joseph Rooney of St. Lawrence St., Madoc. It had been parked on the shoulder.

Constable Bill Reed of Madoc OPP is investigating the mishap and estimates damage at $700 to the car and $500 to the van.

$300 damage when car hits tree

Some $300 damage resulted when a car driven by Vincent Healey, 71, of Tweed, ran into a tree about 7.1 miles east of Highway 37 on the Tweed-Marlbank Road around 9:05 p.m. August 5.

The tree had fallen across the roadway, and as it was getting dark and not visible until Mr. Healey was almost upon it, he had almost no chance of avoiding the collision.

Damage to the vehicle is estimated at $300.

Constable Walter Sawkins of the Madoc OPP investigated.

THESE TWO FAMILIAR SMILES will be greatly missed by the patrons of the Madoc Post Office. Cot and Kate Edwards locked the doors of the office for the last time on Wednesday afternoon, August 6.

After 23 years, PM bids farewell

After 23 years in the mail service, Postmaster Cot Edwards has retired from the Madoc Post Office. He said his last farewells to the heavy mailbags, the wickets and the multitude of mail boxes last Wednesday afternoon. Also retiring is his wife, Kate, who has worked in the post office full time for the past 13 years. She worked there four and one-half years prior to that on a part-time basis.

Mr. Edwards was born in England and he left home and came to Canada as a young man in 1926. He was first employed as manager of the Daffoe Hardware store. In 1939 he went overseas for the war and returned to this country in 1946. He worked at the post office on a part-time arrangement for over seven years before he was named postmaster.

Although the couple has made no definite plans for their retirement, they will continue to reside in their home on Highway 62, just south of here.

They have one daughter, Joy, still at home. A student of C.H.S.S., she will be in grade 13 when the fall term begins next month. There are two other daughters, Mrs. Shirley Devolin and Mrs. Grace Gimpel, and two sons, Butch and Bud.

The new postmaster will be Mr. T. Gauthier from Pembroke, while Mr. Les Jackson, from CFB Astra in Trenton is replacing Mrs. Edwards. Mr. Jackson has 22 years experience in the field.

Madoc hits the map again

Bill Hawthorne Jr., Owner-Manager of Crystal Beach Madoc Tent and Trailer Park, informed the Review that WOOD-ALL'S (the World's Largest Selling Camping Directory) gave his camp a three-star rating and the inspectors pointed out that this puts Madoc on their map once again.

Looking at their directory, one can see that there is no other village mentioned between Peterborough and Carleton Place other than the Provincial Parks.

Mr. Hawthorne informed the Review that there have been many changes in the Trailer Camp business in the last five years with great demand for waterfront electric-water hook-ups with shade - 80 per cent of the camp-sites overlook the water. Come 1976, Madoc will have listings in the AAA Guide book - Rand McNally's Guide books and the Provincial Private Parks' Guide Booklets. Mr. Hawthorne feels that these listings are very important to the community and bring 70 per cent of his trade to this area.

A Kaladar family was left homeless Monday evening when fire completely destroyed a house after it was struck by lightning.

The two-storey frame house, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Millard Oliver of R.R. 1, Kaladar, was struck by lightning through the electrical service at about 6:30 p.m. and immediately erupted into flames.

Although all of the available men of the Land O' Lakes Volunteer Fire Department went to the scene one-half mile north of the hamlet on Highway 41, the entire house and contents were gone in ten minutes.

Mr. Oliver was alone in the house at the time, but escaped unharmed.

The building, valued at $30,000, was partially covered by insurance.

Const. George Briggs of the Kaladar Detachment, Ontario Provincial Police investigated.

"Money for Lastman? You have to be kidding!"

Toronto Borough of North York Mayor Mel Lastman whose personal fortune has been estimated at more than $20 million, is upset about being limited to a $1,000 personal contribution for his provincial election campaign.
The limit on candidates' contributions to their own campaign is one of the clauses in new provincial legislation on campaign spending.

Lastman, Progressive Conservative candidate for Toronto Armourdale in the next election, thinks his campaign workers may get a cool reception when they seek donations.

He's afraid those solicited for funds are liable to say: "Money for Lastman? You have to be kidding."

"I never had to go around cap in hand before," Lastman said. "I don't much like the prospect of doing it now."

Garbage is coming up roses.

Twenty years from now, crops growing on recycled garbage will be an everyday sight.

That's pretty hard to imagine right now because most of us think of garbage as just that—garbage. But in fact, it's a potential resource.

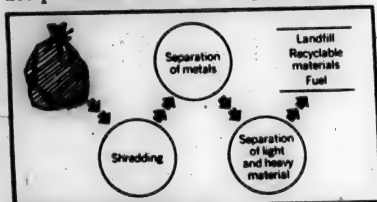

And the Ontario Ministry of the Environment is harnessing it.

How does it happen?

By recycling. Garbage will be taken to recycling centres where it will be shredded, separated, and some of it, turned into fertile soil to revitalize barren areas of the province.

The same basic shredding and separating process will also produce fuel, paper, cardboard, metals.

And we've just begun to explore the possible end uses of garbage.

The system: step by step.

A centre for advanced research will come up with many more.

Where is it happening?

Our Ministry has already inaugurated Ontario's first recycling centre in North York. In the next two years, similar centres will be built to serve London, Sudbury, Peel, Halton, Metro Toronto and south eastern Ontario.

In 15 years there will be recycling centres all across the province to handle 90 per cent of Ontario's garbage—everything from abandoned cars to organic waste.

Why recycle?

Because the people of Ontario—all of us—pile up garbage at three times the rate that the population increases.

The Ministry is working on ways to reduce that amount, but we'll always have garbage. And we're having trouble finding places to put it and the landfill to cover it.

Once garbage is being recycled, those problems will be over. But more important than the dumping problems, we're literally throwing away valuable resources with every ton of garbage we discard.

In a community of 100,000, garbage recycling will conserve the equivalent of up to 3,500,000 gallons of fuel oil a year, 3,600 tons of reclaimed steel, 4,500 tons of glass.

Our recycling program is considered one of the most advanced in the world. It's a commitment to a different way of living.

And the whole world will be watching Ontario's garbage come up roses.

Provincial election campaign underway

APPEARING BEFORE their newly opened campaign headquarters, Liberal Party enthusiasts Lillian O'Connor, Dave Hobson and Jim Watson talk over campaign strategy. Mrs. O'Connor is president of the Marmora and District Liberal Association. Mr. Hobson is the Liberal Party candidate contesting the Hastings-Peterborough riding in the September 18 provincial election and Mr. Watson is president of the Madoc Liberal Association. The campaign headquarters are located on McGill St., Marmora, and opened shortly after the writ for the election was issued Monday. (Review Photo).

Fight-with-Ottawa

In these days of pre-election madness there has been a noted tendency on the part of our provincial cabinet ministers to stir up the age-old fight-with-Ottawa technique in the hope of being seen standing on the side of all that is just and true for Ontario.

As a result, people like Premier Davis who would rather procrastinate than fight, have been heaping abuse on those folks in Ottawa who just happen to be Liberals as well as directors of an alien government. Thus we've seen Davis calling John Turner names for upping the price of gasoline; Housing Minister Don Irvine calling him names because he's not spending enough money for housing; and Treasurer Darcy McKeough calling him names because he likes calling people names.

Even normally affable Health Minister Frank Miller has been heard muttering uncomplimentary remarks about his federal counterparts lately.

In this "atmosphere of manufactured hostility, however, federal Immigration Minister Robert Andras actually found himself welcomed last week in a series of meetings with various provincial cabinet ministers.

Unlike the highly public broadsides against Ottawa, this particular visit was not publicized -- immigration being a tricky human issue.

It's an issue of interest to all Canadians but of particular concern here since 55 per cent of all immigrants to Canada last year came to Ontario.

Andras says the long-range goal of these federal-provincial discussions -- he plans many more with all provinces -- is to set a national immigration strategy which will contain some sort of mechanism to determine well in advance just how many immigrants we need and, hopefully, where we need them.

With the birth rate dropping rapidly across Canada, Andras says the country will ultimately have to depend upon immigration if it wants to continue to grow.

It's obviously an emotional issue for many people, one in which public discussion often deteriorates to name-calling by radicals each practising their own form of racism.

Andras says with unemployment running high in our rapidly growing labor force, Canadians may not be too keen about stepping up immigration at the moment. "but we know that in 10 or 15 years our labor force won't be large enough, and at that time we may want to take a different approach."

"What we hope to do is find some type of mechanism or formula which will help us determine federal-provincial planning in advance."

Andras said there's a provision in the British North America Act which gives provinces a consultative input in immigration policies but, until now, federal ministers haven't practiced it.

Margaret Birch, provincial secretary for social development, has been blamed by Premier Bill as our chief negotiator in the field of demographic concerns about immigration.

She said she was impressed by Andras and "really enjoyed" the meeting.

"It's too important an issue...too it should be above politics," she said, adding, "I might get my knuckles rapped for that."

The thought arises she is not happy, by implication, with the politics of some of her colleagues in their approach to Ottawa.

Mrs. Birch says the problem is finding a mechanism to spread immigration out across Canada, and certainly across Ontario.

But how to do it?

"It's a very, very sensitive area to get into the position of a government being able to direct people where they must go to live...you'd have to get into a contract situation and I see so many headaches I don't know if it would be worth it."

In the meantime, the talks will go on. Andras hopes to have a federal-provincial conference on the question in November and hopes the premiers will talk about it at one of their regular meetings.

Mrs. Birch may well get her fingers wrapped for saying it so soon before an election but the Andras visit was indeed a rare example of federal-provincial co-operation. Obviously that's why the government didn't want anybody to know about it.

Liberals first to open headquarters

Ontario's 1975 Provincial Election Campaign is underway in earnest now that Premier William Davis has set the date for Thursday, September 18.

The Liberal Party, and candidate David Hobson, opened their campaign headquarters on Forsythe St., Marmora, just shortly after the premier's announcement.

It will serve as the centralizing headquarters for the complete Hastings-Peterborough riding.

Other offices, however, are also contemplated.

Mrs. Lillian O'Connor of Marmora is office manageress, and has lined up a host of area volunteers to man the premises. The Progressive Conservative Party, and Clarke T. Rollins, candidate, has announced their riding headquarters will also be in Marmora.

The party has booked the former Plaza Theatre.

The P.C. offices are expected to open shortly.

Mr. Rollins, in announcing the site of his headquarters, named Kenneth Smith as campaign chairman, Don McNevin as financial agent, and Carl Bateman and Keith Brown as public relations officers.

No announcement regarding committee room openings have been made by the NDP or Social Credit parties. Bob Thompson is the NDP candidate and Nancy Arnold the Socred hopeful.

Madoc council holds meet

Several items of business came up at the regular meeting of the Madoc Village Council on Tuesday evening, August 5th, with all members present except Ray Burris.

After the approval of the reading of the minutes of the regular and special July meetings, Mr. Deline reported that the Community Centre and Recreation Committee have decided to defer the construction of a retaining wall at the athletic field swimming area until next year because their allocation for capital expenditure has been reached.

Council considered the request from the County of Hastings for payment of the county requisition in two installments and directed the Clerk to advise the County that they would prefer the present system where the payment is due on December the 19th each year.

A letter from Mr. Jack Ellis, M.P., advising that this year municipalities are being encouraged to participate in L.I.P. programs was received and the Clerk was instructed to make inquiries and report to Council.

Correspondence received and filed were as follows: County of Hastings, C. T. Rollins, the Ministry of the Environment, the Brewers Warehousing Company, Central Mortgage and Housing and P. J. Crabtree, Project Co-ordination Branch.

The Urban Home Renewal program was discussed at length and the Clerk was instructed to contact County Clerk-Treasurer in this regard for additional information.

Opinion.....

A rare politician!

Murray Gaunt is one of those rare politicians who makes life difficult for some in the Queen's Park press gallery who practise the fine tradition of jugular journalism.

A turkey farmer from Wingham and Liberal MPP for Huron-Bruce since 1963, has the disarming capacity of actually speaking openly and honestly about the issues of the day.

Last week Gaunt was in the dining room of the Muskoka Lodge owned by Health Minister Frank Miller relaxing for a few days with his wife and two children before the election campaign begins.

One of the things he got to talking about was the current state of the provincial Liberal party and how he sees its chances in the election expected this fall.

Right off the top, Gaunt says he's optimistic -- "you've got to be in this business" -- and expresses the usual hope for improvement in his party's position, but he leaves little doubt about the realistic chances the Liberals have of forming the next government.

"Obviously a lot of people are unhappy with the Conservatives," he said. "But in order to change things substantially we've got to make major breakthroughs in Toronto and Eastern Ontario and that won't be easy to accomplish."

As Gaunt sees it, one of the main difficulties the provincial Liberals must face up to, is the public identification with and subservience to the federal Liberals.

It's not the kind of thing designed to win public applause from his fellow Liberals -- although many would privately agree -- but it is the kind of thing which in the long run could ultimately give that party a chance to kick out the entrenched Tories.

Gaunt says the LPO (Liberal Party Office) is mainly concerned with federal issues and the federal approach, and while it is a natural thing since the party is usually in power in Ottawa, it isn't necessarily best for the provincial wing of the party.

A case in point, he says, was the whole operation surrounding Prime Minister Trudeau's controversial helicopter to Bob Nixon's farm for an old-time political picnic earlier this summer.

At the time, Liberals were boasting about it and there was talk of a big federal Liberal effort in Ontario to boot the Conservatives out but the controversy over Trudeau's use of an Armed Forces helicopter for personal political gain and John Turner's unpopular budget, have combined to turn the association with the federal Liberals into a nightmare for Nixon.

"A lot of us had reservations at the time," Gaunt said. "But the thing is, we were really never consulted. LPO thought it would be a good thing for Trudeau to drop in on the picnic (good for Trudeau) and they asked him if he would. When he said yes, they phoned Bob (Nixon) and told him Trudeau was coming. That's really all wrong. It should be the other way around."

Ever since the budget, Nixon and some of his provincial colleagues have been scrambling to disassociate themselves with the federal Liberals but Gaunt says, "You can't do that sort of thing. You can't just accept the positive aspects of the relationship and pretend the negative ones don't count."

Gaunt says there's a parallel between the provincial Liberals winning seats in Ontario and those of the federal Conservatives in Quebec.

In Quebec the Conservatives have never organized a provincial party to look after the day-to-day groundwork which is not spectacular but is vital to eventually winning elections.

In Ontario the Liberals have concentrated most of their efforts on the federal scene where they hold power and pretty well left provincial politics to take care of itself.

"It would take awhile but in the long run it would be better for the party if we did have our own separate organization," he said.

While that kind of frankness goes down well with some people, it's not likely the Liberal establishment will be overjoyed but the fact is -- and Gaunt is one of the few Liberals who admits it -- the Ontario Conservatives have always exploited the fears people have that if you vote Liberal provincially, Ontario would end up being run as an adjunct of the federal government.

Gaunt doesn't put it that bluntly but that's clearly his message.

Perhaps when the election is over and the Liberals find themselves in much the same position as they've been in for 32 years, he'll have a lot more open support for the concept of a more independent provincial party. In the meantime, he'll just have to go right on being an optimist.

The Madoc girls' softball team added another victory when they defeated the Marmora girls with a score of 17 to 3.

Earl Armstrong and Hubert Nickle were the fortunate fishermen who landed a 32 pound muskelonge, at Moira Lake. The boys report a real fight; having to use their paddle to stun the big fellow before bringing it into their canoe. The fish was brought to Madoc and weighed in Charles Whytock's butcher shop.

"If counties wish to receive the government road grant they must construct 66 foot roads," says a notice which had been sent out to county councils by the Dept. of Highways. This meant that in many districts a survey was to be made and the farmer's fences moved back.

To give the Madoc Community Centre some much needed publicity and inform the members of the Kiwanis Club what was taking place, Mel Caverly, chairman of the Executive, addressed the club. He mentioned the need for such a centre, the organization and the work that had been accomplished and the reason for the delay during the last few weeks. So far 100 loads of fill had been drawn, a ditch dug across the property and tile laid for drainage. He stressed need for financial help as well as the co-operation and support of every organization in the community, so that a centre could be built here similar to the ones in Tweed and Stirling. Mel was thanked, on behalf of the club for his timely talk, by Ken Holmes.

The Canadian Legions of Tweed, Madoc, Marmora, Havelock, Peterborough, Stirling, Kingston and Belleville, and the Army and Navy Veterans of Belleville, took part in a gigantic drumhead service at the unveiling of a Memorial monument in Tweed. The drumhead service was part of the week-long 60th anniversary celebration in Tweed.

Richard Fox, of Niels, Ohio, while fishing in Moira Lake had the thrill of landing a large black bass. The fish weighed 5 lbs., 10 oz., and was 22 1/4 inches in length. Mr. Fox was leading in the Kiwanis Fish Contest for the biggest bass.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Caverly took part in the large mixed doubles bowling tournament held in Kingston over the weekend and were successful in capturing the prizes for two wins and the highest score. Mr. and Mrs. Caverly were also successful in winning fourth prize with three wins at a mixed doubles tournament held in Campbellford.

The Madoc Fire Hall, Council Chambers and Public Rest Rooms were being redecorated. The work was being done by Ed Alexander and staff.

The draw sponsored by the Madoc Intermediate Ball Club for the doll dressed in 25 one dollar bills was held at the ball park. The holder of the lucky ticket was E. Armstrong of 5302 Dundas St., Toronto.

HE'S A HOCKEY FAN

Excited at thought of mom and dad

Bruce, just turned nine, is excited at the thought of having a mother and father and, he hopes, older brothers and sisters too. He also hopes all these unknown people, whom he is anxious to meet, will let him play hockey.

Hockey is Bruce's favorite but he will play any game available. He isn't very good at games but would be a most responsive son for a father with the interest and the time to play with him and share know-how with him.

Bruce has been in a class for children with emotional problems but will be going into a regular class next fall. He is an average student but lacks confidence in himself. He needs a lot of encouragement and stimulation.

With his brown hair, blue eyes, fair skin and a few freckles, Bruce is an appealing-looking lad. He is healthy and active - sometimes too active. He needs parents who can convince him that he is really wanted and loved. Bruce should be the only child or the youngest by several years.

To inquire about adopting Bruce, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. Big, blustery Eugene Whelan, Canada's minister of agriculture, gets blamed for a lot of things in Canada.

Two weeks ago, egg producers in Ontario were blaming him for suggesting that egg prices would increase as much as 10 cents a dozen. It turned out that Mr. Whelan was widely misquoted by a big city reporter in a big city newspaper.

The misquote caused considerable consternation and added to the already-confused egg marketing hassle in this country.

The contention in this corner is that most big city newspapers don't care a hoot about farmers. They rarely have a qualified farm writer covering the agricultural scene. They are content to pick up stories on the farm scene from outside sources or send reporters out to farm stories who know nothing about farming.

Haynes Davies, public relations director of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, decries the attitude of many of the large urban papers. He has said on a couple of occasions that he gets tired of explaining board policies time and again to green reporters who don't give a hoot in hades about the dairy business.

The attitude is understandable. Only five or six per cent of the population of this country is actively engaged in farming. Circulation is centred in the cities.

But one would think that what happens on the farm which affects the whole consuming public would be important enough to be reported properly.

Some of the larger papers do make an effort such as the Toronto Globe and Mail, the Hamilton Spectator, the London Free Press and the Windsor Star. And especially the Kitchener-Waterloo Record with two excellent farm reporters on staff.

If you want to read about the farm scene, you won't find much in the Toronto Star or the Sun, though.

The action on the Canadian egg scene has been confused enough without making it worse. It is important that consumers are well aware of why import restrictions were placed on eggs coming into Canada from the United States.

American eggs were coming into Canada because producers across the line had millions of surplus eggs to sell. The egg market over there collapsed. Their market was glutted so they banded them across the border into Canada. This, in turn, caused Canadian producers great problems. The American eggs came into Canada at prices that were below the cost of production in both countries.

Why should Canadian egg producers foot the bill for over-production in the Excited States? As Mr. Whelan said, why should Canadians stand by silently and let another country ship its problems across the border? That is why import restrictions—quotas—were set up.

The problem must be seen in perspective. A two per cent over-production in the U.S., shipped to Canada, causes chaos for Canadian producers. It's only two per cent over there but gluts the market here.

Not only that, the over-production shipped to Canada had to be removed from the Canadian market. The removal costs came right out of the producers' pockets. Canadian producers had to suffer the loss when the American surplus eggs were sold to the manufacturing market. In other words, the eggs were bought at a high price by Canadian producers because they were table eggs but were sold by the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency to the manufacturing processors of powder and icing and other by-products at a much lower price than table eggs.

Sounds like a vicious circle, doesn't it? It is. I do not subscribe to all the big papers and I do not know how it was reported but I'd be willing to bet a barrel of horse manure that few city dwellers have been made aware of the problems faced by egg producers in Ontario.

In fact, I'll bet the sweepings from my stable floor that only a handful of Ontario consumers have an inkling of the problems faced by cow-calf producers, hog producers, dairy farmers, cash crop farmers, cattlemen or any other facet of the agricultural community.

Rash of obscene phone calls plagues community

A rash of obscene phone calls in Campbellford was reported last week. Police said some town residents have reported the obscene calls as occurring over the past two months. The total number so far was estimated at 50.

The caller, or callers, police said, have been male, and have called at all hours, one being reported at 5:30 a.m.

Bell Canada tracing equipment has been in operation for the past month but has as yet produced no arrests.

A prerequisite for greatness

By Garnet Pigden

It is self-evident in studying the history of a village that it is the citizens who give the community a good, bad or great reputation.

For the citizens to establish a great reputation of their village they must be loyal servants to their community. It is the people who give a village character, and from my research on the history of Madoc Village I have found it to have an admirable character which was acquired by those residents who possessed that simple virtue...loyalty.

Loyalty represents something vital in life. Everyone has to belong to something. To be loyal is a natural instinct. The person who has nothing to which be loyal, is an unhappy person and must find life exceedingly dull.

Loyalty is not a servility.

But a factor of human dignity.

Loyalty is a precious quality.

Which develops personality.

Patriotism and responsibility.

Loyalty is simply LOVE.

To be loyal is to be involved, in being an active participant in that to which you belong. There are several loyalties beckoning to every person: you can be loyal to your school, your job, your family, your organization, your community and your country.

The devotion to a cause, an idea, a person, or a government is loyalty. When people marry they vow their loyalties... "for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health".

The loyalty among friends is also, a precious quality. It means that when a friend is in need one does not fade out of the picture for the sake of convenience.

Your ability to assist a person when troubles assail him, will establish a firm foundation of friendship. Your loyalty towards a person has not a concrete basis if at the first sign of crisis or character flaw, you dissolve your bond of friendship.

There is a lot of loyalty in Madoc in the enthusiastic form of community spirit. We should all be proud of our village and its heritage. But we should not be biased or prejudice towards other communities whom we feel are not as great as Madoc. Loyalty to our village means that we have a stake in it, and without it we would be lesser persons.

Every citizen has an obligation to the community and to his neighbours to do his utmost for the betterment of the village. Each resident should feel a reflected glory when he learns of the village's accomplishments which may range from a game won by one of its baseball teams, to the success achieved by one of Madoc's sons or daughters, to a well-received social event. The good will and effort of the community members is essential in a good community. Of course, for the village to acquire complete community spirit it has to be worthy of such loyalty, which is obtained by those individuals who contribute selflessly and, who have a high regard for that which they are doing.

Metric to be feature area NDP campaign

Hastings-Peterborough NDPers will be handing out metric conversion cards during the 1975 provincial election campaign.

The association executive, meeting in the Marmora Town Hall last week, decided to emphasize two basic themes during the campaign.

The first is to get the party, and candidate, as noticeable as possible through bumper stickers, lawn signs, metric conversion cards and social events.

The other is to emphasize the wisdom and practicality of the Ontario New Democratic Party's Policies.

To this end, a pamphlet has been ordered, showing how other provinces have benefitted from certain policies the Ontario NDP would enact in this province. One such policy, membership Neil MacLean of Marmora emphasised, is no-fault car insurance which is much cheaper for drivers and is not discriminatory against young people.

Chatterton descendants meet on Island

The descendants of Joseph and Elizabeth Chatterton of Hermon, Ontario met at Zwick's Island, Belleville, on August 10th, with 40 young and old members attending.

The ones coming from the farthest distance were Mr. and Mrs. Orville Chatterton, Carol and David, and also Mother, Mrs. Marshall Chatterton. There are three daughters and one son of the immediate family still living of the nine sons and four daughters.

The couple whose marriage was nearest the picnic was Stephen and Mary Rushlow. The oldest couple married were Walter and Viola (nee Chatterton) Wannamaker. The youngest baby present was Gregory Roland Wannamaker. The oldest lady present was Mrs. Eliza Jane (nee Chatterton) Wannamaker, aged 90 years.

It was a lovely day and all enjoyed a sumptuous dinner. The picnic will be in the same place next year.

Your thoughtfulness and comfort will always be remembered. Special thanks to the LOBA 1193 and the MacKenzie Funeral Home and Rev. E. Hawkes for his comforting words.

Where to find a 10¢ pay phone.

The cost of making a local call from some pay phones in Belleville, Picton, Trenton and surrounding areas is increasing to 20 cents. But there are still 10 cent pay phones around. And we'd like to tell you where you can find them.

The 10¢ Pay Phones

Generally, you'll find these phones on sidewalks, in railway and bus stations, hospitals, nursing homes, rooming houses and churches.

The 20¢ Pay Phone

Pay phones in most other locations, such as hotels, airports and restaurants will go up to 20 cents.

Pay Phone Emergency Calling

At the same time, a new service will be added to all outdoor pay phones. What this added service does is enable you to reach the Operator, Directory Assistance and Repair Service without depositing a coin.

From now on, when you're calling from a pay phone, look for the information card above the dial. It clearly tells you whether it's a 10 cent or 20 cent pay phone.

Lord North, who was very corpulent before a severe illness, said to his physician after the danger had passed: "Sir, I am obliged to you for introducing me to some old acquaintances." Wrong Name

A soldier in the army of the Duke of Marlborough once took the name of that general for his own. The Duke reprimanded the errant warrior who defended himself resolutely: "I am not to blame, General. I did the best I could. If I could have found a more illustrious name than yours I would have used it."

Women & family

Family physician

When does expectant mother know?

BY DR. JAMES G. PRICE

Q. How does a pregnant woman know when it's time to go to the hospital to have her baby?

A. Since it's not uncommon for women to be admitted and sent home the next day with the diagnosis of false labor, the answer to your question is that doctors don't always know! Most women do have contractions during the last few weeks of their pregnancies which don't indicate true labor. Sometimes these false contractions can become quite regular and hard and may easily be confused with the real thing. I tell my patients to try to arrive at the hospital when their contractions are five to six minutes apart, regular, and gradually getting harder. Occasionally even when they do this it turns out to be a false alarm.

Q. At what age should a baby start solid foods?

A. Age alone isn't the determining factor as to when solids should be begun. The weight of the baby, how hungry he seems to be, and the allergy history of the family are also taken into account. There is some evidence to indicate that feeding a baby too much too early can result in excessive weight gain which can create a problem of being overweight for the rest of that person's life. My usual procedure is to start rice cereal sometime after the baby weighs eight pounds and is telling us he's hungry by demanding a bottle every couple of hours. Regardless of what a baby's diet may be — all milk or added solids — if he starts to gain too fast and look too fat, we back down on the caloric intake.

Q. Why is it that many premature babies are given iron supplements when they are sent home while most other babies aren't?

A. During the last couple of months of a pregnancy a baby stores up the iron which is supposed to last for his first three months of life. If he's born before he has a chance to store the needed iron, he won't have enough to supply his growth needs and will become anemic. Since regular milk contains very little iron, a supplement is needed. We see this same sort of anemia develop in babies at three to five months when their food intake is exclusively milk. Some prepared formulas as well as infant vitamins have added iron to help cover this deficit.

Questions to "Your Family Physician" should be addressed to Dr. James Price, c/o this newspaper. Mail volume prohibits individual replies.

Patio tea raises $371. for special care residents

A patio tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff McCaw on Saturday was successful in raising $371 towards the cost of taking a number of special care residents in the area on a bus trip to Bowmanville Zoo and Oshawa Shopping Centre.

The event was organized by Mrs. Myrtle McCaw, Mrs. Violet Lucas and Mrs. Viola Park, but the success of the event was due to the efforts of a number of interested people who donated articles and assisted in many ways.

Tables of knitted goods and home baking were soon sold out. Several people willingly paid to have their fortune told by Verna Stewart. Two draws were made, a quilt being won by Jack Adams of Havelock and an afghan going to Keith Thompkins of Marmora. No date has been set for the bus trip, Mrs. McCaw reports.

Dr. Bette Stephenson, immediate past president of the Canadian Medical Association, is to seek the Progressive Conservative nomination for York Mills riding in the next election.

TWO ACRES

Cabbage-growing experiment working out well

A cabbage-growing experiment just north of Madoc off Highway 62 is working out well for Adam Godfrey, a displaced cabbage-grower from Stouffville, close to the site of the proposed Pickering International Airport near Toronto. He sees no reason why cabbages can't be grown in Centre Hastings and to prove his point while at the same time to make a dollar, he has mechanically seeded two acres of cabbage on his 360-acre farm four miles north of here. He has also planted a good-sized plot of cabbage sets to compare their performance.

On his Stouffville farm, Adam has grown up to five acres of processing cabbage successfully and he thinks highly of the crop as a good cash crop cushion against a bad year in other farm ventures.

Cabbage, which yields 10 to 25 tons to the acre, sold for about $50 a ton last year.

The Godfreys, Adam, Lynnsey and infant son took over their Hastings County farm, formerly owned by Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Robinson, last September. Of the 360 acres, about half is arable, with the rest in rough pasture and bush.

Adam plans to eventually operate an extensive cow-calf or breeding and selling operation on the farm. Presently, he has about 40 head of Herefords and Hereford-Charolais crosses on pasture.

Although the farm soil is good for pasture, hay and forage crops other than corn, Mr. Godfrey says he can't see any reason why cabbage won't grow on it. His aim is to seed 20 acres on flat land near a stream so he can irrigate. All he needs, he says, is the right piece of land and the money to buy it.

The young farmer is hopeful that farm assistance schemes recently announced could be worked into his plans.

With direct seeding, Adam uses an adapted seeder that drills three inches apart. The plants are eventually thinned to 16 to 18 inches, a job which is the major part of the hand work. The rest is cultivating and spraying as often as once a week. This is mechanized. This year, he will be harvesting by hand, but with 20 acres, he expects to be able to interest a processor, like Bick's or Libby's - to bring in a mechanical harvester.

Adam sees a bright future for cabbage growing in the area. He says it is an easy-to-grow, hardy crop that is successfully grown as far north as Alaska.

Canada uses a lot of cabbages - importing something like $5 million worth of them from the U.S. every year, both for the table and for processing into sauerkraut and cole slaw, and there's not one reason why it can't be grown here, according to Adam.

Another plus for Canadian growers is the development of storage techniques similar to those used for apples. Temperature and atmospheric conditions are controlled so the vegetable can be delivered fresh any time in the year.

connection with mishaps

During the past week officers of the Madoc Detachment, Ontario Provincial police, investigated thirteen accidents. Four charges were laid in connection with these collisions. Damages amounted to $10,610, with nine injured and one fatality.

Two persons have been charged with Impaired Driving, and eight persons have been charged under the Liquor Control Act.

Two persons were reported missing, but have been located.

Approximately 43 other occurrences have been investigated, such as trespassers, compassionate to locate and speeders.

Painted scene two years before he died

Thomson death mystery

Two years before he died mysteriously, the legendary artist Tom Thomson painted the scene of his own death on Algonquin Park's Canoe Lake. The painting, which hangs in the McMichael Canadian Collection, is a poignant reminder of one of Canada's great art geniuses.

Thomson died 58 years ago this month and, as one commentator put it, "his life was the pure stuff of legends. Most of his later years were lived alone in the forest. His early death in mysterious circumstances, plus the meteor-like briefness of his dazzling career, combined to turn him into a national icon of art."

The painting is a small oil on wooden panel measuring 8 1/2 by 10 1/2 inches and is one of a series made around Canoe Lake -- a favourite haunt of the artist. It was sketched from a point of land at the north end of the lake where Thomson often camped and where there stands an historic cairn, erected by friends after his death.

The view to the south shows the sear autumn hills of spruce and balsam, birch and pine which still grow to the shoreline. It is painted in a distinctive style which characterized some of his most famous works. The panel shows the islands which figured in the final chapters of the Thomson story, and the vivid, sparkling water where his body was found on July 16, 1917, eight days after he was last seen alive.

Thomson was born in 1877 at Claremont, Ontario and spent his boyhood at Leith, near Owen Sound. The years of his young manhood have been described as indifferent, lacking in a solid direction. He wandered briefly to Seattle, Washington then settled in Toronto as a commercial artist. Well into his thirties Thomson was doing "dull imitative and not very accomplished figures and landscapes...at an age when most artists had already achieved a personal authority of style."

But in Toronto Thomson met and worked with other artists who were later to form the famous Group of Seven, Canada's most powerful art movement -- men whose bold elemental portraits of the country were to give new meaning to the idea of being a Canadian. Among them were J.E.H. MacDonald, Arthur Lismer, Fred Varley, A.Y. Jackson, Frank Johnson, Franklin Carmichael and others.

Thomson made his first trip into Algonquin Park in 1912 when the Park was still remote northern country. By 1914 he began to find the freedom and power, the brilliant colour and forceful brushwork which characterized his art and began to attract some prominence.

In the winter he worked in a weather-beaten shack in Toronto's Rosedale Ravine which once served as a machine shop, preferring it to a spacious and comfortable studio nearby. Today the shack, preserved much as he used it, stands at the McMichael Canadian Collection, a modest building, but one of the most important in Canadian art.

At the shack he entertained his friends; a quiet man to the point of shyness; tall, athletic, his woodsman's stride somewhat out of place in the city environment.

He was an easy-going man but capable of intense feelings toward his art, feeling which sometimes left him nearly inarticulate until he achieved an artistic goal -- capturing an exact colour, an exact mood or scene. Some of the most endearing insights into Thomson were provided by the quick pen of Arthur Lismer, the wit of the Group of Seven, who captured Thomson in simple ink sketches.

Thomson was last seen alive on the afternoon of July 8, 1917, a dull wet day with a brisk northeasterly breeze. He was paddling south on Canoe Lake to fish, he had said, either at Gill Lake or Tea Lake dam. As his life and work captured the imagination of Canadians, his mysterious death was to raise questions for generations.

Exact details vary from witness to witness but in the main there is no dispute with the following facts.

July 8: an upturned canoe was sighted by an American cottager, Martin Bletcher, and his sister.

July 9: the upturned canoe was reported by Bletcher.

July 10: The canoe, Thomson's, was recovered.

July 11: a search for Thomson was started by friends.

July 16: Thomson's body was found near the islands which he had earlier painted and was towed to a small cove and, still lying in the water, was tethered to a tree to await the coroner.

July 17: the coroner, located more than 100 miles away, had not arrived, and Thomson's body was examined by a doctor vacationing in Canoe Lake. Sixteen or 17 turns of fishing line were found around the left ankle. There was a wound on the left temple. Thomson was buried later that day in a small graveyard near the west shore of the lake which contained other graves.

July 18: an undertaker arrived with orders from Thomson's family to exhume the body and ship it home. Unassisted, he completed his grisly task between 8:00 p.m. and midnight.

July 19: a casket said to contain the artist's body was shipped to Owen Sound for a family service.

July 21: the casket was buried in the family plot at Leith, Ontario. The church record notes: "Talented and with many friends and no enemies -- a mystery."

Few of Thomson's friends could accept that the skilled canoeist, woodsman and swimmer could have fallen from his canoe and drowned on a reasonable calm day and within a few 100 yards of shore. No one could explain the wound nor the fishing cord around his ankle.

The night before his death, Thomson had argued with Martin Bletcher about the progress of World War 1. Bletcher, who apparently spent long periods in Canada to evade serving in the U.S. forces, may also have had an interest in Winnie Traynor, a Canoe Lake resident to whom Thomson may have been engaged.

Theories about his death, for these and other reasons, have been many. Nor have the years lessened interest in the mystery.

One theory, widely held, is that Thomson was murdered. Another, that he was struck by lightning -- not so uncommon an accident as might be supposed. Other theories include the views of a mystic that he faked his own death and travelled to the U.S. to join the armed forces after being unable to join in Canada.

Over the years there was also a belief that Thomson's body had never been removed from the Park and the doubts were strong. In 1956 a small group led by Toronto judge William T. Little -- one of the best known of Thomson's biographers and investigators -- located the gravesite in a pine grove on the west shore of Canoe Lake. In it they found a skeleton. The skull showed a wound.

And over the years the legend has grown by reports of canoe parties having seen Thomson.

"I raised my voice and called and waved," one woman wrote about a sunset encounter, "but there was no response, for even as we looked the canoe and its paddler, without warning or sound, vanished into nothingness and on the undisturbed lake were only our lonely selves and the shrieking of a loon."

Thomson has been described as Canada's most important artist. Whatever the ages may decide about his work, there is little doubt, that Thomson's art was a major influence on his friends and colleagues who formed the Group of Seven three years after his death and whose work to this day is a major force in Canadian art.

In the three years when Thomson's art was at its peak, he achieved an astonishing body of work. His large canvases were few but his small oil panels numbered into the hundreds.

Of these, the largest single body -- more than 60 -- are a part of the McMichael

Canadian Collection at Kleinburg, just north of Toronto. His work hangs among that of his friends and colleagues of the Group of Seven and other Canadian masters such as Milne, Carr, Gagnon and magnificent art of Canada's Indian and Inuit.

The work of these artists are dramatically blended with the surrounding hills and the glacial valley of the Humber River. Century-old hand-hewn timbers, native granite and huge expanses of window area, intimately link more than 30 galleries with the landscape that provided the Canadian masters with their inspiration. In the last years of his life, the Collection was the home of A.Y. Jackson, a founding member of the group and friend of Thomson.

Among the thousand and more treasures of the Collection, the small oil panel with the unassuming title, "Islands, Canoe Lake" will, for many, always have a special meaning.

Youngsters hurt

Campbellford Provincial Police last week reported a two-car accident on a private lane in Belmont township in which two children were injured.

Cathy Medcof, 10, of Toronto, and Laura Taylor, 13, of RR 1, Havelock, were passengers in a car driven by James R. Medcof, of Toronto.

BRONSON - In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Nathan Bronson, who passed away August 20, 1965. As time unfolds another year, Memories keep you ever near, Silent thoughts of times together Hold memories that will last forever. Lovingly remembered by Mel, Hattie and family.

IN LOVING MEMORY of a dear daughter and sister, Diane E. Lees, who passed away Aug. 17, 1972. Though her smile has gone forever, And her hand we cannot touch, Still we have so many memories, Of the one we loved so much, She wished no one a last farewell, Nor even a goodbye, She had gone before we knew it, And only God knows why Her memory is our keepsake With which we'll never part, God has her in His keeping, We have her in our hearts. -- Sadly missed and always remembered Mom and Dad, sisters and brothers.

IN LOVING memory of a dear daughter and sister, Diane E. Lees, who passed away Aug. 17, 1972. While you, Diane, Rest and sleep, Your loving memory, We'll always keep Kind and thoughtful in all your ways Sincere and loving in heart and mind, Who ever thought the end was near, And only those who have lost can tell, The pain of parting without farewell, Sadly missed and always remembered Pat and Glen.

O.P.P. hunt teen over armed robbery

Madoc Detachment Ontario Provincial Police are looking for a 17 or 18 year old male in connection with the armed robbery of the Becker's Milk Store on Forsythe St., Marmora, Monday night.

The teen-ager entered the store with a towel wrapped around his head and was armed with a knife.

The only attendant in the store at the time, Mrs. Bertha Coulphrad, of Marmora, stepped sideways away from the till, when she saw the knife.

The youth cleaned out the drawer and escaped on foot with about $250.

Additional money could have been realized had the robbery taken place earlier - money having been removed from the till earlier in the evening.

The theft took place around 9:50 p.m.

Constable Gerald Rollins is investigating the crime and told this newspaper he expected to have "concrete evidence" shortly.

Marmora family buys West Wind Motel, Boutique

Purchase of the West Wind Motel at Actinolite from Mr. and Mrs. Ken Smith was officially announced today by Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Smith, owners of Franklin Tours of Marmora.

Franklin and Doris Smith are anxious to reassure all their customers, many of whom they have come to regard as friends, that even though they have taken over the motel they will continue to operate their travel agency and bus trips. Their headquarters is now at the motel and their new telephone number is 613-478-3130.

The West Wind Motel is located on Highway Number 7, six miles east of Madoc and five miles north of Tweed. It is situated on 13 landscaped acres bordering on the Skootamatta River and has adjoining tourist, picnic and conservation areas. Mr. and Mrs. Ken Smith have operated for the past 16 years.

Not having any children of their own to take over the business, Ken and Jean Smith are delighted that the motel, adjoining boutique and coffee shop will remain in the family with the purchase by their nephew and his wife.

Jean Smith added a Boutique and Gift Shop two years after the original purchase of the motel and soon became known all over Canada and the U.S.A. Later still Mr. and Mrs. Smith added a coffee shop and it has become their custom to serve afternoon tea to their customers.

From the very beginning Jean introduced only those clothes of the finest make, highest quality and newest in fashion. For the past years West Wind Boutique has enjoyed the reputation of giving fashionable advice to women of all ages. She welcomes her niece Doris Smith into the business and they hope to expand in the near future.

Well known throughout the whole of Hastings County for his years of business in Belleville, his political involvement, the year 1971 as Warden of Hastings County and the past ten years as Reeve of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe Townships, Ken Smith is looking forward to having a bit more time to himself. He will be able to relax, knowing that the business he and his wife worked hard to build over the past years will be in the capable hands of Franklin and Doris Smith. Ken and Jean will soon be moving to 459 Moira Street in Tweed and hope their friends will come to visit them there.

Franklin Smith was born in Belleville and grew up in Brighton. During his early years he worked with his father who had a General Motors dealership, and apprenticeship that helped him immensely when he purchased the busline between Marmora and Belleville from Charlie Crawford and later when he branched out into the school bus business and had 26 routes covering Marmora, Madoc, Belleville, Stirling and Tweed.

In 1964 Doris Smith started a travel agency that soon involved them in operating personally conducted tours all across Canada, the U.S.A. including Alaska and Hawaii, and Mexico. Eventually the Smiths found that their business was getting so large that, as Franklin said "I couldn't be in two places at once so we decided to dispose of the school buses and routes and concentrate on the travel business".

Earlier this year their oldest son, Monte, a graduate in business management from Ontario Business College, decided he would like to enter the business and is now half owner of Franklin Coach Line. His parents are grooming him to eventually take over operation of the coach line.

The Smith's second son, eighteen year old Stephen has been assisting in many ways and it is expected that when he finishes school he will work full time in the agency. It's a bit early for 15 year old Craig to know what he would like to do with his life.

Mrs. Smith is the former Doris Cronk and is a graduate of Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing and a registered nurse. She said she feels her nursing experience probably helps to alleviate some of the concern senior citizens have about travelling.

Franklin and Doris firmly believe that it is the personal service they have given their customers that has helped to build their business. Many people have travelled with the Smiths several times and seem to appreciate that little extra something that Franklin and Doris add to make their holiday enjoyable.

Doris hopes that it will be possible for her to continue to be involved with that part of the business but she is also looking forward to their new venture. She realizes that there is a lot to learn about the fashion world which her aunt, with her 35 years of experience, will be able to teach her. Even though Ken and Jean will soon be living in Tweed Jean will be on hand to help with expansion plans and take care of her customers. Mr. Smith will also be within calling distance to give a hand whenever necessary.

The twelve unit West Wind Motel and Boutique will continue to operate on a year round basis, closing for Christmas Day only. The Boutique opens at 9:00 a.m. and closes at 8:00 o'clock in the evening, during which time the Smiths extend a warm invitation for anyone to come in and browse around. They have a great selection of gift items in addition to the finest collection of women's fashions between Toronto and Ottawa. Jean would like to assure her friends and customers she will continue to provide the finest apparel and accessories from the world of fashion.

The coffee shop, overlooking Skootamatta Falls, along with breakfast also serves afternoon tea from 1 to 4:30.

The Smiths are proud of their reliable and competent staff, many of whom have been with them at West Wind for years. All of them live in the area.

Miss Betty Demorest, who has been assisting Franklin and Doris in Marmora, will continue to be employed at their new headquarters. Franklin Tours will still provide wholesale travel tours and have been certified under the new Consumer and Commercial Relations Act recently made mandatory by the Ontario Government.

The Marmora Smiths are uncertain when they will be taking up permanent residence in Actinolite but they are looking forward to keeping in touch with their many friends and customers when they do.

For And About Teenagers

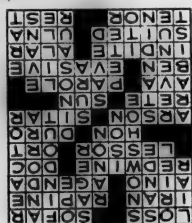

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: I have this problem and I hope you can help. I am 18 and my girlfriend is 17. She tells me that she loves me but she still loves the other guy she was going with. We have been going together for ten months. She says she doesn't know what to do. She loves both me and the other guy. He lives in Arizona and we live in California. She doesn't want to break up with me but she doesn't want to tell me how to make her happy. How could I make her forget the other guy and make her happy with me?

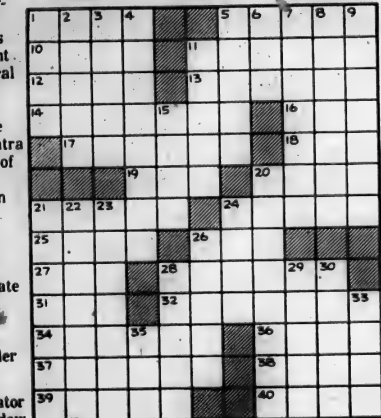

OUR REPLY: Be clear that it's possible to love more than one person. In fact, we all love each other—and spend a lot of time and energy disguising that! The next thing is to realize that you are your own umpire. Simply share your feelings with your girlfriend. She's not going to forget the other guy—neither are you. What you both can do is choose to be with each other. If you're both certain that's what you want, then happiness is just around the corner. If either one of you decides to choose someone else, that's alright too—you're both young with many years and people to come.

Jesus with the Publicans

And it came to pass, as Jesus sat at meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came and sat down with him and his disciples.

And when the Pharisees saw it, they said unto his disciples, Why eateth your Master with publicans and sinners?

But when Jesus heard that, he said unto them, They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick.

KINCAID BROS. Madoc

Returns home from training at Ipperwash

Fourteen-year-old Ronnie Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Adams of Madoc, returned home on Sunday after a six-week training course at Camp Ipperwash, near Stratford.

Cpl. Adams has been in the cadets for two years and was the only member of the C.H.S.S. Cadet Corps to attend the camp. However, two officers from here, and both students of C.H.S.S., were a part of the Camp and will be staying on for another two weeks to finish up business. They are, Lieutenant Charlie Bronson and Lt. Robert Johnson.

Cpl. Adams, a student of Madoc Public School, will be entering Grade 9 at C.H.S.S. next month.

The training program included watermanship, discipline, exercising, survival in the woods, map orienteering and many other aspects of army life. Watermanship covered the building of a pontoon bridge, crossing a three-strand and a two-strand bridge, paddling wrecked boats, as well as canoeing (including portaging and paddling).

The cadets were given a full schedule every day from six o'clock in the mornings until ten at night every day and were always ready for bed at that time. However, they were allowed a certain amount of free social time during the six weeks there.

Although he said he was glad to be home, Cpl. Adams reports that he thoroughly enjoyed his stay at the Camp and said it was a very worthwhile experience. He intends to continue in cadets through his secondary schooling and hopes to some day join the army. Cadets attending the camp were given remuneration for their attendance.

Bedore family discovers home 100 years old

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Bedore of R.R. 2, Marmora, often wondered as they tore out partitions and remodelled the farm home, they purchased in 1944, when the house was built and by whom.

When Betty Bedore answered a knock at her door one day last week she had no idea she was about to find out the answer to those questions.

The young man standing there asked for permission to photograph the house. Before giving permission Mrs. Bedore asked why he was interested in her house. The young man's father then approached and introduced himself as Gabriel Murray and his son, Arthur, of Regina, Sask. He volunteered the information that his Grandfather Murray built the Bedore home in 1875, exactly one hundred years ago. He told Mrs. Bedore that her home was built of hand hewn square timbers; square nails and wooden pegs were used and the whole thing was built for $30.

The house next door was also built by Grandfather Murray and his sons in 1900, Mr. Murray disclosed. This house was recently bought by O.P.P. Constable Norman and Marilyn Papi from Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jamieson.

Madoc area man plans to close area road

A Madoc man plans on closing a public road Friday, August 29.

Peter Yasyszczuk, of RR 3, Madoc, is closing the new roadway at Remington Corners - "at the end of the pavement on Lot E of 19, Concession 8.

"It's still private property," he told the Madoc Review.

He says the County of Hastings obtained the land from him to build the road on condition the county cleaned up the work areas; put fences along the roadway and made a driveway leading to his house.

"But they haven't done it...so it's still my property...private property...and I'm going to close it off."

Mr. Yasyszczuk says he has been in touch with the county engineer, Mr. Pinder, and with the reeve of Madoc Township, Cecil Woods, but can't get anywhere with them. "The reeve says he will look into it, but nothing ever comes of it."

And Mr. Pinder says the McFarlane Construction company was instructed to do it, but McFarlane claims they never were."

He said he has been attempting to get action since the first snow fall of last fall, but as yet - nothing!

"And if I don't get action by August 29, I'll close the road."

How?

"I've got a bulldozer," he says.

Signs will be placed on the road warning of the upcoming closure, and appropriate road closing signs will be placed when and if the road is closed to traffic.

An advertisement advising motorists of same appears in this week's paper.

Gordon James Beattie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Beattie, of RR2, Yarker, has joined the Ontario Provincial Police.

He has recently completed the OPP recruitment orientation course and has been posted to the Sharbot Lake detachment.

Constable Beattie is a graduate of Napanee District Secondary School.

16 fires are burning in area

The ministry of natural resources last week reported a total of 16 fires burning in the townships of Madoc, Elzevir, Grims-thorpe, Abinger, Palmerston, North Canoto, Hinchbrook, Kaladar, Clarendon, Kennebec and Anglesea.

The fires originated from July 29 and all but five were under control. Those five were being currently being kept from spreading.

The fires ranged from 12,000 square feet to 20 acres. Lightning was blamed as the cause for at least five. The largest fire to date was 20 acres in the township of Kennebec.

Some of the fire crews have been working around the clock and the fire hazard was classed as extreme. The ministry has warned campers and motorists to be extra cautious with open fires and cigarettes.

Since the beginning of the season on April 1, the Tweed district has experienced 120 fires.

Provincial sewer grant details are not yet finalized

The proposed expansion of the Madoc water and sewer system under the new provincial program was the topic of a special meeting of the Madoc village council Thursday evening.

Present at the meeting were ministry of environment officials Mr. P. J. Crabtree, project manager, project co-ordination branch, Toronto; Mr. John D. Bishop, operations officer, Kingston; Mr. B. J. Cooper, technical services, Toronto; and Mr. A. E. Symmonds, utility operations officer, Kingston. Also present was Mike Wade from J. D. Lee Engineering.

Reeve Barton called on Mr. Crabtree who stated he had arranged the meeting to discuss the proposed expansion of the systems under a program which will allow municipalities who qualify to retain control of their utility, be responsible for construction and engineering, and, if they operate within the provincial guidelines, receive grants of up to 75 per cent of the capital cost.

Mr. Wade outlined the construction priorities planned by the council, namely a new well, a new storage tank and a main trunk sewer line from Wellington St. and St. Lawrence to the existing trunk line on Seymour St.

Mr. Bishop pointed out the Madoc per capita discharge to the sewerage lagoon is still above normal in spite of a major effort by the village to repair leaks in main and manholes. The discharge occurs during and after every heavy rain, indicating that part of this problem is caused by illegal connection of sump pumps or roof drains.

In order for Madoc to be eligible for the provincial grant, improvements must be made in the per capita discharge to the lagoons or an additional disposal will have to be constructed within a few years. Madoc must obtain a certificate of approval from the province and the ministry officials indicated that the ministry will not approve major sewer works where they have already imposed a restraint.

Members of the council pointed out that the flows are now lower than at any time since the lagoons were installed and claimed that this is because of the repairs during the last two years and that it is their intention to make every effort to improve the situation.

A discussion followed regarding the possibility of ozone gas treatment of No. 2 well to remove the gasoline taste and odor. Mr. Wade agreed to make inquiries into the feasibility and costs of such treatment.

Mr. Crabtree promised to inform the village as soon as more information is available concerning the new provincial program, the details of which have not yet been finalized.

ELECTION - '75

AIDING THE TORIES

All-Star news team works behind scenes

By Donald Fredericks

It seems so obvious that it's right to say, but one of the major concerns facing any political party is to get the most -- and the best -- coverage it can in the news media. That the provincial Conservatives have done the job better than the Liberals and New Democrats is equally obvious, but why they do isn't quite as clear.

Naturally, the media gives more play to government statements than opposition ones, simply because they in fact carry more clout.

But beyond that, there has been a consistent complaint by Opposition members that the Tories have co-opted much of the media coverage by judiciously handing out appointments to boards and commissions to news people as a method of, at the very least, softening press criticism.

It is, of course, true.

Take the case of a volunteer communications group working behind the scenes to promote the Tory fortunes in the September election.

Among members of the group are Joe Mariash, a former CFTO newscaster, now a public relations man for Shell Canada Ltd.; Philip Lind, a vice-president of Rogers Cable TV; Bob Purcell, a former Toronto Star reporter and now a public relations consultant; Philip Stone, a former contributor to CHUM radio; and the Toronto Sun's business columnist John Belanger.

If you think these things happen accidentally, you're wrong.

Take the case of Purcell for example. He was, as I said, a former Star reporter who became personal friends with one James McPhee of the public relations firm of James McPhee and associates. Both men are active in the Toronto Press Club and Purcell, even though he's a public relations man, is now president of the club.

(Incidentally, the government pays the membership for several of its flacks at the press club, including some from Ontario Housing Corp. One wonders why they do if they don't expect benefits in return.)

Meanwhile, back at Queen's Park, Purcell left the Star and went to work for McPhee's public relations firm -- Purcell's wife, by the way, works for the government -- and is now a partner in the firm.

In February, 1974, McPhee was named press secretary to Premier Davis, at $30,000 a year, a job he held until earlier this year, no doubt building up many helpful and influential government contacts.

During his stay with the Premier, McPhee's client list in his firm -- which included Ontario Hydro and the Liquor Control Board -- was frozen.

For many years, McPhee was press co-ordinator for Royal tours in Canada and during the last one, another friend, Star photographer Fred Ross, took leave to be the official photographer for the trip, for which the Ontario Government paid half his expenses.

Although there's no direct connection, Ross' wife, former Star reporter Sally Barnes, replaced McPhee two months ago as a Davis press aide. She is also a former president of the Queen's Park press gallery. Another former president, Peter Jackman, is now Chief of PR for Culture Minister Bob Welch.

McPhee was also instrumental in organizing the Premier's Italian trip last year and, you guessed it, in hiring Toronto Sun photographer Norm Betts, on leave, as the official photographer for the trip.

McPhee and Purcell are now often seen around Queen's Park in their capacity of representing corporate clients, for $1,000 a month, keeping a watching brief on government activities which may affect them. Neat.

But the issue that's involved is one of giving all political parties a fair press -- which is different from a sympathetic press.

There are even reporters at Queen's Park who pick up extra dough writing political speeches, brochures or reports -- not just for the Tories -- and there are others who argue it's a violation of a reporters' civil rights to stop him from doing it.

Perhaps it is a violation but the readers have rights too, the main one being the right to expect a fair presentation of the facts.

That too is trite, but it still isn't very common.

Grit poll shows Liberals in Eastern Ontario lead

There was a resounding note of optimism as Hastings-Peterborough Liberal candidate Dave Hobson officially opened his provincial election campaign headquarters in Marmora last week.

"Not only are we the first party in the riding to open our committee rooms," he noted, "but it looks like we are in the lead in terms of popular support."

He quoted a poll taken by a private organization for the Liberal Party in Ontario as reporting the Liberal Party ahead in Eastern Ontario, as well as the province as a whole.

The poll gives the Liberals 30 per cent of the popular vote, the Progressive Conservatives 21 and the NDP 16.

"This leaves 33 per cent of the people undecided as to how they will vote -- and it will be how this vote goes, that will determine just which party wins this riding, and the province."

Mr. Hobson has been going door-to-door meeting the voters of the riding and has been accompanied by an enthusiastic team of supporters.

"We're getting a good reception; in fact, you might say a fantastic reception," the Liberal hopeful says.

Mr. Hobson's Liberal provincial election headquarters in Marmora were opened within minutes of the issuing of the writ calling the provincial general election for Thursday, September 18.

Lillian O'Connor, past chairman of the Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School Board, has been named manageress of the campaign headquarters, and has lined up a flock of volunteers to look after the various functions.

"I've never seen anything like it," she says.

"Usually, the Liberal party has had to search all over to find somebody willing to do things.

"This time round, people are walking in off the street asking if they can be of help.

"It sure goes to show you that this election is a brand new ball game."

Record crowd for seniors

A record crowd of about 75 Senior Citizens gathered at Price's Conservation Park for their fourth annual corn roast on Wednesday, August 19th.

The weather was very threatening. However, after some discussion, it was decided to go ahead with the plans. Before the corn was ready, the sun was shining and the afternoon was lovely.

Lots of corn, hot dogs and watermelon (compliments of Kincaid's I.G.A.) were devoured in a short time.

Some girls from Queensboro, Lisa and Charlene Devolin and Dianne and Doreen Campbell, entertained with several songs, as well as some acrobatic stunts. The Seniors marvelled at how they did so well, after eating so much.

A short business session followed to discuss up-coming bus trips.

On October 1st the club is invited to Bancroft as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarke T. Rollins, M.P., for lunch at noon and also for a colour tour.

After the Stoney Lake Boat Cruise in July, many voiced their wish to take this cruise again when the leaves are coloured, it being a 2½ hour cruise, instead of five hours.

It was voted to take both trips and it is hoped all members will work together to make both a success.

Anyone wishing to go on both or one of these trips should be at the meeting on September 3rd to register.

NOTICE

TO THE CITIZENS OF MADOC VILLAGE
RE: FIRE CALLS

The citizens of the Village of Madoc are urgently requested to keep themselves and their vehicles out of the way of the fire truck and the firemen when the alarm sounds.

Cars following the truck can seriously add to the danger of the situation as the destination may be on a dead-end street or a one-lane roadway. Should an emergency occur in which an exit must be made or another vehicle must be called to the scene, valuable time would be lost in clearing the roadway of spectator's cars.

The Madoc Fire Department would appreciate your co-operation in this matter.

DONATED BY THE AUTHOR

As we see it....

Madoc fire fighters justified in concern

The Madoc volunteer firemen are becoming very concerned over a problem that has been going on for some time. The problem is the number of people who rush out and follow the truck as soon as they hear the sound of the alarm. As many as 40 cars at one time have been counted following the truck.

This often creates a situation in which there is no escape route for the fire truck should there be need of more water and no entrance-way if another truck or an ambulance is required at the scene. This could result in a much more serious problem than it might otherwise have been.

The firemen acknowledge the natural curiosity aroused by the sound of the alarm, but they would appreciate a little elbow room and free access to the roadway at all times.

Some people think they like to be there in case there is something they can do to help, but don't realize that one of the best ways they can help is by keeping out of the way.

All of the citizens are asked to keep this in mind the next time the alarm sounds.

VIEWPOINT

What is Patriotism?

By Garnet Pigden

What is Patriotism? Perhaps it is best described on the love of one's country. It has produced great and splendid deeds of bravery and of unselfish devotion. Many have died through their dedicated commitment and yet, others have harnessed it to produce great works of art, literature and furthered science.

Patriotism is nothing of which to be ashamed - even if someone calls you "nationalistic". It is founded on valid principles and is supported by great virtues.

We all know that we benefit in direct proportion to what we can give to our country. The words of John F. Kennedy are always inspiring: "The question is not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country."

Patriotism exists in times of tranquility as well as in times of crisis. It does not need an object like an enemy to keep it alive. Canadian patriotism has been of a sober kind, in comparison with that of other countries. Its people's loyalties are not necessarily famed in story and song... but they still lie great in the hearts of all its citizens.

We should remember that when at home and abroad: the love of our land does not suggest despising other lands, any more than the love of one girl means despising other girls. We should all be world citizens.

We have a chance to prove our worth as world citizens next summer when Canada hosts the Olympics. And to show our loyalty we should be supporting the '76 Olympic games. After all, to be the host nation for the games is one of the greatest honours which can ever be bestowed upon a nation. To make certain to all the world that this honour was not unwisely awarded, the Canadian Government should be supporting the event to its utmost and not merely by allowing lottery draws to finance the majority of the expenses. Gambling should not be the incentive through which the games are held, for this world athletic contest is founded on pride and dignity.

In conclusion, loyalty is not just a topic for old folks and gossips to dwell on. It is an urgent need in all life situations here and now; it is an essential asset in all worthy relationships among people.

We as young people are undergoing a crisis of identifications. We have, as no generation has had, freedom of choice. We can decide to play by old rules or make new ones; to be loyal to the things our fathers were loyal to, or seek new loyalties.

Those people who are honest and loyal, upon them will admiration be showered. They have character. They are the backbone of society. They have foundation and are significant in their devotion to duty, keeping promises and faithfulness to ideals.

The latter may not sound as an exciting description of honesty and loyalty but such virtues are not meant to be appealing to fickle persons. However, those who live by these virtues will obtain the perfect values to achieve a successful life.

In practicing these qualities you will have, not only respect for other people, but also an obligation to yourself. This is not selfish, it is survival, and if the Madoc world were full of such people who practiced loyalty and honesty, it would be a fantastic place in which to live.

Miss Lois Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reid, of Madoc, was the lucky winner of a camera. George Maybee, jeweller, gave a coupon with every purchase of 50 cents or over. These were all numbered and one was the number of the prize camera. Lois secured this lucky number and so won the camera.

The following officers and men left for Barriefield, where they were to attend military camp: Batt. Sgt. Major, D. McKenzie; Lieutenants T. Rupert and N. Whytock and Messrs. Bruce Bristol, Ross Sweetman, Everleigh Springham, Edward Foote, Joseph Sharky, Arthur Badgley, Wm. Harper, Colin Daffoe, and Clinton Nickle.

There gathered at Twelve O'Clock Point picnic grounds a jolly crowd it being a Caverly family reunion. About 140 relatives were present. Mr. and Mrs. T. Caverly, and Melburn and Mr. and Mrs. C.I. Ross and Tommy were in attendance from Madoc.

Henry C. Lloyd, 59, of Bannockburn, well-known lumberman, of this district, was killed at 11:30 p.m., August 15, 1951, when his car struck a C.P.R. freight train at Ivanhoe. The freight westbound from Smith Falls to Havelock, was entering a siding at Ivanhoe and was travelling at approximately 3 miles an hour, when the accident occurred. Mr. Lloyd was travelling north down a steep hill when his car struck the front end of a box car, next to the engine. The late Mr. Lloyd was a brother of Magistrate Jack Lloyd, of Northbrook, and of Tom Lloyd, of Bannockburn.

The family of R.R. Hannah, of Cooper, gathered with him at Sables Beach, Oak Lake, to celebrate with him his 92nd birthday. About 40 partook of a sumptuous dinner, after which the afternoon was spent in a friendly chat by the ladies, while the male members tried their skill throwing horseshoes, etc. The water appealed to some of the older ones, but chiefly to the children who spent most of the afternoon in it and with other amusements provided on the beach.

The members of the local Kiwanis Club were privileged to have as their guest speaker Russel Fitzgerald, who was employed by the Carborundum Co., of Niagara Falls, N.Y., gave an interesting talk on the products being manufactured in the department which he is in charge of, and following his address gave each one present a carborundum stone, used for sharpening knives, etc. He was introduced by Dr. Grant Fraser and thanked on behalf of the members by George West.

Moira Lake, long famous for its Maskinonge fishing, continued to produce some excellent fish and gave up the largest of the season when Dr. D.S. Moore hooked and landed a 32 lbs., 10 oz. beauty, which measured 50 inches in length. Doc had been fishing with Ray Parks and was using a red and white plug as a lure when the big fellow struck. A real battle followed and it took an hour and ten minutes to bring the fish in and he didn't give up the struggle until being subdued with the heavy end of a paddle.

Northern Pike were not too plentiful in Moira Lake and it was seldom that one heard the report of one catching one. Donnie Bristol reported catching two within a 15 minute period. Donnie was casting from his dock when he landed one weighing 5 pounds and another weighing 4 1/2 pounds.

The Moira Conservation Authority was to further develop the Price Conservation Area in 1960. The Hon. W.M. Nickle, Minister of Planning and Development, announced a Provincial Grant to the Authority of $225,000, 50 per cent of the estimated costs, to enable fencing, development of a swimming area and construction of six fireplaces at the 13 acre Elzevir Township area.

As you see it...

I question the right of Ontario Hydro to seek higher rates while they continue to export large quantities of power and progressively give the people of Ontario poorer service.

Furthermore, referring to a specific example, the Tweed office of Ontario Hydro refuses on the basis of government of Ontario policy to provide an inch of service down 350 feet of road right-of-way to service my 75-year-old ailing father's farm house while at the same time Ontario Hydro have used this very right-of-way as their only means of service to their existing power line to area cottages for about seven years.

Not only do I question the right of Ontario Hydro to raise rates but also question their moral responsibility in situation that appears to be discrimination against century-old farms in favor of cottagers: Is this our Ontario government's justice and equality?

Thank You,
Ross Baker,
Arden, Ont.

P.S. Furthermore, recently Ontario Hydro decreased from 385 feet to 290 feet of line they will provide for buildings in out of city areas.

Where does the Redd Foxx divorce stand? True he went back to his wife? T. Gary, Youkers, N.Y.

The action has been moved to Los Angeles because the actor proved he is not a valid Nevada resident having not spent six straight weeks there since his series, "Sanford and Son" went on the air. The little girl's father, actor Ryan, is in no hurry to have her pursue her career because she has frankly

Meanwhile, the Academy Award winning child took matters into her own hands by calling her agent Sue Mengers and saying: "Isn't it about time we had lunch and discussed my career?" Tatum insisted father Ryan not come along as she says: "I'll pick my own roles." It will be interesting to see who runs the family — Tatum or Ryan.

One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, PO Box 267, Elmira

"You're right, Dad," said our little eight-year-old cowgirl. "Horses are wonderful but they're stupid, too."

My first experience with a horse was when I was about her age. On my uncle's farm back in those days, tractors were a novelty, not a necessity. He had about four big, plodding work horses with huge, dishpan-size feet and delicate, long feathers from the fetlocks.

One of them was named Dollie and she became my favorite. My cousin and I rode her for miles around that farm and down to the banks of the Scugog River. She had three speeds: slow, damned slow and stopped. The only time her pace quickened perceptibly was when she headed back to the barn.

Then—and only then—would she break into the semblance of a trot. The rest of the time, no matter how we pounded her sides or hit her rump with a willow gad, she plodded solidly along as though plowing a straight furrow.

And that was her idea of things: straight. She knew the shortest distance between two points was a straight line and she would plod through sallygad swamps, sumacs, burdocks and cedar saplings to get to the spot she thought we wanted her to go.

One of the most traumatic experiences of my childhood was seeing a dead horse being pulled out of the blacksmith's shop. A group of us youngsters were cycling past the smithy, the only one left in town when a tow truck pulled up in front of the shop.

The driver, as unfeeling as an undertaker, put a chain around the animal's neck and unceremoniously hauled the big body down the road, dragging it out of sight.

The owner of the animal explained to us that the big gelding was quite old and had died of a heart attack while being shod.

I'll never forget the sight of that horse being dragged "to the glue factory."

An old friend of mine named Sam Endicott, rest his soul, loved everything about horses: the sounds, the smells, the look, the soulful eyes of the better animals, and their feet. I suppose in today's psychological jargon one could say Sam had a horse's foot fetish. He loved their feet and fetlocks. He bought—and sold—horses just by looking at their feet or extolling the virtues of their feet.

My chauvinistic pig of an uncle said that all horses should be viewed just as a man views a good woman: a good chest and sound, straight legs.

I do not, of course, agree with him. Horses aren't people. They are wonderful animals. We have had horses around us for 15 years. We now have three: an old brood mare and two colts out of her which we have trained ourselves.

Although many will dispute it, each of them has a distinct personality. The old mare is as patient as Job.

She knows she is going to get her oats or her pail of water and she stands quietly waiting while her two daughters snort and tramp and fuss until the oat boxes are filled. The other two hammerheads are full of vim and vinegar and will kick water pails over to be the first to get at them.

The four-year-old will feign a bite if she doesn't get preference. But with a saddle on her back, she is willing and eager to please. The three-year-old, her full sister, still tries all kinds of tricks under saddle. If she hasn't been ridden for a couple of days she'll jump and buck for 10 or 15 minutes until she finds out who is boss.

As smart as they seem to be, they can be stupid.

All three of them burst out of the corral yesterday morning when I let the bars down and scared the bejapers out of me. They stormed through the opening and the youngest stumbled stupidly into a post. The post snapped like a rifle shot. The colt stopped, shook her head and ambled into the field making vulgar noises, none the worse for her post-breaking experience.

And just the other evening at dusk she shied five feet when a rabbit popped out of the fence row 10 feet ahead of her.

Stupid? Yes. But it is worth a lot of dollars a year to me to see them cavorting in the back field on a cool morning.

There's something about the outside of a horse that does wonderful things to the inside of a man.

August crucial for raspberries

August is a crucial month for raspberries. Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist J.K. Hughes says steps should be taken after the harvest in early August to help ensure that next year's crop is a healthy one.

"Raspberries are produced only on canes which grew the previous year, and not on the current season's growth. Since the canes die after fruiting, it's a good idea to prune them out after harvest at ground level and destroy them. Weak and spindly canes should also be removed.

"By pruning now, you will encourage a more vigorous growth in the remaining canes which will produce next year's crop," Mr. Hughes says. Next spring a little pruning and thinning will be necessary to set up the plants for the growing season.

Many reasons why lawn grows poorly

Despite fertilizing and watering, many homeowners find that areas of their lawns grow poorly for one of many reasons -- too thin a layer of topsoil, poor drainage, excessive shading, weed competition.

J.K. Hughes, horticulturist with the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, suggests how, after identifying the problem, homeowners can take the necessary steps to correct it.

"For example, where topsoil is shallow, or low in fertility, top dressing will improve the rooting medium, and help to level out slightly uneven areas," he says. Frequent light treatments give best results, and should be spread evenly over the surface, then raked in.

If the topsoil is too thin on your lawn, thoroughly work up the lawn area and add at least four inches of good topsoil, then reseed.

Sometimes only small areas require renovation. "But it is difficult to establish new seed in turf unless the soil is well worked prior to seeding," the specialist adds. With areas larger than one square foot, work up the soil, reseed and keep the area well watered.

Lawn areas that have thinned because of excessive shading should be replanted to a grass that is shade-tolerant, such as one of the fescues.

Stirling area man charged, connection with hit-and-run

An RR 2, Stirling man has been charged in connection with a hit-and-run incident early Saturday morning at the parking lot of the Whispering Pines Motel on Highway 7.

Samuel John Donnan, 21, has been charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident and was due to appear in Madoc provincial court Tuesday.

The charge was laid after two vehicles in the parking lot were damaged.

Police said a pick-up truck belonging to motel proprietor Clark Huffman received an estimated $1,000 damaged while a second car, belonging to John Anthony Redford, of Stouffville, sustained approximately $200 damage.

Donnan, along with Leo Francis Quinlan, 16, of RR 2, Stirling, and John Vanderwater, 20, of RR 1, Roslin, were also due to appear in court on charges of abduction of a juvenile female passenger and theft under $200.

Vanderwater was apprehended in Belleville as he attempted to escape from police by climbing out of a bedroom window.

The theft charges were laid in connection with several articles of food taken from the Whispering Pines restaurant.

Area resident escapes injury when car leaves road

A 20-year-old R.R. 2, Stirling woman narrowly escaped injury when her car went off the road just before eight o'clock Monday morning.

Travelling west on County Road 8, 3.2 miles west of Highway 62, Faith Solmes failed to negotiate a curve with the 1971 Mustang she was driving and hit a telephone pole valued at $100. She was alone at the time and was not injured. Damage to the Mustang was estimated at $2,000.

Const. Norman Papi of the Madoc Detachment, Ontario Provincial Police was the investigating officer.

$1,050 damage to vehicles

A rear-end collision on Highway 7, eight-tenths of a mile west of Marmora Sunday morning has left an estimated $1,050 damage to the two vehicles involved.

Drivers of the vehicles were Jonas Wright, 66, of Queensboro, and John H. Maloney, 67, of RR 1, Havelock.

Police said two passengers in the Moloney car, Donald Moloney, 82, and Vera Moloney, 79, both received a number of cuts and other minor injuries.

Damage was set at $800 to the Moloney car and $250 to the Wright vehicle.

The Wright car was attempting to make a left turn off the highway when the accident occurred.

Auditor's Report Township of Madoc

To the Members of Council, Inhabitants and Ratepayers of the Corporation of the Township of Madoc.

We have examined the 1974 financial statements of the Corporation of the Township of Madoc. Our examination included a general review of the accounting procedures and such tests of accounting records and other supporting evidence as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion these financial statements present fairly the financial position of the Corporation of the Township of Madoc as at December 31, 1974 and the results of its operations for the year then ended, in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted for Ontario municipalities applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

IN MEMORIAMs

NOBES - In loving memory of dear father and grandfather, Samuel Nobes, who passed away August 21, 1960.
Loving and kind in all his ways.
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and kind in heart and mind.
What a beautiful memory he left behind.
Sadly missed and always remembered by son, Lorne, and daughter-in-law,
Maureen, and grandchildren.

NICKLE - In memory of our father,
Albert Nickle, who passed away August 23, 1972.
Dearest Dad, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
Still in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
Years of striving, little of play,
Loving, giving the whole of the way;
A cherished smile, a heart of gold,
To the dearest Dad the world could hold.
You can only have one father,
Loving, kind and true.
No other friend in all the world
Will be so kind to you.
For all his loving kindness.
He asks for nothing in return.
Beside your grave I often stand,
My heart both crushed and sore,
Silent 'til the soft words come:
'Not lost, just gone before'.
God knows how much we miss you.
He counts the tears we shed.
And whispers, "He's only sleeping,
Your loved one is not dead."
Parting ones go with words unspoken,
Life goes on, we know that's true,
But it's not the same since we lost you.
You shared our hopes, our love, our tears.
Thank you, Dad, for those wonderful years.
Always remembered by son, Grant, and Nettie.

IN MEMORIAM

PARNAM, PERCY - In loving memory of a dear husband, who passed away August 24, 1973.

There is a home not made by hands.
Beyond its golden door,
Awaits the one who's now away,
Not lost, just gone before.
And in that home not made by hands,
The Master will prepare
A place for us, and when He calls
We'll meet our loved ones there.
Sadly missed by his wife Audrey.

PARNAM, PERCY - In loving memory of a dear father, who passed away August 24, 1973.

Little we knew when we woke that morn,
The sorrow the day would bring.
The call was sudden, the shock severe,
To part with the one we loved so dear.
God gave us strength to meet it,
And the courage to bear the blow,
But what is meant to lose you, dad
No one will ever know.
You left some beautiful memories,
And sorrows too great to be told,
But to the ones who loved you and lost you
Your memories will never grow old.
Sadly missed by daughter, Colleen, and son-in-law, Jim.

PARNAM, PERCY - In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, who passed away August 24, 1973.

We had a dad with a heart of gold,
Who was more to us than wealth untold;
Without farewell he fell asleep
With only memories for us to keep.
Sadly missed by daughter, Gloria; son-in-law, Angelo; grandchildren, Anna and Angelo Jr.

PARNAM, PERCY - In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, who passed away August 24, 1973.

Gone are the days we used to share,
But in our hearts you are always there.
The gates of memory will never close,
We miss you more than anyone knows.
With tender love and deep regret,
We who love you will never forget.
Sadly missed by son Clifford, daughter-in-law Carol and grandson, Percy Jr.

WISEMAN, GRANT - In loving memory of our son, Grant, who passed away August 18, 1974, and another son, Elliott, who passed away August 1944.

Life seemed to mean so much before.
It's not important anymore.
Since we lost you both,
The strength to face the daily tasks,
Till we are with you both,
Is all we ask.
Much loved and missed by Mother and Dad.

PARKS - In loving memory of Joyce, who passed away Aug. 27, 1970.
To some, you may be forgotten.

OHIP PREMIUMS TO BE INCREASED SUBSTANTIALY???

Frank Miller indicates they might

By Don Fredericks

Frank Miller is one of those free enterprise Conservatives who fought his way through hard times from washing dishes in Gravenhurst in 1942 to a well-to-do resort owner and minister of health.

He is not a career politician -- first running in 1971 at the age of 44 -- and he doesn't really trust those who are.

"There's always the danger if politics is your career that your decisions will be made in the context of how best to get re-elected," he said. "I look at politics as simply a phase, a part of your life to enjoy."

It is in that context then the Miller says quite candidly that not only should OHIP premiums be increased substantially but that it might not be a bad idea to allow doctors to charge patients for services on the spot and let the patients get their money back (or part of it) from OHIP, instead of the other way around.

He says the federal decision to cut back on health costs and eventually pull out of federal-provincial agreements will cost Ontario more than $100 million next year.

That, combined with other increased costs, will mean an estimated $175 million in additional health costs to Ontario next year -- we're spending $700 million this year.

Miller says Ontario has "a lot more physicians than we need" and thinks making people pay directly for services would act as a deterrent for people who aren't really sick but go to the doctor anyway.

"Sometimes I think we're just spending a lot more money on health but we aren't really making people healthier," he said. Last year, Ontario's payout for medical services jumped 18 per cent. Ottawa, under a surprise formula announced in the June 23 budget, will allow a 14.5 per cent increase next year, leaving the province to pick up the rest itself.

(Under cost sharing arrangements, Ottawa pays about 43 per cent of the costs of our medical plan. In less affluent provinces it's considerably higher -- up to about 90 per cent in Newfoundland.)

As Miller sees it, that will leave Ontario with at least $108 million extra to raise from taxes and since we raise about $600 million from OHIP premiums, it would take a 20 per cent hike to keep pace -- that's about $53 for a family.

"Naturally, the final decision on that sort of thing is up to the treasurer," Miller said, "but I would go for an OHIP raise because in most cases the employers are paying all or part of it anyway."

Miller a former car salesman, has been so impressive in his four years here that his name is heard frequently as a potential provincial leader, although he denies he has any interest in staying around long enough.

Miller doesn't always defend doctors, but generally he does. He thinks they're worth the average $42,000 a year they make.

He also thinks they should be given the right to decide who should be charged directly and how much -- "most people can afford to pay more" -- pointing out that doctors have "an enviable history" of looking after people who can't afford to pay.

Miller thinks Ontario will have a major health policy statement soon which, he says, will help isolate those costs which are manageable.

He says it's "good business" to get more people interested in recreation -- a reference to the new culture ministry and Wintario receipts -- "it's cheaper to keep them healthy in the first place."

Ontario is making $9 million immediately available for a wide-range of cultural and recreational activities in the province, says Robert Welch, minister of culture and recreation.

Individuals and community groups are being invited to suggest projects ranging from the purchase of band instruments to arranging historical displays.

The money will come from proceeds of the Wintario lottery and Olympic lottery. The ministry said the province expects at least $20 million from the Wintario lottery this year.

Miller also thinks the province should make some pretty tough decisions about just how many more hospital beds it's prepared to provide.

"It's pretty hard to stay humble when you're a cabinet minister," he said. "There are so many people all around all the time trying to make you feel important. The thing I'm proudest about is that those people who know me say I'm still the same guy I always was."

That's the odd thing about Frank Miller, he really is open and frank. He does express his views candidly whether they're politically acceptable or not and it probably is a good thing he doesn't want to make a career out of politics. If he stayed around too long he'd learn to be political and that's one disease that's incurable.

Madoc was established by men and women who were community minded

By Garnet Pigden

For those of you who are familiar with Madoc's early history, you probably have reached the same conclusion as I have this summer: Madoc is definitely a community of quality and that quality was established by men and women who were community-minded.

I have just finished writing a chapter on personalities of this area and it is self-evident that men like A.F. Wood, John R. Ketcheson, E.D. O'Flynn, Thomas Cross and others put Madoc on the map. Through their labors and aspirations Madoc grew and prospered. They made Madoc a community second to none in my opinion.

A community may be briefly described as a society in which the ideal life of all its members is promoted as efficiently as possible. It is a way of life, it is not merely streets, stores, houses and residents. Its people enjoy feelings of security, pride, self-respect, and hope. It has many different interests: spiritual, cultural, political, business, industrial, educational and social. Its services and organizations are its backbone. It may have a number of problems, such as poor housing, inadequate street lighting, irresponsible government, apathetic citizens and a lack of some modern conveniences, but the good community is always working to right the wrongs.

However, before a good community is founded, people like our steadfast pioneers, must be eager and willing to work together toward solving the problems. They must be willing to make use of the potential resources existing within the community and they must learn as one body how to constructively employ these assets.

Being community-minded is not a trite experiment yielding no positive conclusions. It is, rather, a mature negotiation with like-minded people who wish to lead happy social lives.

It is a well-known fact that man is a gregarious animal. He must mingle with others of his kind. His need is met in numerous ways. He may be on the community council, a member of a lodge or a committee, or perhaps he is part of a team or club competing with like bodies from other communities. In a small way the spirit of the community is shown by the children of the village who do not care about who is the best hockey or baseball player in the world, but who is the best in their community.

One of the finest experiences in living is liking people and wanting to share with them. Then we worship with others, or feel compassion for others, when we gather to support our local teams, when we collaborate with neighbors to reason things out, to pursue ideas, to assist the needy, to pay tribute to community members, to co-operate in building a better community, our behaviour is worthy of our status as human beings.

But it is not enough that members of the community strive to do what is right: they must be governed by rules. If everyone practised the Golden Rule, Do Unto Others As You Would Have Them Do Unto You, there would be no need for laws. Man is unable to live in this fashion and that is why he appoints law enforcers as if to say, "When I'm difficult, and do not see things as I should, please place in proper perspective."

Television programs and movies sometimes immortalize the man who, in seeking justice, takes the law into his own hands, after becoming frustrated at the law's inability to punish. We should be wary of the influence of the media and should not follow the philosophy of revenge.

In a report entitled "Defiance of Law", Leonard E. Read, president of the Foundation for Economic Education in New York, had this to say: "Man is a social as well as an individualistic being. An agency, representing the social side of man - government - is, to my way of thinking, an absolute necessity. It is unthinkable that the social phase of human beings can be attended to by each individual acting as his own gun-toting constable, each a law unto himself, nothing over and beyond personal caprice...I have been cast into a dual role, an individual within society, that society good, bad or indifferent. And its problems are no less mine than anyone else's. To run away from social responsibility is as devolutionary as to renounce self-responsibility."

In addition to law and the institutions which we have established to maintain it, we must not be blind to the laws governing everyday living. Respect, appreciation, flexibility, and good will are laws of order which are not represented on paper and enforced by persons of authority, but are virtues which should be practised automatically. Our religious institutions and our families are instrumental in developing these fundamental values.

The institution of the family has undergone many changes in the past few years as more outside attractions steal away members of the family. And yet, despite the different interests pointing parents and children in different directions, the family is still the basis of learning. There may be schools, organizations and clubs that profess that they can teach a child everything he needs to know to cope with crises in today's society, but they can never replace the love, understanding and development of values that are taught within the family. The parent's beliefs and their emphasis on trust, hope, honesty and loyalty are powerful forces toward the development of good citizenship.

In a large society many people are going to be unfortunate victims of unavoidable circumstances and it is the duty of those who are more fortunate to lend assistance.

Membership in a community involves a measure of commitment. We cannot escape from the responsibilities we have as members. It is ludicrous for someone to say that his help or presence wouldn't make any difference to the outcome. For everyone's interest does make a difference and everyone can become, through action and not just words, part of a vibrant community.

If there is a gamble at becoming involved in the community, then you should see it as a challenge. Perhaps the risk in some cases may appear great but in truth the odds are stacked in your favor and the pay-off is very satisfying. It is a basic fact of life that the unifying self is the unfulfilled self.

The good citizen will get to know his neighbors and take part with them in the life and welfare of the community. Through his concerns he will be able to make his home and his neighbor a credit to the village.

Citizen intelligence is based on interest and action and forms the roots of our democratic society. A knowledgeable citizen will not be swayed into supporting questionable causes. He will avoid the mania of the crowd and their short-sightedness which are the spring boards to defiance and corruption.

Those persons in authority in the community owe it to the residents to inform them of their actions and allow the residents to take part in the plans. Perhaps the Ombudsman idea could be implemented, not only by the members of the clergy, but also by clubs, committees and individuals who wish to improve the community.

The schools could be made centres of intellectual stimulation. It is important that the members of the community do not close their minds when they close their books upon completing their formal education. Continuing education should be of prime importance and the benefits from such a program will be a larger thinking ability and the capacity for rational action.

The citizen's council is an essential tool in building a problem-solving community. The council allows the citizens to become part of the machinery involved in accomplishing constructive change.

There is no doubt that even though the emphasis today is on production and the big cities make the headlines, Canada's small rural communities filled with community-minded people are its greatest possession.

Christ in Jerusalem

And Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers, and the seats of them that sold doves.

And said unto them, It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves.

And the blind and the lame came to him in the temple; and he healed them.

Fire hits old station

Sixteen men and one pumper from the Madoc fire department fought a blaze for 1 1/4 hours early Saturday evening in a building on the west end of the village.

The building, a former railroad station, is owned by Canada Talc Industries Ltd., approximately 1 1/4 miles from the site. It was being used for storage at the time of the fire.

Damages resulting from the blaze totalled approximately $15,000, with between $4,000 and $5,000 to the building and the remainder to the storage container bags, kept inside the building, that were used for shipping talc.

The origin of the fire is still unknown. A resident of the area noticed the blaze about 6:40 P.M. Saturday evening and turned in the alarm. There was no wind at the time and other small buildings nearby were not harmed.

TWO CHARGED

Madoc Ontario Provincial Police have charged two men under the criminal code following fire bombing incidents in the Village of Madoc, and just north of here, during recent days.

The names of those charged hadn't been released at press time.

Madoc Fire Dept. was called out to extinguish a blaze at the intersection of Elgin Street and Hoarce Avenue about 10 a.m. August 18.

The fire, police said, had been caused by gasoline bombs thrown on the street.

Another gas bomb was thrown onto Highway 62, about four miles north of Madoc, the following night.

OPP officer, woman hurt

A Kaladar provincial police officer and a West Hill woman were injured Saturday and damage to their vehicles was estimated at over $9,000 in a collision on Highway 41, north of Cloyne.

Provincial Constable Peter Ballantyne was driving a four-wheel drive vehicle owned by the Madoc detachment when struck by a car driven by Mrs. Rita Yeates.

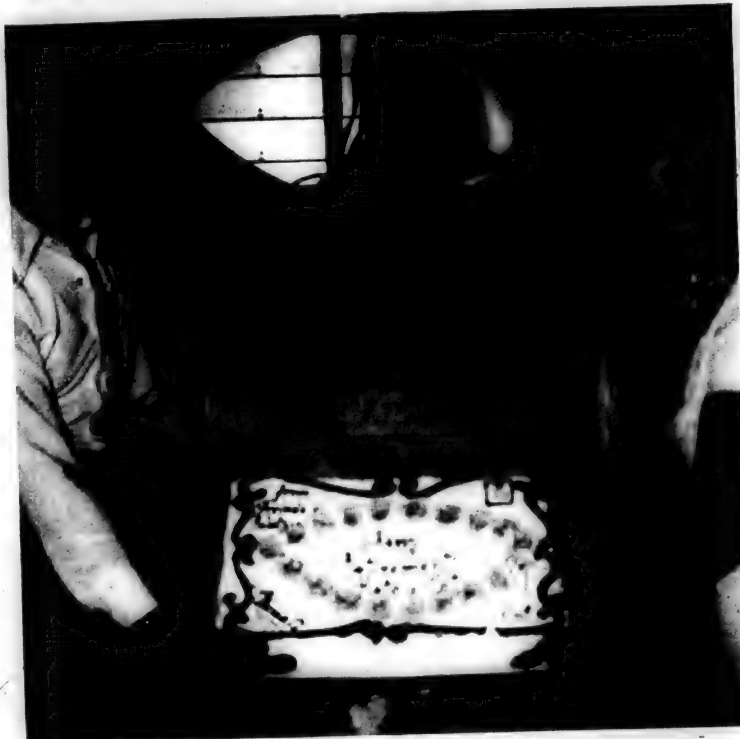

Constable Ballantyne was treated for cuts and bruises and released Sunday but Mrs. Yeates was listed in fair condition with leg and chest injuries.

Police said the Yeates car had left the highway on the right side, came back across the roadway and struck the police vehicle broadside.

Damage was estimated at $2,000 to the car and $7,000 to the second vehicle, which had been loaned by the Madoc detachment to the Kaladar detachment for use in a missing person search.

Council asks for senior housing survey

Huntingdon township council Aug. 14 requested the ministry of housing conduct a survey of need and demand for rent-g geared-to-income housing for senior citizens in the village of Madoc.

Council further resolved to share in the cost of contributing 7 1/2 per cent of any annual losses arising out of the operation of such a project, with the village of Madoc, the township of Madoc and the townships of Tudor and Cashel.

In other business, the council accepted the tender of Pigden Motor Sales Ltd. for the supply of one express truck costing $4,305, with six ply tires to be installed at extra cost, subject to ministry approval.

Council decided to request the Canadian National Railways widen the crossing on the tracks between Lots 9 and 10, Con. 7 to 24 feet and move the crossing signs.

A bylaw to set a rate of pay for the inspection of building erection and renovations in the township was read three times and passed.

A bylaw to appoint members to the Huntingdon Township Library Board was also passed.

Council approved the application of Albert Bailey to the ministry of industry and tourism for the establishment of 16 campsites at Lot 8, Con. 14.

120 friends and relatives at retirement

Approximately 120 friends and relatives gathered at the residence of Ken and Doreen Lowry to honour Cot and Kate Edwards on their retirement from the Madoc Post Office.

The occasion was organized by Ken and Doreen Lowry, Bruce and Helen Warner and Dianne Willock.

Kel Kincaid, master of ceremonies, addressed the Edwards and Doreen Lowry presented them with a gift of money which had been collected on their behalf. Kate received a corsage of yellow rosebuds while a white carnation boutonniere was pinned on Cot. The couple also received a lovely floral arrangement from the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 363, Madoc.

The evening was enjoyed by reminiscing, dancing and a large lunch was served. The cake was beautifully decorated in the form of a postcard.

Cot and Kate will be sadly missed at Madoc's Post Office, but everyone gave their best wishes to them for an enjoyable and healthy retirement.

Film company comes to Skootamata Lake

The halls of the old Skootamata Lake Lodge near Cloyne, Ontario, were recently filled with the sounds of yesteryear as Par Shore Inc., a Canadian Film-Making Company, filmed a full-length feature film in and around its aging walls.

The production is one of the few totally Canadian movies, being run by many talented Canadian people and will be released to the public late this fall at Famous Players Theatres. The producer of the film is Ms. Judy Steed, who has already made four films, and the director and co-producer is Ms. Joyce Wieland, a talented Canadian artist and writer.

The movie is entitled, "The Far Shore", and is based on the painter, Tom Thompson. The original script was written by Ms. Wieland and later put into professional commercial form with help from Mr. Brian Barney from C.B.C.

It took many long hard months to find a place to shoot the film since the setting takes place in a 1919 atmosphere. After searching in the Algonquin Park Area without luck, the old lodge was located with help from Mrs. Grace Wiren, a summer resident at Skootamata Lake, and the Ministry of Natural Resources.

The movie could not have finally come together if not for the help of many talented Canadian people. Some of these include: Doug Pringle, music; Pierre Laffy, Executive Producer; Louise Ranger, Production Manager; Anne Pritchard, Production Designer. Ms. Pritchard also designed "The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz", and the long list of Canadian talent continues.

"The Far Shore" is a totally Canadian production, with no imported actors or actresses, and is also not a copy of anyone else's style. Therefore, Far Shore Inc. hopes that this film will finally be the beginning of true Canadian Cinema.

A single-vehicle accident on the Flinton Road, five miles northeast of Highway 7 Aug. 23 has left an estimated $2,000 damage to a van driven by Mrs. Rebecca Alcock, of Cloyne.

Her husband, Douglas Alcock, was a passenger in the vehicle.

Police said the van apparently went out of control, left the roadway and struck a tree, resulting in minor injuries to its two occupants.

Two in intensive care after accident

The driver and passenger of a car that left the road and struck a rock cut last week were still in intensive care in Belleville General Hospital Monday.

Donald Edward Kelly, 24, of Kingston, was listed in satisfactory condition while Paul Sweet, of Mississauga, is listed in fair condition.

The accident occurred one mile east of Kaladar on Highway 7.

Damage was estimated at $400 to the car.

Damage in the mishap was estimated at $2,000 to the car and approximately $50 to a fence belonging to Ronald Henwood, of RR 5, Madoc.

The School Bus Stopping Law changes September 1st.

Here are the new regulations and what they mean to you:

Effective September 1st, all traffic from both directions must stop whenever a chrome-yellow school bus flashes its red signal lights front and rear... regardless of the posted speed limit. (The penalty for not doing so is a maximum fine of $100 and 4 demerit points.)

The law applies everywhere — on highways, country roads, and city, town or village streets.

Until now, motorists going in the opposite direction had to stop only when the posted maximum speed limit was more than 35 miles per hour. But as of September 1st, everyone must stop — except in one instance: motorists going in the opposite direction from the school bus on the other side of a multi-lane highway divided by a physical barrier.

As a motorist, you must drive with extra care whenever you see a school bus in front of you or coming towards you, because if the school bus flashes its red lights, traffic from both directions must stop.

If all of us observe this law our children will be that much safer. Remember, school bus safety is everybody's responsibility.

As a parent, encourage your children to follow the school bus safety rules learned at school — helping the bus driver by behaving quietly and keeping seated until it is time to leave the bus.

The muskies are biting! This was the good news from Meira Lake during the past few days.

Saturday night two lovely specimens were landed. At about dusk, John Parauk landed a 22-pounder measuring 40 inches while fishing in the lower lake near Ross' Bar. He reports it was only a matter of about 10 minutes from the time the big fellow struck until he had it in the boat.

That same night a 30-pound muskie was landed after a three-hour battle with Randall Barry, assisted by his son Jim.

At about dusk again, on Sunday evening, Richard Matchett caught an 11-pound muskie and reports having had a larger one get away. This one was also caught in the lower lake and measured 34 inches.

New garage opened near Madoc

Ken Lowry, a well-known mechanic in Madoc and area, officially opened his own garage on Monday, August 25th, 1975.

Ken, who showed a great interest in cars at a very early age, received his Class A Mechanic's License in 1962. Upon moving to Madoc from Dundas, Ontario, six years ago, he worked for Dick Jones and upon the opening of the Canadian Tire Garage, he was hired as Head Mechanic. Leaving C.T.C. in June of this year, he worked on building his own shop and worked part-time for Bert Jones Ltd.

Now that his own shop is open, Ken welcomes all his friends and customers to drop in. Ken repairs all makes of cars, trucks, buses, tractors and snowmobiles.

Ken's Auto Service is located at his home, one mile west on Seymour Street (formerly the old Marmora Road).

He is married with two children, a son, Kevin and daughter, Krista. His wife is Doreen.

Madoc congratulates Ken on the opening of his business, and wishes him success in his new endeavour.

A land-mark in Madoc Village since the building of the first railroad here will disappear this week. The large water tanks along the tracks, north of the station, which were used to hold water for the steam boilers, is being wrecked. Since the replacement of the steam engines by diesels, these tanks have not been used and are being taken down in many centres through the province. The present tank of steel structure, with a capacity of 22,000 gallons, replaced a wooden tank a few years ago and was reported to be in excellent condition. The tank was advertised for sale, but as no offers were received, it was decided to wreck it. Work of cutting it up is taking place this week, when it will be loaded into a freight car and sold for scrap.

The Cobalt mining and settlement industry in Marmora, an industry hard hit by tumbling world prices, may wither away by the end of the year, a company official says. J. N. Cram, manager of Deloro Smelting and Refining Co. Ltd., said his employees now are down to 150 from a wartime peak of 900. Unless the government economy experts called for by the Village's council last week can find a cure for the ailing industry, Mr. Cram expects there will be only a few watchmen left by 1961.

Mr. Glen Felter of Greenburg, P.A., has the record of catching the largest fish in Moira Lake this summer when he hooked and landed a maskinonge weighing 26½ pounds. This fish is not only the largest fish caught here this summer, but the first fish Mr. Felter ever caught. Mr. Felter is a guest at Crystal Beach and hooked his prize just east of Pine Point Lodge.

Jerry Keller of Madoc recently landed a 21¼ pound Lake Trout while fishing with Mrs. Keller in Weslemkoon Lake. This fish is the largest ever caught in this lake, according to some of the oldest residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Howse and family of Tweed have taken up residence in Madoc, where Mr. Howse was appointed Principal of the High School some months ago.

The Madoc Juniors defeated Tweed 10-8 last Friday night, August 18th, 1951, in the first game of the O.A.S.A. playdowns.

Charlie talks to the fish

By Peter Ward

NORTH RUSTICE, PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND (SF) — This year is the last Prince Edward Island holiday for the Ward family, we fear. The kids are growing up, and next summer, two of them will likely be working. So it was with particular nostalgia that we trooped up to this fishing village on the north shore for a turn at the mackerel with Captain Charlie Craswell, our favorite Island fishing guide.

Charlie's boat, the Anne Shirley, has the reputation of always bringing back the fish. When the fleet of tourist fishing boats sails back into North Rustico Harbor, the crews clean the fish which have been caught, stopping the heads, bones, and tails overboard, much to the delight of swarming gulls. Charlie is well thought of, even by the gulls. They don't wait for fish-cleaning to begin; they stay with Charlie's boat and ignore the others. They know where the most fish offal will come from.

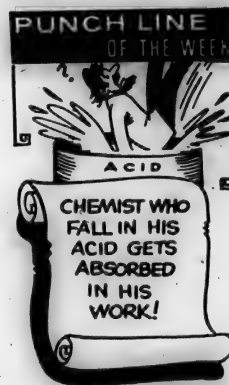

Charlie talks to the fish, spraying a brownish mixture of ground fish into the water to attract them, and profaning just the right amount. He rolls cheerfully around baiting hooks and untangling lines, the idol of the kids, while the bins amidships gradually fill with flipping, shiny mackerel.

Back at the jetty, if you know Charlie well, he'll sometimes boil up some fresh mackerel in a pot of sea water. It looks vile, but tastes delicious, particularly with the right sort of liquid accompaniment.

Charlie fishes with tourists for two months, catches mackerel and cod commercially when they're running, fishes lobster, and then works for the department of highways in the off season. I don't think he knows what unemployment insurance payments are. He's a self-sufficient man.

The thought of Charlie and his Anne Shirley may yet change the Wards' minds about not coming back to Prince Edward Island for just one more year. The place and the people get into your blood.

People can still get polio if not properly immunized

by David Woods

For hundreds of years before the mid-19th century, a mysterious paralysis often crippled children. But the origin of this paralysis was unknown. When new light was shed on its cause, it was given a name — poliomyelitis.

This word describes an inflammation (itis) of the grey (polio) matter of the spinal cord (myelos). Years ago, this still incurable disease was widely communicated from one person to another, and frequent epidemics left tragic results of paralysis and death in their wake. About one in every hundred people who contracted polio was permanently paralyzed.

Then, in 1955, an American physician, Dr. Jonas Edward Salk, discovered a vaccine that could prevent the disease. Salk's biographer, Richard Carter, says that the discovery was "more than a scientific achievement, (it) was a folk victory, an occasion for pride and jubilation."

Once the injectable vaccine began to be widely-used, it virtually wiped out the scourge of polio. In some post-vaccine years in Ontario, except for the upsurge to 228 cases in 1959, the trend has been consistently toward fewer cases each year. Last year, none were reported. In 1962, the anti-polio forces were further strengthened with the introduction of the Sabin vaccine, which can be taken orally. This vaccine is widely used in many parts of the world, including some provinces in Canada.

While medical science can take due credit for ridding us of the threat of polio epidemics, it's worth bearing in mind that it hasn't found a cure for the disease once a person is infected — only an effective means of preventing it.

In other words, you can still get polio if you're not properly protected, as the virus has not yet been eradicated.

In Ontario, the Ministry of Health has a recommended immunization schedule in which shots for diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus and polio are given as the primary series at three, four and five months of age with boosters at 18 months, and again at school entry. Further polio reinforcing injections are advised at 10 to 12 years of age, at school leaving age — and then every five years after that usually combined with diphtheria and/or tetanus boosters.

But, says the Ministry's senior medical consultant in epidemiology, Dr. Shirley Johnson, parents should see to it that their children receive the proper immunization at the proper time. Otherwise, progress in controlling the disease will be lost. In fact, she adds, everyone should keep his or her immunization up-to-date — and keep records of it. If in doubt, check with your family doctor.

While science has worked miracles in bringing many once incurable diseases — like polio — under control, it's still up to the individual to take advantage of the protection available.

Bill Smiley

A little nauseating

By BILL SMILEY

A FRIEND brought to my notice a news story the day. He wanted my opinion of its contents.

The story was headed: Former War Prisoners Hold Prairie Reunion. It stated that more than 500 former prisoners of war from Britain, the United States and Canada gathered at Moose Jaw recently for a 30th reunion.

The rest of the story was a little nauseating. The reunion was held in "an atmosphere not unlike the prison camps they survived in wartime." There was barbed wire, a bazooka, two machine-guns, a German flag, people dressed up in German uniforms, and caricatures of war-time German officers.

I gave my reaction to my friend: "A bunch of middle-aged boys clinging to the only real thing that ever happened to them."

That sounds harsh, at first glance, if it's possible to glance at something and hear it. But it satisfied my friend.

"It's incredible," he said. "I too would like to see some of my old friends from prison camp, but to talk, not to play games."

I agreed. I would like to see some of my old friends from prison camp. For about half an hour. Not for a three-day reunion, with wives tagging along.

And perhaps this is why I don't attend the annual reunion of former prisoners-of-war, though I am invited every year.

And I guess I'm not the only one. There were 500 at this reunion, from three countries. Where are all the others? There were 10,000 airmen in the camp I was in, only one of many.

A couple of other items emerged from the news story. Guess where the chaps were entertained? In the officers' mess at Moose Jaw.

Secondly, it was the first reunion of POWs in 30 years to be held outside Toronto.

What does this suggest? To me, a little clique of Toronto-based ex-officers who have kept the thing going, for who knows what adolescent satisfaction.

Whatever you may have heard or read elsewhere, prisoners of war who were officers didn't suffer all that much. I know. I was there.

We were not required to work in factories or mines or on farms as were "other ranks." I know of no Canadian officer who starved to death, though grub was mighty slim in the last few months.

Perhaps one in 1,000 was beaten up for some misdemeanor. I was one of them, and it was my own fault.

It was no bed of roses, and I don't minimize the skill and daring of those who tried to escape, but, looking back, it was all juvenile and Boy Scoutish: lookouts, secret passwords, disguises, caving-in tunnels, interminable planning, and end results about as dramatic as one degree Celsius.

There was suffering, of course, but it was not beatings and torture and starvation, not for Canadians. It was not physical, but psychological.

As far as military discipline went, most of the bodies had far more freedom than they had had on their units. But there was the simple fact that you were in jail, and somebody would shoot you if you tried to get out (quite the opposite to modern Canadian jails).

And there was the great feeling of waste, of knowing that the best years of your life were going down the drain, while other young men were kissing girls and drinking beer and staying up all night and doing all the other foolish things young men do.

Assorted odds and sods, and you had a typical group — at least in my camp.

I wonder where they all are? Most of them, certainly, are a long way from Moose Jaw and a small group from Toronto whose members can afford to fly to a convention and try to recapture something that is gone forever.

For the same reason, I have stopped going to reunions of old fighter pilots. I went to a couple. Enjoyed them. But there is a tendency to maudlinism, exaggeration and downright lying about long-gone days. These pot-bellied, bald, wife-ridden, right-leaning, class-conscious, middle-aged poops are my old comrades? No way.

My memories of prison camp and fighter-piloting are far more fun than meeting some red-faced paunch who roars over the noise from the bar: "Hey, yeah! Aren't you Jack? Jack Wiley? Yeah! We were at Sagan together. (I was at Barth). Wancha tameet the wife."

All "the wife" wants is, not to meet me, but to be sure that George is on his feet for the final evening's ball, at which she will peer, with her sad, crumpled 50-year old face, at all the other sad, crumpled 50-year old ladies and wonder what the hell the kids are up to while she's hoofing it up in Moose Jaw.

I told a little of this to my friend. He understood. He was a German officer with Rommel, badly wounded in North Africa, spent three years in a U.S. prison camp, and is now a Canadian citizen.

Where are the snows of yesteryear?

Samantha READS YOUR STARS

If you were born September 3-9: You're quite down-to-earth. A mask of reserve often hides your emotions from others. Ambition is one of your foundations and hard work is the cornerstone. People rely on your steadiness and wisdom. You are a seeker, and your great determination wins your goal.

ARIES (3/21-4/19): Your week opens with the sparkle of love and good cheer. Then, you'll have to watch your words. Try not to meddle, even though you think it's for someone's own good. Ideas gel, and week comes to a roller-coaster finale.

TAURUS (4/20-5/20): Perhaps a bit of stress around the house as week begins. Romance adds a glow to midweek and creativity shines in a realistic way. You may wobble as you try to maintain a balance between several viewpoints. A humdinger close!

GEMINI (5/21-6/20): An energetic start with your mind going in a dozen directions, wanting to accomplish everything at once. Communications active; one could bring news of a postponed date. Don't tell everything you know; keep in mind that others talk, too. Latter days hold a symphony of good vibrations.

MOONCHILD (6/21-7/22): Financial interest to the fore, including, perhaps, an unexpected check. There's a fine line between helping somebody and taking over their problems. Be sure you know where that line is. Then, home affairs draw your attention with finishing up to do.

LEO (7/23-8/22): Week premieres with you in control — if you know which way you want to go. Friends may urge you to spend; if you're smart, you'll save. Appraisal of your assets is worthwhile, criticism of them can hurt more than it helps. Winding up something old and beginning something new complete your week.

VIRGO (8/23-9/22): A quiet beginning to your week, Virgo. Someone will likely provoke your temper. If you can keep it and see beyond his words, you'll turn the situation to your advantage. Then, turn a minute into a plus and your budget gets a boost.

LIBRA (9/23-10/23): Accent on friends opens your week. One friendship is not exactly good at this point; give it time to work out. Small frustrations mark midweek. Your charm can help solve them. Later, a block is partially removed, and you see your way completely around it.

SCORPIO (10/24-11/22): You may find yourself on edge all week. Changeable feelings, dissatisfaction with existing conditions, etc. You may well be on the verge of a really far-reaching change. Do consider it carefully before you make it.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21): Cooperation is the key to this week. Do it, and the door to opportunity opens. An authority figure may try to set on you a little. Keep your freedom tactfully. Love life is iffy, but there's an excellent chance for socializing.

CAPRICORN (12/21-1/19): Mate's money may be on a downhill trend from spending on the home. You'll be glad it was spent. Mid-week brings great aspects. Possibility of an ending to something quite important. This can be the gateway to better things. Week comes to a starry close.

AQUARIUS (1/20-2/18): You may be dealing with an egotist this week. Flattery gets you everywhere. Don't depend too much on others, or you'll be disappointed. The bells ring for romance with a lovely and rather exotic tone.

PISCES (2/19-3/20): Don't let your generosity bite off more than you want to chew. There may be someone around you who could give you a complex if you take her too much to heart. So close your ears. An old love may be ending, but a new one is on the horizon.

Leadership course good experience the delegates to this conference will never become isolationists, but will seek to know themselves by knowing others.

Friday morning was difficult most of us because that day we would have to say goodbye to new-found friends and to Geneva Park. At dinner we bid a fond farewell to the cafeteria staff and made a final disruption by singing a couple of our favorite songs.

There were tears in many eyes and I think that we realized that we had shared a unique experience. Some of the group would be entering university or college in the fall, others were heading for their first jobs. Still others were looking forward with high expectations to that last wonderful year of high school. Although we were heading in different directions we had something in common, we had shared part of ourselves. We took with us a little more knowledge and a little better understanding of co-operating and communicating. And me? I started to take a fresh look at life, a movement for the better, a step from being to learn towards learning to be.

I would like to thank the Madoc Co-operative Association for selecting me as a delegate to this wonderful week. I honestly feel that I now know how to serve my community better.

Changes under fire

The proposed boundary changes came under fire from Jack Ellis, M.P. Hastings, when they were announced on August 19th. The new proposal puts all of Hastings County except the southern three townships in a huge rural riding.

Sidney Township and Trenton remain in with Northumberland; Thurlow, Tyendinaga and Deseronto are joined with Belleville and all of Prince Edward County and three townships from Addington. The large new riding of Hastings-Frontenac reaches from west of Peterborough to east of Kingston.

The guest speaker will be Rev. W. Joseph Price, B.A. B.D. S.T.M., Executive Secretary of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Superior Production

Eldorado-bred Holstein has outstanding record

Eldorado Ach Rockman, a purebred Holstein cow bred by Burrell G. Bateman, of Eldorado, and owned by Dean Sayles, of Paris, Ont., has an outstanding 3-year-old record.

In 305 days she yielded 22,167 lbs milk, testing 4.29 per cent for 952 lbs. fat or BCA indices of 208 per cent for milk and 244 per cent fat - for which she was fourth for fat and also received a Superior Production Certificate from the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada. She went on to complete her lactation in 384 days, yielding 25,060 lbs. milk, testing 4.33 per cent for 1,086 lbs. fat.

Ach Rockman is sired by Seiling Rockman, who is classified Excellent for type and rated a Class Extra sire. Her dam is Wilmoore Ruth Achilles Maple.

It is the hope of the Session and the Board that friends and former members of the church will attend these services. All are encouraged to make this a day of rejoicing and fellowship as you meet your friends and neighbours at Eldorado United Church, of which the members are justly proud.

A warm welcome awaits everyone to join together in Christian Fellowship.

BY DR. JAMES G. PRICE

In the last several months I've seen several newspaper articles with big headlines proclaiming something like "100,000 DEATHS DUE TO MEDICINE" or "DRUG REACTIONS DOUBLE HOSPITAL STAYS" and if I were a non-medical person I'd be a little frightened by all of this.

Announcements such as these gain wide publicity, but the truth of the matter is that they aren't supported by facts.

An unfortunate offshoot of such exaggerated adverse publicity is that many people may fail to take the prescribed course of medicine set out for them by their physician and thereby fail to get the desired beneficial result.

I'm in no way saying that drug reactions don't occur; they do and they can be life-threatening. However the likelihood of this happening is far less than these sensational headlines would have you believe.

So what can you — the patient — do to protect yourself from an adverse drug reaction? Here are some suggestions:

1. Keep track of any drug to which you might react and remind your doctor of it each time he prescribes something new.

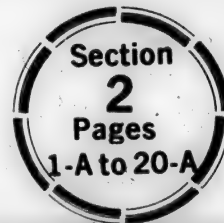

2. Keep track of the names of the medicines which you take routinely. Whenever receiving a new medication, ask your doctor if it fits in with your old ones.

3. If you're taking any prescribed medication, don't take anything else — even non-prescription items — until you've checked with your doctor.

4. If after starting a medication you develop any odd or unusual upsets, rashes, or other symptoms, check with your doctor before continuing.

5. Don't give a medication to anyone other than the individual for which it was prescribed.

Questions to "Your Family Physician" should be addressed to Dr. James G. Price, c/o this newspaper. Mail volume prohibits individual replies.

The members of Marmora Agricultural Society are busy this week getting the fairgrounds ready for the Marmora Fall Fair on Labour Day, September 1.

The grandstand show gets underway at approximately one o'clock with the Warden of Hastings County, William McCrae, officially opening the fair. He will be joined on the platform by Hastings M.P. Jack Ellis, Hastings M.P.P. Clarke Rollins, Reeve Jack Reynolds of Marmora Village and Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmora and Lake Townships and by Hastings County Dairy Princess Diane Jarrell. After the opening ceremonies there will be a continuous show on the grandstand with everything from a pie eating contest for the kids to an old timers fiddling contest.

The newly roofed arena should be a good place to spend an hour or so viewing the flower display, baking, fancy work, fruit and vegetables and field crop exhibits, as well as the school section which has had several new categories added. Last year's school work was said to be the best display in a Class C fair in Ontario so this year's should be well worth seeing.

A special prize is being offered this year by the Marmora Horticultural Society in memory of one of its members, Mrs. Mae Madgett. The prize is an attractive $30. electric clock and will go to the owner of the best begonia at the Fair. The entries may be either tuberous or fibrous begonias. A special class has been set up for these entries and there is no entrance fee charge. The contest is open to local residents only.

Outside the arena there will be light horses, heavy horses and ponies performing in their various classes. There will also be cattle exhibits and the Marmora 4H Calf Club will be showing their calves.

One of the biggest attractions last year was the horse drawing contest. This gets underway at 2:00 o'clock with the ponies drawing first, followed by the light horses and then the heavy horses.

The Robertson Midway will be set up to give you a thrilling ride, let you win a panda bear, or sell you one of those delicious fall fair hot dogs. Several church groups and other organizations will offer homemade pie, sandwiches, drinks etc. at their booths.

Back room decisions will go if Liberal Gov't takes over Ontario

Back room decisions will be swept into oblivion by a new Liberal government at Queen's Park.

Dave Hobson, Liberal candidate contesting the new and expanded riding of Hastings-Peterborough in the September 18 provincial general election, told a meeting of party faithful in Marmora Tuesday night that the present Bill Davis government is conducting too much of the people's business in the back rooms.

"A Liberal government," he claimed, "would be far more open."

"The whole business of government must be opened up to public scrutiny and for public information."

"With the exception of reports involving individual reputations, the minutes, reports and correspondence relating to public business should, by law, be available to the Legislature, the press and the public.

"But don't forget," Mr. Hobson emphasized, "this can only be carried out by a new government, not the present one which has so much to protect."

The Hastings-Peterborough hopeful contended the Davis administration is too top heavy with ministers and tangled lines of responsibility. A Liberal government, he said, would eliminate the overlapping between departments and have a smaller cabinet.

Referring to government contracts, he said a Liberal administration would call for public tenders without conflict of interest.

A Liberal victory in Ontario was predicted by Dave Hobson, Liberal candidate in Hastings-Peterborough, as he addressed the Liberal nomination meeting in the Quinte riding last week.

He said there were a lot of reasons why the people would vote against the Davis government, but even more reasons why the people would turn to the Liberals.

He noted that Bill Davis was the nation's biggest spending minister of education, and is now the nation's biggest spending premier.

"Davis has already borrowed 1,800 million dollars to run Ontario in this year alone, and interest in the province's debt is now running at $2,000,000 daily."

"We can no longer afford a Davis government."

A Liberal government, Mr. Hobson said, would reduce the provincial deficit with a good common sense goal based on respect for local government and tradition.

Gray in wings awaiting leadership?

Herb Gray, Liberal opposition leader in Ottawa, decided not to leap into the provincial fray only after a careful test of the Windsor-Sandwich waters indicated that if he ran against New Democrat Ted Bounsall, Gray might find himself back practising law. Speculation in Windsor now is that Gray will sit by an open window after the election in case there is a draft to replace Bob Nixon.

OK TV debate

There will be a TV debate. It will be produced by Toronto CTV-affiliate CFTO. It will be a three-part round robin, two leaders per go. And it will be broadcast at 10:30 p.m. August 30, September 6 and September 13. CTV is offering to let the CBC and Global broadcast it at the same time. CBC is still in a snit and says it doesn't wanna.

60,000 voices can't talk back.

The Ontario government has silenced its employees.

Our job is to provide services to the public. We work in colleges, hospitals and offices. We drive snow-plows, inspect your food and protect your environmental rights.

The irony is that we have few rights ourselves. Many of us feel we are being used by the government.

Take for example the last budget. The government attempted to woo your vote by cutting back on the civil service.

This will save taxpayers a fifth of a cent on their tax dollar. That isn't even a pittance when you consider that the budget calls for over $10-billion of your money.

You see, to the government we are political pawns.

And that's not good.

People who work with retarded children, the sick and the infirm, those who run our correctional centres and inspect our food have been cut back.

Public services will suffer.

But the government won't let us take part in the democratic process to bring about change.

For us that is illegal.

We can't canvass for a candidate. We can't speak or write publicly on any party's platform. We can't talk about the real issues.

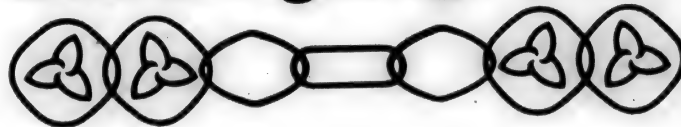

We have fewer civil rights than other citizens. All we want is equality.

And that won't cost taxpayers a cent.

We hope that you will vote for civil rights... equal rights for everyone.

We only want to be heard.

Whose rights go next?

Ontario Provincial
Election '75

With this issue, Davis knows he has a winner!

WINDSOR - Bill Davis just knows he has a winner when he stands up in front of a crowd and calls for a tough stance on law and order.

He knows law and order speeches make instant headlines - and instant votes.

And he knows there's not an awful lot the Liberals and New Democrats can do about it - all those in favor of havoc please stand up; let's hear from all you folks out there who are against walking down the street safely.

That's why it really is a phony issue. An important one, but one in which everybody agrees. But it's the Tories' good fortune they've co-opted the issue for themselves.

No only do they have the archetype law and order candidate - Toronto police union president Syd Brown is running against NDP leader Stephen Lewis. But Davis earlier this year announced the LaMarsh commission into violence in the media and last year the solicitor-general established a task force to study our law enforcement system.

In between, Davis and all his cabinet ministers haven't missed a chance to wring their hands and look appropriately serious on the subject, all designed to rid Davis of that slightly pink tinge he had in 1971 and paint it blue.

Now Davis has told the Police Association of Ontario that in the future anybody who needs a firearm or ammunition will need a licence.

To get a licence, you'll have to pass a test. If you already have a licence, that's all right, because Premier Davis certainly doesn't want to upset the hunters.

And for those of you out there who are criminals, or mentally disordered or hooked on drugs or booze - tough luck. There's no way you're going to get a licence.

Davis also wants to stop the sale of firearms through mail order catalogues except for people living in remote and sparsely populated areas, but he'll need the federal government to act on that one.

He says all these measures are needed because of the increasing violence in our society and he says "the pendulum of public opinion, I sense, is swinging back to a more responsible and realistic attitude."

In other words, right-wing is in. You bleeding hearts have had your day, pack your bags and skulk away.

"You have probably read that I am very concerned at the shift towards confrontation as a means of curing all manner of grievances in our society," Davis said.

Isn't everybody?

Can anybody explain how a licence is going to stop a gun owner from shooting his mother-in-law if that's what he wants to do? Can anybody explain just which society is breaking down? Which particular street can't we walk down? Which particular violent confrontation is Davis talking about?

Of course there's violence. Always was. Always will be.

No need to roll over and play dead, you say. Don't let the crooks take control.

Well, fact is, violent crime in Ontario is not increasing even as quickly as the population is. We may like to think we have everything the Americans have - or if we don't have it, at least it's on the way - but we don't have that kind of problem at all and Davis and every other politician knows it.

16-year legislative veteran

Clarke Rollins opens his bid for re-election

Clarke T. Rollins launched his campaign to keep the new riding of Hastings-Peterborough in the Davis Government camp Monday, as he officially opened his campaign headquarters in the Plaza Theatre, Marmora.

The Progressive Conservative standard bearer has held the Hastings riding for the Tories for the past 16 years, and hopes to stretch his term to an even 20.

The Hastings riding has been expanded to include the 10 eastern townships of Peterborough County, which along with the rest of the county, has been represented by P.C. John Turner for the past four years.

Mr. Rollins, 64, resides at R. R. 1 Bancroft, and is a businessman. Mr. Turner, 42, resides at 371 Park St., N., Peterborough, and is also a businessman.

"I am most enthusiastic with the enthusiasm being shown to date, not only in Marmora and vicinity, but throughout the whole riding.

"Even response in the new area is most encouraging, with support and assistance coming from all over."

A bad day for Davis?

September 18 is a bad date for Bill Davis, according to Hamilton astrologer Nicky Marchese who cast the Premier's horoscope. For one thing, Davis, a Leo, will find Venus in retrograde at the very moment he goes to the polls; if he wants to be really careful, he won't even get a haircut that day. On the other hand, it would be a good day for Robert Nixon, a Cancer, to buy a lottery ticket and stand for election. Nicky doesn't mention Stephen Lewis, Scorpio that he is. Lewis seems tucked under a fold in the universe.

Nixon descendent of United Empire Loyalist

Fate rests in the hands of five million people

So you're Robert Fletcher Nixon and you're leader of the Ontario Liberals. You get up early in the big pleasant farmhouse built in 1853 by your great-grandfather, a United Empire Loyalist.

Most men on an August day that promises to be hot and muggy, might say the heck with it and relax in the swimming pool beside the house, or stroll the 260 acres of family farm. But that's not the way life is when you're a provincial political leader.

Here you are 47, an MP since early 1962, and at a time of life when most people have a pretty good idea what they're going to be doing to retirement, your fate rests in the hands of five million people and in the actions and thinking of nearly 400 candidates.

And if you miss for the third time, there will be no need for the umpires in caucus and party and press to shout that's a strikeout. You'll know that's it as leader.

Your first speech is brief, only two pages, nice and punchy for TV. You deliver it with a regular upbeat, like an aggressive metronome. When you're number two and trying harder, it sometimes shows in your voice, even when you're a formidable speaker.

You hammer at government spending and record-breaking deficits. Then you talk about integrity, the word that drew such an unexpected burst of applause at the last party convention and thus entered the campaign rhetoric.

"Our education system has never cost more or given us less."

That was the fourth paragraph of the speech. It was just another sign of the obvious fact that education is one of the main campaign issues as far as his party is concerned.

Strike hard at present education policies and costs and you cut inside the innards of the Big Blue Machine. Education is not just another issue. Two education ministers in a row have turned the three Rs upside down and become premier as a result. Criticize education and you criticize John Robarts and Bill Davis.

Tom Wells presently holds the portfolio of premiers. He's a pleasant smooth man

Davis opens bitter attack

Premier William Davis launched a bitter attack on Liberal leader Robert Nixon saying it would be "a disaster" for this province if Nixon ever became premier.

Davis based his attack on a quote attributed to Nixon at an Ottawa press conference as saying "the federal government has a nation to govern and one of the last things to concern it is the impact of its policies on the provinces."

Davis said the people of Ontario ought to think about Nixon's statement. "They might imagine him going to a provincial-federal convention in Ottawa, apparently just for the trip. And they could well imagine him sitting at the conference table and saying on behalf of the people of Ontario 'sock it to me Pierre.'"

Davis said that no one could make that kind of statement, much less believe it, "who had the slightest knowledge of what Confederation is all about."

"I want to say to you that I know of no premier of any province in Canada who would ever express such a view ... An opinion held by the premier of this province, whether or not his kissing cousins were in power in Ottawa, would be the kiss of death for this province."

Davis said that he wants to separate himself as far as possible from the position that Ontario has no right to be involved in national decisions.

Meanwhile New Democratic leader Stephen Lewis detailed a new plan which he claims would cut Ontario Hydro spending by more than $5 billion by 1982.

Speaking in this Thundar Bay area community, Lewis said the annual interest on the saving, at 10 per cent, would be $522 million or enough to provide Ontario with a dental plan (with gold fillings for all) or provide a guaranteed annual income to residents aged 60 and up.

Lewis said the plan was essentially a modified version of one presented to the Legislature several months ago and "laughed off by the government."

Ontario Provincial Election '75

who does the job with more competency than most critics at first suspected.

Wells a former school board chairman, is being challenged by the present chairman. And the present chairman, while not wanting to make it a one-issue campaign, had a few nasty comments about present education, saying "it is absolutely essential to return quality, stability and public confidence to the education of Ontario children."

Phillips, a management consultant, has worked in various Liberal campaigns and after a decade of being on the sidelines, he decided to run himself.

Old scandals never die and where Bob Nixon is concerned, they don't even fade away. Nixon maliciously rubs a little long-distance salt into any verbal wounds the premier might have, over the integrity issue.

And basically it is a recitation of old scandals, complaints and indiscretions, the familiar ones the Liberals and NDP have been irate about for four years.

He points out that Moog had given $35,000 to the Tories, that Fidinan had given $50,000 before getting the contract without tender to build the Workman's Compensation Board headquarters. Then Nixon foes from specifics to the philosophy and general style of the Tories.

"When I talk about integrity I am also talking about the need for a government that doesn't try to buy votes with taxpayers' money, a government that doesn't engage in the cynical politics of lavish pre-election advertising campaigns..."

Before this election is over we'll hear about the land transactions of Yaremko, McKeough and Bales, and anything else that's been on the front pages recently.

Lewis is off and running

But where is 'Even Stephen' running to?

Stephen Lewis is off and running -- but where's he running to?

Lewis' voice of sweet reason has made no promises, announced no policies and attacked no one -- not yet.

"The Conservatives are riding high, but not nearly so high as once upon a time," he said. "The Liberals are riding low and I don't begrudge them that fate. The NDP is simply riding."

Lewis said the issues he sees are energy, housing, land and people. Mr. Nice Guy, they will have to start calling him. Time to forget the hawk eyes that pierce, the syllables that roll out and scare off a lot of working guys. When you're third, you can afford to be a little more candid, a little more relaxed than anyone else.

The future? Stephen Lewis will not talk about what happens election day if he doesn't form at least the official opposition. "I don't think about it."

His own chances of avoiding becoming the second Lewis in a year to fail to be re-elected in his own riding? "I think we can win Scarborough West if we're not so foolishly over-confident and neglectful as we were in 1971."

There are plenty of people around to say that Stephen Lewis could be running himself right out of politics and may be lucky to win his own riding, let alone make enough of an impression on Ontario's five million voters even to hold onto his present 20 seats of 117.

That's what it is to be the leader of a third

Photo session campaign ritual and 'rush' job!

A campaign ritual is the photo session. Each candidate gets whipped into a room has his picture snapped in four or five poses with the party leader and is whipped out again. The candidates get three or four minutes with the leader. The session usually lasts three or four minutes, and for many candidates it is the first time they have met their leaders in person and the only time they will talk to him during the campaign.

Bob Nixon says it gives the candidates a chance to tell him the main problems in a riding, but the Liberal leader adds that he is thankful for the new election expense law, because this election the candidates are not making their usual pitch -- for campaign funds.

Socreds may lose subsidy

Social Credit is not a registered party in this election, so if it fields any candidates they will not be eligible, so far, for the new provincial subsidy. The four registered parties are Conservatives, Liberals, New Democrats and Communists -- The first three by virtue of having more than four seats in the last House, the Communists qualifying by coming up with a 13,000-signature petition; 3,000 more than they needed to qualify.

party that lost ground in the last election and would scarcely have been heard from since if it were not for its leader and Dr. Morton Shulman.

But this time, Shulman's not running and Lewis is being challenged at home by Toronto Police Association president Syd Brown.

He admits he didn't run hard enough in his own riding in 1971 when he spent what he thinks may have been four hours, maybe five, at home.

Brown is fighting, "a law-and-order campaign. Take the handcuffs off the jailers and put them on the prisoners," he has said.

Lewis attacks provincial housing policy

New Democratic Party leader Stephen Lewis attacked the provincial housing policy and promised to build 116,000 housing units a year in Ontario for the next decade.

Lewis said housing is one of the "great failures of the Conservative government." Housing starts are down 31 per cent from 1974 so far this year and 38 per cent from 1973.

He said he wants to make housing "a question of social right, not of vested privilege."

He also reiterated attacks on the government's royal commission on petroleum pricing that so far has yet to hold a "Preposterous," says Lewis. "Is anybody against it? It's almost as if he's attacking his own police force."

Outside his riding, Lewis is willing to let the Premier slug it out with Nixon. He's just too busy being reasonable, sticking to the issues and holstering the campaign of New Democrats in areas that are their own turf.

"We want to campaign on the issues, not on personal attacks," he said. "God! How I hate them."

But now that the subject has come up -- "the Liberals have hurled the word at the Premier like a gauntlet" -- Lewis found public meeting, although the deadline for its preliminary report is September 30.

And he again called for a 30-day extension of the government's 90-day oil price freeze.

He repeated an earlier attack on the Steel Company of Canada (Stelco) for letting its Hamilton coke oven workers go without medical testing despite threats to their health from high emissions.

"This is one thing the NDP will not accept and never compromise on. It is simply not tolerable in a province so wealthy as ours that there should be such examples of human deprivation and unhappiness," he said.

himself reluctantly coming to the Premier's defence after Davis had shouted about Nixon's "arsenal of innuendo."

"I don't blame the Premier at all," Lewis said. "It was a challenge to basic honesty. Integrity is a neat diversion. No party has a monopoly and where are all those honest politicians anyway?"

According to an Oxford dictionary integrity means "innocence, a character of uncorruptable virtue" and frankly, he added "I have never seen that kind of virtue in any politician or party."

Nixon's attacks on Davis and his government are "nothing but an unexpected gift for the Tories. It has been used to divert the campaign from all the important things in Ontario."

Just a tinge sanctimonious, perhaps, but Lewis has been so low-key as to be almost inaudible.

He is concentrating on being nice, quiet and reasonable -- making people feel that the old red tide of socialism theme that marked the 1971 campaign is really just a gentle pink-tinged swell.

"Even Stephen" they are starting to call him on the campaign plane.

The New Democratic Party became the third party to announce the location of a campaign headquarters in the new Hastings-Peterborough riding as the September 18th provincial election campaign moves into full gear.

The headquarters are located in a store on Main Street, Deseronto, where William Kells is serving as campaign chairman. Candidate Bob Thompson, speaking at the opening of the headquarters, told supporters he has found a sense of frustration and alienation throughout the riding.

Low interest mortgages plan of Social Credit party

Lowest interest rates on mortgage money would be made available if a Social Credit Government is elected in the September 18th provincial election.

Nancy Arnold, Social Credit candidate in the Hastings-Peterborough riding, told supporters that "public housing, condominium and the Home Ownership Made Easy plan are means to enable people to afford homes at today's high rate of interest."

A better method, the Social Credit way, "is to establish a revolving fund to make mortgage money available at lower rates, and enable people to have the freedom to purchase the home of their choice, in the area of their choice, and to attain home ownership in a shorter period of time."

"Incentives should be offered to encourage more industry to locate in smaller communities. This would stimulate the growth of these areas into viable economic and social units taking the pressure off large urban centres."

Eliminating the cause of high cost housing eliminates the need for large scale public housing programs with their detrimental effect on the social environment of the community.

"Home ownership should provide families with a sense of freedom and security and not years of deprivation and economic bondage," the Sacred hopeful said.

Set dates advance polls for election

Advance polls for the Hastings-Peterborough riding for the September 18th provincial election will be held Friday, September 12, from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., and on Saturday, Sept. 13 and Monday, Sept. 15, from 12 noon to 9 p.m. Polling hours on election day, Thursday, Sept. 18, will be from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. The nomination of candidates will take place Thursday, September 4, from 2 to 3 p.m., at the Returning Office, Actinolite. The final revision to the voter's list will be Wed., Sept. 10, from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

HEARD THIS ONE?

The divine right to rule?

And did you hear about the Tory, Liberal and New Democrat marooned in a lifeboat with two oars. They got into a debate over who should row and who should be captain. The New Democrat said he should be captain, otherwise he would organize the oarsmen and take them out on strike. The Liberal said they should just drift for three or four days while they discussed all aspects of the matter. The Conservative said he really didn't care what the others did, he was going to walk to shore.

Ontario Provincial Election '75

"Many farmers," he noted, "have a special sense of frustration towards the Davis Government."

He suggested that with 26 acres of farmland going out of use per hour in Ontario, by the end of the century, 60 per cent of Ontario's food needs will have to be imported. This pattern, whether caused by airports, poor urban planning by the Davis government, or by Hydro transmission lines, would use up to 100 acres per mile of arable land.

"I will fight to preserve this land, yet see that sensible housing policies are estabed," Mr. Thompson said.

The NDP candidate quoted from a speech of party leader Stephen Lewis, where he stated "even more important - the loss of farm land is coupled with the loss of farm income. Most farmers enjoy only a marginal return, if any, on their investment and their labour, to the extent that they now ask: 'What's the point?' Many simply walk away from their vocation, discouraged and bitter. Young people, who might be interested in farming, are deterred by the chronic economic insecurity, and see no purpose in becoming farmers. In short, the agricultural industry, once the heartbeat of Ontario, is suffering a cardiac arrest."

Mr. Thompson stated that if elected, agriculture would be one of his prime priorities.

Clarke Rollins squashes rumor that Coe Hill LCBO store to be closed

The Coe Hill Liquor Control Board store will not be closed October 11 as is currently rumored.

Clark T. Rollins, seeking re-election to the Ontario Legislative Assembly in the Sept. 18, provincial election, told a crowd at the annual fall fair here last weekend that the mobile store will definitely remain open after October 11.

In fact, he said, the board plans on opening a new permanent store in the community, and will only close the mobile unit, when the new store is opened.

The election - in fairy tale fashion!

Not to be read at bed time

Gather 'round kiddies and listen to my tale. It begins, as all good fairy stories do, with the words Once upon a time in a far-away land.

There lived this ambitious man named Billy Blue. Now Billy had big plans for his future. He had been running this kingdom and he wanted to continue. Just three people blocked his dream. Mary Public, the princess who owned the country, and two ugly step-brothers, Big Bob and Stephen the Clever-Tongued, who didn't much like his succession planning or how he did his work around the house.

Billy knew the way to continual happiness lay in winning again the hand of the fickle princess who had this nasty habit of choosing a husband every few years to manage her great fortune.

Billy wasn't sure how to woo and win Mary for she was used to his clothes and his thoughts were familiar. Mary set great store by ideas and appearance.

But he plotted secretly and got Mary to hold a great ball on September 18, a time most suited to him, when everyone over 18 from every corner of the land could come and watch the suitors dance and sing and display their wit.

But Big Bob and Stephen the Clever-Tongued wanted Mary's hand, and the body too. So they did everything they could to obstruct Billy in his search for a fine dress suit and great carriage and new things to say.

And they mocked his attempts to win attention by attacking Big Bob's friend, the great emperor over many such lands. In desperation, Billy turned to his fairy godfather, Darcy Kent, the great witch of the walled city of Chatham.

Darcy had many fine potions. But his greatest magic lay in his pumpkin patch. He could turn a pumpkin into anything you wanted just by waving his wand and whispering a few words from a great tome by Samuelson.

But an elf had mixed the seeds from the last crop and you took a chance if you used his pumpkins. Some were good until the end of the year, some lasted only a few weeks and some popped back to pumpkins by midnight.

However, Billy was desperate. So Darcy created a carriage out of the largest pumpkin, reminding him it was cheaper until the end of the year, and then created a team that was good until after September 18. Billy's garments became dazzling and he had many fine ideas. Trouble is, some popped back to pumpkins even as he spoke.

Billy was the centre of attention on the big night. Mary couldn't keep her eyes off him. He seemed so new somehow, and even the smile looked real.

Billy knew he was doing well in the eyes of his intended but he started to worry as the evening wore on. Had he pushed the magic pumpkins too far? Perhaps he should slip away to avert potential disaster and continue his wooing the next day.

His carriage had just made the final turn of the castle drive when midnight struck on the tower clock. It turned into a ruined cart being tugged along by a strange assortment of creatures, including one Supermouse.

Mary dispatched her guards to find Billy the minute she found him missing. But they reached the carriage just as it turned to a runny mess and Billy fled into the bushes. All that was left was one satin dancing slipper and they took this to Mary.

The princess instantly started the search for anyone who could wear the tiny narrow slipper. But everyone's feet were too large. Big Bob's friends didn't help much getting their thumbs trapped inside the slipper as they assisted him. And Stephen's tongue kept getting in the way.

When Billy heard of the search, he snuck away from the guards posted by his stepbrothers and said at the castle gate: "Take me to the princess and I will prove the slipper is mine."

The great court was crowded as people flocked to watch. Billy stood before the throne and warned the princess to watch carefully. She bent close as Billy triumphantly jammed his foot into the slipper. Just then, alas, it turned into a giant over-ripe pumpkin and its innards soaked the princess' fine silk gown and shining hair.

"Off with his head," she screamed and Billy was carried to the chopping block as his stepbrothers smirked.

And the moral, kiddies, since every good fairy tale has one, is that you should always make sure your magic, your pumpkins and your promises last for more than just a few days.

Candidates get tips

Political parties would really like their candidates to look good on television and read well in print. So they give out a few tips. The Tories, for instance, recommend shaving before going on TV and not letting your eyes dart around the studio, at the risk of appearing "shifty" to the home audience.

They also list "ploys most frequently used by abrasive hosts," including studied inattentiveness, surliness, misuse of your name (Mr. Barf for Mr. Barth), false premise logic and subordinate clause insults unrelated to the subject in question.

Ontario peaches good source of vitamin A

Ontario freestone peaches provide an excellent source of Vitamin A, and with the price of sugar down to only half the price of last year, families can prepare inexpensive and tasty desserts for use long after the peach harvesting season.

Varieties such as Redhaven, Envoy, Velvet and Loring are highly suited for freezing, and the following instructions will help simplify gaining excellent results. Where the frozen peaches are intended for use as pie fillings, for simplicity packages containing sufficient filling for a single pie should be used.

Always select ready-to-eat peaches that have reached the peak of maturity and flavor. This may mean resorting to the peaches daily to make certain only perfectly ripe fruit is preserved.

DRY SUGAR PACK METHOD:

6 cups sliced peaches, 1 cup of the sugar and ascorbic acid mixture.

-Mix sugar and ascorbic acid together (following directions on ascorbic acid package).

-Peel the blanched peach, slice into a bowl, sprinkle with the sugar-ascorbic acid mixture.

-Continue peach by peach until peaches and sugar mixture have been well combined.

-Allow these to stand until sugar has dissolved and starts to draw juice from the fruit.

-Pack in rigid moisture-vapor-proof containers, leaving 1/2 inch head space.

-Place piece of crumpled wax paper on top of peaches, to keep fruit well covered with juice.

-Seal, label, quick-freeze.

-Store at 0 degrees F, or lower.

HOME CANNING OF ONTARIO PEACHES:

Recommended varieties of Ontario peaches for canning include Redhaven, Envoy, Velvet, Loring and Redskin.

-Purchase when your favorite variety is at peak of harvest, when flavor and quality are at their best.

-Choose bright, fresh quality peaches, free from bruises and discoloration.

-Sort for ripeness; allowing too firm peaches to ripen at room temperature.

-Make syrup for fruits according to type of syrup desired (very thin to heavy); prepare approximately 1 1/2 to 2 cups syrup for each quart jar used.

-Place peaches - a few at a time - in a wire basket or in a large square of cheese cloth; plunge into boiling water for 1/2 to 1 minute; dip immediately into cold water; remove skins.

-Cut in halves and remove pits. To keep from discoloring immerse immediately in brine made of 1 tps salt to 1 qt water. Drain thoroughly before placing in jars for processing.

-Pack fruit in jars. Using a jar funnel fill the jar with the prepared hot fruit and syrup. Wipe rim of container with a clean towel to remove any food particles.

-Place lids in saucepan of boiling water. Remove one lid from boiling water; cover the jar.

Freestone peaches from the orchards of the Niagara Peninsula and southwestern Ontario are now reaching Ontario food stores and markets in steady quantities, and the chairman of the Ontario Fresh Fruit Growers' Marketing Board states the quality of the 1975 crop is "exceptional".

Ted Tregunno, whose family orchards front onto the Niagara River near Queenston, explains that growing conditions this year have been close to ideal. Warm and sunny summer days experienced across southern Ontario have provided ample heat units to bring the fruit into full ripened maturity and there has been sufficient rain to bring the peaches up to full size.

"We are picking some varieties of peaches a little earlier this year, but only by a few days", said Mr.

Tregunno. "The prolonged hot spell in July started us thinking we would be a couple of weeks ahead of schedule, but nature usually has a way of maintaining a balance."

Farm and Garden

One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, Eldale Rd., Elmira, Ont. N3B 2C7

For almost a decade, this corner has felt like a voice crying in the wilderness.

Few farmers bothered to speak out against the giants of the mass media even when those same farmers were being lambasted by editorials written by uninformed writers. The Toronto Star, for instance, constantly takes marketing boards to task for increasing the cost of food.

Even the usually well-researched stories in the Globe and Mail have recently been giving farmers and farm organizations a tough time.

It was refreshing last week to read the lengthy editorial in Farm and Country magazine, a paper that reaches more people with farm news than any farm publication. The editorial mentioned a front-page story in the Star which said egg farmers would soon be guaranteed $46,000 a year.

Of course, a letter to the editor explained how untrue the story was. But, by that time, the damage had been done and as Farm and Country says, right now tens of thousands of Torontonians still believe the original claim.

The editorial also wants to know who is behind the so-called National Citizens Coalition Inc. which can spend $5,000 for an advertisement, full-page yet, to blame Eugene Whelan for rising egg costs.

This coalition is vehemently opposed to orderly marketing by farmers but fails to mention supply management programs by car manufacturers, salt companies and cigarette makers.

Eugene Whelan is not to blame anyway. It was the egg producers who demanded a national marketing agency. Mr. Whelan simply agreed to provincial egg boards' requests.

Once again, somebody forgot to get the facts straight.

In the meantime, though, a few more thousand people get a distorted idea of farmers and farm problems.

It is not my intention to start a full-fledged battle with the National Citizens Coalition Inc. — whoever in heck they are — but they should get one thing straight before taking pot shots at marketing boards: Every study undertaken in the past 50 years whether in Canada, the United States or Europe, has strongly pointed out that the family farm is the most economic unit for food production. In addition, any country in the world must have a sound agricultural economy to accompany increases in the standard of living.

Without the family farm, now predominant in Canada, food production will be taken over by huge corporations, international and multi-national conglomerates, which will set food prices to their liking. Then the consumer will get ripped off all along the line.

Inefficient farmers still exist in Canada. They will probably continue to exist. But they become fewer every year because it takes a lot of know-how these days to remain on the farm. The old axiom about farmers living poor and dying rich is still true. The only time they make a buck is when they sell their land.

If the Citizens Coalition Inc. — whoever they are — were sincere they would launch a full-scale investigation into the inefficiencies of the food distribution system. If there is a rip-off to the consumer, it comes after the produce leaves the farm gate. The last figures I heard indicated that almost 70 per cent of the price of a pound of chicken went to others along the way after that chicken left the farm.

To repeat what this column has been saying for years: The package in which a cotton shirt is packed cost more than what the farmer got who grew the cotton; the processing and selling of a bunch of carrots brings more to the retailer than what the farmer got who grew them. And the list could go on and on.

Farmers are only asking for what everyone else wants these days which is a fair return on their labor and investment.

If they get any more than a fair return, then — and only then — should they be castigated by the general public. Or the Citizens Coalition Inc., whoever they are.

Production cut required

Ontario egg producers declare war

Some Ontario egg producers have declared war on the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board which is requiring them to cut their egg production quota by 38 per cent.

A two-day disciplinary hearing by the board against 14 egg producers became a minor rebellion when 70 fellow producers announced they would collectively resist any attempt to seize hens or eggs or cancel quotas.

A two-page statement from the producers, read to the board by director Joseph Hudson said "any producer from our group or wishing to join our group who is harassed by the board in any manner, such as seizure of eggs or hens or cancellation of quota, will be given collective physical and legal support."

As of September 1, egg producers in Ontario are required to cut their production to 62 per cent of their quota base. Quebec, on the other hand, is being asked to produce up to 90 per cent of its base and according to producer Purvis Littlejohn, production is expanding and no flocks have been cut.

Joseph Hudson said the Ontario producers "cannot live with 62 per cent. Producers have been put in a position where they either have to break the law or go out of business."

The producers said that if the group's demands are not met by August 30, they will legally contest the board's right to cancel quotas and dispute the legality of production controls. They will also withdraw their financial support from the board.

IN MEMORIAM

.ROBINSON - In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Frank Robinson, who passed away August 28, 1973.

.Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past,

In silence he suffered, in patience he bore,
'Til God called him home to suffer no more.

.Sadly missed and always remembered by wife, Irene, and family, Catherine, Carl and Dorothy.

.PARKS, Phyllis Joyce - In loving memory of a dear wife and mother,
Phyllis Joyce, who passed away August 26th, 1970.

We had a wonderful mother,

To us she was the best.

Early one evening God called her home to His beautiful Heaven of rest.

We miss you, Mom, what more can we say.

As long as we live we'll remember that day.

That you had to answer that heaven call.
We had to part with the best Mom of all.

You shared our troubles and helped us along.

If we walk in your footsteps, we will never go wrong.

On earth you suffered, in heaven you rest,
God bless you, Mom, you were the best.

Only a cluster of memories, sprayed with a million tears,

Wishing God had spared you for just a few more years.

So God, please take a message

To our wonderful Mom above,

Tell her how much we miss her

And give her all our love.

.Always remembered by Jack, Marlene and Dave, Janice, Dave, Bonny and sons Johnny and Larry.

.PARKS, Phyllis Joyce - In loving memory of a dear mother, Phyllis Joyce, who passed away August 26, 1970.

Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind,

They are cherished in the hearts

Of those they leave behind.

Loving and kind in all her ways,

Upright and just in all her days,

Sincere and true in heart and mind, "

Beautiful memories she left behind.

.Always remembered by Cheryl and Clint.

.PARKS - In loving memory of a dear mother, Phyllis Joyce, who passed away
August 26, 1970.

Five sad and lonely years have passed,
My heart still aches with sadness,

And secret tears still flow,

What it meant to lose you,

No one will ever know.

When the days are sad and lonely,

And everything goes wrong,

I seem to hear you saying

"Cheer up and carry on."

Each time I dust your picture

You seem to smile and say

"Don't cry, I'm only sleeping,

.Ever loved, ever remembered, by Donna

IN MEMORIAMs

ROUSHORN - In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Lena Roushorn, who passed away August 24, 1973.

God took Mom home, it was his will,
But in our hearts we have Her still.
Her memory is as clear today,
As in the hour she passed away.
We often sit and think of her,
When we are all alone.
For memory is the only friend,
That grief can call it's own.
Dorothy, Peter, Annette, Anthony and Robin Colleen.

Body Weight

A man will weigh about a pound more if he steps on the bathroom scales after taking a shower but before he dries off. That's due to the film of water, one-fiftieth of an inch thick, that remains on the body after bathing. Also, the average human body contains enough fat to make about seven or eight bars of soap.

Sun Shines

The sun radiates more energy in one second than man has used since civilization began. Sun exposure is the chief factor leading to wrinkles, laxness, and other signs of age on the human. The sun itself is 4.7 million years old. It is slowly expanding, and in another 6 million years the sun will be three times its present size, emitting four times its present quantity of light and heat.

Camping Family Style

BY ANGELA AND FORD BOTHWELL

A ranger in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park sums up a phenomenon of the current outdoors scene when he says, "People are discovering walking again." The giant Great Smokies Park that straddles the Tennessee-North Carolina line is our "highest use" national park, hosting more than 8 million people annually. Yet much of it demands rugged camping. And many of those 8 million hikers and backpackers are merely passing through, following the world's longest footpath, the famed Appalachian Trail. Trail officials say that hikers are discovering "The AT" as the trail is called, in record numbers.

Much of "The AT," which weaves its way 2,205 miles through 14 states, is difficult to traverse. Starting atop mile-high Mount Katahdin in Maine, the trail winds its way across jagged mountain peaks, over sweeping farmlands and sometimes through bushwacking country to its terminus on Springer Mountain in Georgia.

Difficult or not, "The AT" is being enjoyed by huge numbers of people who simply want to get out and hike. But even more startling is the fact that more people than ever before are walking the full 2,205 miles of trail.

They're called "end-to-enders," a term reserved for those rare few who hike the trail's entire length. Their names are recorded in the annals of the Appalachian Trail Conference (ATC), a non-profit organization based in Harpers Ferry, W. Va., which is charged with preserving and maintaining the famed footpath.

ATC records list only 57 "end-to-enders" between the opening of the trail in the mid-1930's and 1970. Then the numbers began to swell, with more people hiking the full route each year until now, when more than 75 hikers a year become "end-to-enders."

And age is no barrier. ATC records indicate that "end-to-enders" enrolled in recent years include several over-70 grandmothers and grandfathers, a nine-year-old boy, and an 82-year-old doctor who hiked for 14 years on vacations to complete the trip.

Jolly Green Thumb

BY MARY FUREY CRYMES

Mum's the word for fall... those big, luscious football-game blooms, or the tiny, bushy ones in the heavenly range of colors. Whatever your choice, it's time to get going if you want their beauty lighting up the fall garden and their tangy scent titillating your nostrils.

Nurseries have loads of plants. Hybrid growers have given us an incredible range of colors, shapes and sizes: snowy white, hot pink, deep red and blackish purple, as well as the traditional shades of yellow, gold and orange. The flowers are hardy and flourish in most areas, a major reason for their popularity.

To prepare for your prize winners, first look to the soil. If it isn't rich and loamy, hie to the garden center for additives like compost, fish manure and peat moss. The owner can advise what's best. Soil has to be firm, so tread or roll lightly to make it even. Dig a deep hole; say, six to eight inches, and tamp the root ball in with a trowel. Place plants a foot apart and water heavily. To get early flowering, pinch out the growing points of plants. Bamboo or plastic supports are often necessary while stems are growing.

If your aim is large, showy flowers, keep a watchful eye on buds and nip them off sides of stems. This will concentrate energy on the main flower bud, the one at the end of the stem. Remember that most perennials remain in beds three years, but chrysanthemums are an exception. They seem to need replacement every other year. Meanwhile, they're yours to enjoy and love right now.

Thinking Slim

BY JEAN NIDETCH

Who do you blame for whatever your problem is? When I was fat — and believe me — that was my problem, I blamed first my glands, then my bone structure, then my heredity.

I should have blamed myself.

I am the only one responsible. My weight was not a medical problem, or a genetic one. My weight was caused by too many trips of an overloaded fork from mouth to plate.

Taking responsibility for everything in our individual lives makes life so much simpler and it makes life work.

Instead of all that responsibility being a burden, it is a lightening effect. A huge weight is lifted. No longer do we have to look for causes. No longer do we have to seek others to blame.

One of the most wonderful things about accepting responsibility for yourself and for what happens to you, is the knowledge that because you are responsible, you can change anything you want. You can have anything you want. You can be anything you want.

A friend of mine has recently lost a good deal of weight. She is down to a size 10 for the first time in her life.

"Every once in a while," she told me, "as I am looking through the size 10 rack, I think 'Oh, I'm in the wrong size.' Then I realize I'm not. And the knowledge that I chose to be thin and became thin, in a period of four months — and by eating better than I have eaten in years — makes me want to keep on smiling all the time."

It's the challenge of wanting and accepting responsibility. What each one of us experiences is purely our personal experience. We may share feelings and emotions with others. Nevertheless, our experience is still ours — unique and individual.

Just think of the power we humans hold in our minds. We can indeed do anything and be anything we really want.

Four Seasons Sheraton sponsors vintage car run

Paris 'twins' with Toronto hotel

Paris, that scenic town in southwestern Ontario with a population of some 6,000 has much in common with Canada's largest hotel — the Four Seasons Sheraton — although the common denominator may not be obvious at first.

Described as "a city within a city", the Four Seasons Sheraton Hotel has been open nearly three years and has its own "mayor", city council, police force, medical department, entertainment, two cinemas and even education facilities.

"On an average day, with 70 percent of our 1466 rooms occupied," says Kai Herbranson, General Manager of the hotel, "our population would match that of Paris, Ontario. With our restaurants and cocktail lounges filled, plus the

When the two "cities" are analysed it is remarkable the similarities between a large hotel and a small town like Paris.

To emphasize the many similarities, it is proposed in "twinning" up the hotel and the town of Paris, to arrange exchange visits for the Municipal officials — the Police Chief of Paris to spend a day with the hotel security department, the General Manager to exchange visits with the Mayor and explore the workings of each others offices, the Municipal Engineer for Paris to spend a day in the giant plant and maintenance department of the hotel. There are many possibilities to be explored.

The first official event tying the "twins" together is the First Annual Toronto to Paris Vintage Car Run, sponsored by the Four Seasons Sheraton, on August 31st. There has been an overwhelming response from vintage car owners. The drivers and their families will enjoy Sunday brunch at the hotel and then a leisurely drive along the scenic country routes. An official welcome is planned in Paris, with a parade around the Fair Grounds, for this is the weekend of the annual fair. The day will end with a dinner hosted by the good people of Paris.

Mayor Bawcutt of Paris and Kai Herbranson of the Four Seasons Sheraton agree there is a remarkable similarity in their daily administrations of their two "cities".

The "mayor" — General Manager Kai Herbranson — convenes his "council", consisting of Board of Operations members every Wednesday. In Paris Mayor John Bawcutt convenes his council on Tuesdays. Both mayors deal with a myriad of matters ranging from the incredible through the important to the impossible.

"I wasn't elected to office, but I have to know a lot about politics," comments Kai Herbranson, "and like any administrator, I have to rely heavily on my executives or 'council' to help keep my 'city' running."

The two "cities" both have swimming pools. Paris has a town park, the hotel has some two acres of shrubs, trees and flowers. Paris has a waterfall near the main street and the hotel has a 60' waterfall right off the lobby.

Entertainment

Celebrity Parade
BY CATHY POST FIELD

Any truth to the rumor that a film is going to be made on the life of Onassis? Robin Alfred, Dayton, O. Yes. The picture will deal with the period Ali was wed to Jackie Kennedy. Greek director Nico Mastorakis plans to start filming in November and has Anthony Quinn lined up to star as Onassis and Julie Christie as Jackie.

Please tell me there's no truth that the Rolling Stones are breaking up? T. Collins, Miami, Fla.

The Rolling Stones current tour is smashing and it is certainly not expected to be their last. The group is definitely not bored with their music, the public or each other.

How does Laurel Bacall feel about the book "Bogart" which was penned by her late husband's old friend, Nathaniel Benchley. Also, is this Benchley any kin to Peter Benchley, author of "Jaws"? P. T., Akron, O.

The actress, always outspoken, says: "Every s.o.b. and his brother is trying to make a buck from Bogie. They use his face on T-shirts, posters and every way possible, but legally I can do nothing, just as I couldn't stop the book." Yes, Nathaniel Benchley is the father of Peter Benchley. He's also the son of the late critic-humorist Robert Benchley.

How did that feud between Jon Voight and Jacqueline Bisset (who have a very explicit rape scene, I heard, in their upcoming "The Mahmud Bridge") turn out? Do they speak at all? C. Lindley, Sanford, Fla.

Jon and Jacqueline got along just fine during the filming and can't imagine who started the rumors that they didn't. Asked about his co-star, Jon said: "She's a strong person who has gone through a lot of tough, defeating things in her life and survived. She's a good actress now and she keeps getting better."

Canadians more aware of heritage and environment

Petawawa - Canadians are becoming more aware of their heritage and environment, states David J. Stewart, head, public awareness projects of Petawawa Forest Experiment Station.

"Canada is a nation of trees and more and more Canadians are taking an interest in ecology and the immense value of the country's mammoth forests," says Mr. Stewart.

"In order to allow Canadians a chance to learn something about forests and trees, we are inviting Canadians to visit the Station. We are this year expecting upwards of 15,000 motorists to stop at our visitors' centre on Highway 17, three miles east of Chalk River, Ont."

The Station, located in the Ottawa Valley, was established in 1918 in response to a First World War request by the then Department of Militia to take over management of the forest lands surrounding the Petawawa Military Reserve.

"The Station's dual purpose," says Mr. Stewart, "is to serve as a demonstration area for forest management techniques and to carry out year-round research."

Petawawa contains its own tree nursery, experimental laboratories, fire fighting facilities, a research sawmill, a National Tree Seed Centre, road building and timber haulage equipment and a meteorological station that provides daily information on the weather which affects growing conditions. It has a staff of 74 persons.

"A walk or drive through our Station," says Mr. Stewart, "is to commune with nature and history at the same time. We want the public to share this experience by stopping at our visitors' centre and walking through our interpretive forest trail at the entrance to the Station.

"This trail gives a composite picture of forest life. In a 30-minute walk covering 15 stopping points, a visitor can view different phases of forestry."

"The trail is more than just a collection of trees. It is a constantly changing living community of trees, plants, birds, animals, insects and micro-organisms. Tree populations have a life of their own. A forest is an exciting place," says Mr. Stewart.

The visitors' centre contains a mini-museum where old logging tools are on view. Educational exhibits explain how a forest ticks. Also provided is a picnic area with ample parking facilities.

Visitors to the Station may drive through the 38-square mile area to examine the various aspects of forest management and experimentation. Those taking the auto tour are supplied with a unique, taped commentary that they can play as they drive slowly through the forest.

The Petawawa Station is one of 15 establishments located strategically throughout the country operated by the Canadian Forestry Service of Environment Canada, and is the largest forestry research organization in the country.

provincial parties have a couple of awkward children themselves. Ed Havrot, the Tory MPP from Timiskaming, put his foot into it with some ill-considered remarks about Indians. Davis answered a couple of questions about whether he personally supported Havrot by repeating: "He is the party candidate." Whale Tale Juvenile delinquency isn't much of a problem with the Eskimos. Whale blubber takes care of that social disease. As soon as a teenager steps out of line in Eskimoland the adults whale him, until he blubbers.

Electrical shock kills about 1,100 people a year in the U.S. Many more die in the 140,000 electrical fires that happen every year. Electrical fires start from overloaded wires and short circuits. Water is a big danger around electricity, because it is one of the best conductors of electricity. Keep appliances away from water. That goes for cords, too.

SPARE FUSES

Darkness and Light

Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. For, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people; but the Lord shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee. And the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising.

"OKAY, I'M READY WHEN YOU ARE!"

Look in Davis eyes shows he knows he'll still be premier after Sept. 18

Premier Davis sauntered into the press conference room at Queen's Park, stopped for a final puff on his cigar, gave his Cheshire cat grin, sat down and read a seven-page statement filled with the usual amount of Tory smugness.

Oh, he didn't really say so, but you can tell from the look in his eye that he knows he'll still be premier after September 18 election.

He spoke of a "no-nonsense campaign," a campaign based on the heavy issues of the economy, the constitution, the environment, the quality of life, law and order all those things which afforded earlier Conservative governments the luxury of asking if there's any place we'd rather be.

"I suppose it has to be said that leadership will be an issue of some importance to the result of this election," he said. "Like many of the voters of Ontario, I am four years older, a little grayer -- and, I hope, a little wiser. I can say with considerable conviction that nothing has prepared me so much for a second term in office as premier of Ontario as has my first term in that office."

There's no question Premier Davis and his fleet of Big Blue Machine operators hope that leadership will be an issue, THE issue.

They know, as you do, that some people are upset with Davis, but that the two other leadership options -- Bob Nixon and Stephen Lewis -- are not acceptable to enough people to let them form a government.

Premier Davis is calling for a redefined constitution in this country; a new division of responsibilities among the federal and provincial governments.

He talks of sitting down with Ottawa and having a dialogue with them about it -- a calm, reasoned dialogue in the best interests of Ontario and of Canada.

At the same time, he calls them names. He speaks of the lack of leadership in Ottawa and calls them crass political opportunists, but says heaven's above, that doesn't mean we can't sit down for a nice friendly chat with those guys up there in Ottawa.

Bill Davis heads a party which can afford to drop 11 seats and still hold the majority in the newly-defined 125-seat legislature.

Unlike 1971, where the NDP were seen as the socialist menace, Davis has decided to concentrate on attacking the Liberals, hammering away at them for being "kissing cousins" with Ottawa and being run by a guy who has already lost twice and even wanted to step down until the Liberal party discovered it didn't have anybody better.

The Tories are acting as if they don't want you to know there's a campaign on. But come September, Boom!

They'll hit you everywhere. You won't escape the jungles on the air, the pictures in the papers, billboards, brochures under your door. Pronouncements every day.

There'll be no talk of the Socialist hordes, though remember the pinkish threat of 1971. Now the threat is gone. The NDP are hurting, so why not ignore them. Bust the Liberals. That's the game.
